BLAIS THREATENS ARREST

Cossitt Gets Until Monday To Return Secret

Times News Services

OTTAWA — The government has given Conservative Tom Cossitt until Monday to return what it says are top-secret documents on foreign agents in Canada.

Speaker James Jerome announced the deadline in the Commons today without giving details.

Later Solicitor-General Jean-Jacques Blais told reporters that Cossitt would be served with a "formal notice" under the Official Secrets Act requesting a return of the documents, which the government has said were stolen from the RCMP security service.

Jerome said the time during the weekend will give Cossitt, who has made statements in the last weeks about Soviet money entering Canada to support terrorism, time to consult his lawyer.

Blais left open what the government would do if Cossitt refused to turn over what the minister said are two copies of one document and part of a second.

But the government made clear Thursday it would use all means at its disposal to get the papers back. It warned of arrest and charges under the Official Secrets Act.

The announcement delays a threatened confrontation between Cossitt and the government. He was warned Thursday he could be arrested and charged under the act unless he co-operated in the immediate return of the sensitive documents.

Jerome said Cossitt has consulted a lawyer who specilalizes in the situation. The lawyer has asked for more time to study Cossitt's position.

It was not immediately clear what document Cossitt is to be served with under the act. However, it appeared it would bind Cossitt not to reveal anything contained in the file.

On Thursday, Prime Minister Trudeau said Cossitt is undermining efforts of the RCMP security service to protect Canadian sovereignty.

Blais said publication of the contents of the document would do irreversible damage to the Canadian security service.

Cossitt said that during the day Blais showed him a document that indicated statements he has been making in the last weeks are true. He has been saying that Soviet money is coming into Canada

Credit Card Drinking On the Way

By AL FORREST
Times Staff

Credit card cocktails are on the way and liquor czar Vic Woodland's a bit concerned.

A provincial government ruling that credit cards may be accepted by cocktail lounges and pubs could mean more drunks and hungry families, says Woodland, Liquor Licensing and Control Branch general manager.

"What will happen if people start buying drinks for the house on their credit cards?" he said.

Woodland was commenting on a decision by the consumer and corporate affairs ministry saying drinkers can use credit cards in bars.

Credit cards previously were not legal in bars for fear customers would drink too much or spend all the family grocery money, Woodland said.

"I can't quarrel with the decision," he said. "It is a reasonable one. But it creates several new problems."

Chief among these is the possibility that there will be "overservice" — a technical term for more drunks.

Up to now, customers have had to stop drinking when their money ran out but with credit cards there will be no need to stop.

"We will be watching this situation carefully to see customers are not overserved."

On a personal basis, he said he is concerned about the effect on families' finances from credit card drinking.

"We can't regulate family spending but we are concerned about this aspect."

Woodland said cocktail lounges probably will begin accepting credit cards but beer parlors likely won't.

"It would slow down the service in a pub," Woodland said. "And then there is always the danger that someone would run up a big tab in the beer parlor and then take off. People are always coming and going in pubs."

Under the decision, customers can pay their tabs for each session by credit card. There is no easing of the ban against running up weekly or monthly tabs, however.

The consumer and corporate affairs ministry pointed out that in the case of single-day drinking, the credit is in fact being granted by the credit card company and not by the bar or beer parlor.

However, long-term tabs would be credit granted by the drinking establishment and would not be permitted.

Woodland said there were ways in the past where people could use credit cards to buy alcoholic drinks — when ordering food in restaurants or when the bar tab was added to the hotel bill.

"Now this privilege is extended to those who drop in for a drink. We hope the privilege will not be abused."

Chretien Defends Borrowing in U.S.

OTTAWA (CP) — The government decided to borrow $750 million U.S. publicly on New York money markets partly because it could get better interest rates through a public offering, Finance Minister Jean Chretien said today.

He denied suggestions from Opposition Leader Joe Clark that the $750 million is a "token amount" and that the government was turned down when it tried to place the bond offering privately.

The borrowing was announced Thursday night as a measure to help defend the Canadian dollar's value and to finance a growing deficit on international transactions.

In New York today the Canadian dollar was down 11/100 at $0.8922 U.S. Pound sterling was down 3/10 at $1.9390.

Chretien said Ottawa had the option of either a public offering or a private issue of bonds. A public offering allows more flexiblity in varying maturity dates for the borrowing and generally means the borrower has to pay less interest, he said.

Details about the interest rates Ottawa must pay will not be known for some time.

Sinclair Stevens (PC—York-Simcoe) noted the government spent $715 million U.S. in February alone, buying up unwanted Canadian dollars on currency markets to support their value, and about $45 million more this week.

Over 40 per cent of Canada's U.S. dollar reserves have gone out of this country in two months' time, Stevens said.

Figures released Thursday, he said, showed that there had been an exodus of $715 million.

"If we couple that with the outflow in January of $200 million, that represents an outflow of over $900 million. In addition another $45 million has been lost in the last two days," he said.

"When we decide to borrow more, if we decide to borrow more," the Commons will be told, Chretien replied.

Stevens asked Chretien if it was usual to have such a loss in U.S. dollar reserves. He asked if this was the "ordinary type" of market behaviour that the finance minister has been talking about in the commons.

Chretien said February was a particularly difficult month.

"That is why we had to intervene. It is the reason we announced we will be borrowing on the U.S. market very soon in order to have some more reserves on hand," he said.

Stevens recalled that last week the finance minister had said he did not intend to intervene to bolster the Canadian dollar. Now he has indicated that the central bank and the government had decided to intervene and that was obviously the cause of an exodus of U.S. dollar reserves. He suggested that Canada had been caught with an unexpected outgo of U.S. funds.

Chretien said the Bank of Canada intervened to make sure there was an orderly market. He said he had already indicated they had made use of the facility organized last fall to the tune of $200 million. And Canada plans to borrow some American dollars later on.

The finance minister said he is not yet revising his forecast of a six per-cent inflation rate by the end of the year.

U.S. Deficit At $2.4 Billion

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States trade deficit for January was $2.4 billion, continuing at a rate that led to a record $26.6-billion deficit last year, the commerce department reported today.

The January deficit was the largest since a record $3.6-billion deficit in October, and it followed deficits of $2.4 billion in November and $2.1 billion in December.

The deficit could lead to further erosion of the dollar against harder currencies. European market sources said today that while technical factors had led to a steadying of the dollar, there could be a sharp reaction to further heavy U.S. trade deficits.

The price of gold bullion was fixed at $183.80 U.S. an ounce in London, 45 cents down from Thursday's closing rate.

American businesses exported $10 billion in goods in January, while importing $12.4 billion in goods.

Economists said the decline in trading activity was caused partly by bad weather at U.S. ports. However, the January decline also was attributed to an unusually strong trading month in December, when shipments increased after settlement of a dock strike.

Woman Subdues Attacker

COQUITLAM (CP) — A would-be rapist was sent to hospital Thursday after his victim knocked him out by breaking a vase over his head.

RCMP said that the 30-year-old woman was awakened by a man who had entered her apartment and was sexually attacking her.

"The woman offered considerable resistance," a police spokesman said. "She repelled the attack, rendering the man unconscious."

The man was still unconscious on the floor when police arrived. The intended victim suffered superficial bruises. The man was taken to hospital where he was in fair condition.

Ronald Hough, 29, of Coquitlam was charged with attempted rape, indecent assault, possession of a dangerous weapon and breaking and entering.

JUDGE TRIPLES IMPAIRED FINES

NEW WESTMINSTER (CP) — Lower courts should be tougher on impaired drivers, a county court judge said Thursday as he doubled and tripled fines for 10 men convicted of impaired driving.

Most had been fined in the $250 range in provincial court, but Judge McMorran increased most of the fines to $500, and raised two to more than $700.

Reading from a prepared judgment, he said that in 1976, Parliament doubled the maximum penalty for impaired driving to $2,000, but fines have not reflected this change in the law.

Penalties now "do not reflect the seriousness with which the drinking-driver offence has been considered legislatively either federally or provincially, nor do they reflect protection for the public or deterrence to potential offenders," he said.

"Waves of epidemics of crime, as this has been described in these cases, can be brought under a measure of control by progressive increases in the severity of punishment."

A spokesman for the provincial court in Victoria said fines handed out by judges here have been customarily higher than in Vancouver and are currently averaging between $350 to $400.

District Judge William Ostler said there is no policy regarding fines judges should set here.

It's up to each judge as he sees the case, he said, and to do otherwise would upset the basic tradition that judges are masters in their own homes.

B.C. Hydro unions and the B.C. Federation of Labor are developing a strategy to use against the crown corporation in their contract disputes, federation secretary-treasurer Len Guy said Thursday.

A council that is to come up with the most effective way of using the combined economic pressure of the labor movement, met late into the night at a undisclosed location.

"Each of the unions involved, along with the entire labor movement, will be combining their collective strength to pressure Hydro into returning to the bargaining table and resolving the dispute or if necessary planning the most effective economic action possible," Guy said.

He refused to divulge strategy.

Lyrical Weatherman's Head Firmly in Clouds

By PAUL MOSS
Times Staff

In the weird and wonderful world of the weathermen, those backroom boffins whose stock-in-trade consists of isobars, isotherms, occluded fronts, troughs and suchlike, there lurks a romantic soul with a lyrical turn of phrase.

On and off for several months now his bulletins filled with extravagant prose, metaphor and alliteration — a far cry from the usual terse stuff we're used to — have been coming over the news wires, only to be rephrased by copy editors who want the message short and clear.

The writer probably would have remained anonymous had it not been for his latest effort a few days ago, which included such gems as:

"The purveyors of cloud will be a platoon of petite perturbations originating over the Yukon."

Three telephone calls tracked down the location and identity of the author.

He works as a meteorologist in the Vancouver weather office, his name is John Thomas and — perhaps this explains all — he's a native Victorian.

Why does he pen such florid phrases as: "Churning with convective turmoil, the cooler air behind the front will keep things showery along the coast and will trigger flurries as it swirls through coastal passes and tumbles into the Interior?"

Thomas, 32, who was educated at Langford's Belmont high school and at the University of Victoria, said today weather forecasts tend to be so dry (even if they're wet) and so straightforward that all he wants to do is inject a little color into them.

He concedes that his approach is a little tongue-in-cheek but denied he's a would-be writer.

"I've just got a good imagination."

Asked what his colleagues think of his literary efforts, Thomas replied: "They're split into two factions: those who think I shouldn't do it and those who think it's quite a giggle."

And how does his boss, the senior meteorologist, feel about it?

"He doesn't mind as long as the stuff isn't too frivolous."

Thomas, who joined the Vancouver weather office last fall after stints in Toronto and Montreal, said he has at least one other fan — his wife.

"She thinks it's interesting," he added.

Presumably, if Thomas is allowed to continue sending up his weather balloons of magniloquent composition, we can expect more of this kind of thing:

"The energy impulse required to traverse the ridge was imparted to the front by the turbulent collision of opposing energy currents in the forms of a southward shifting cold trough and a northbound stream of steamy, subtropical air."

to help terrorism, among other things.

Blais's remarks came at the end of a dramatic afternoon which saw opposition MPs charge the government with intimidation and breaches of Cossitt's privileges as an MP.

Blais and Michael Dare, head of the RCMP security service, had visited Cossitt in his office in the morning to warn him he could be arrested if he did not turn the document over to them.

Blais told reporters that the purpose of the extraordinary procedure is "basically to make sure the document itself might permit us to ascertain what the source of the information might be."

Cossitt sat silent and mostly alone as fellow MPs called him everything from a threat to the country's security to one of the best elected representatives in Canada.

Only a handful of fellow Progressive Conservatives stopped at Cossitt's desk to offer their advice or support.

Fellow members Elmer MacKay (Central Nova), Jean Pigott (Ottawa-Carleton) and Erik Nielsen (Yukon) held brief discussions with Cossitt and the party's financial critic Sinclair Stevens (York Simcoe) shook his hand.

Clark seemed determined to show an attitude of detachment.

He refrained from advising Cossitt on any course of action and maintained this attitude of non-involvement all afternoon.

The prime minister's mood seemed to shift as the discussion progressed. He began the afternoon looking intense and serious, scribbling notes most of the time.

After giving a speech calling the matter "one of the most important questions of national security" Canada has faced, he seemed to relax.

By the time former prime minister John Diefenbaker gave his analysis of the situation, Trudeau was looking quite jovial, snickering from time to time.

Diefenbaker said Trudeau was frightened of Cossitt, determined to get rid of him and glad to see Cossitt silenced.

The afternoon ended with Cossitt slipping quietly out of the back door of Parliament's Centre Block, surrounded by a protecting coterie of friends, without saying what he would do next.

In a related development, Trudeau told reporters at his press conference Thursday that he considered the KDB an enemy because of its spying operations in Canada, but not the Soviet Union.

Trudeau differentiated between the KGB, which is the Soviet espionage apparatus, and the overall activities of the Soviet government.

He said it was important for Canada as a country looking for peace, detente, the reunion of families, and immigrants, to have good relations with the Soviet Union for trade, economic and political reasons.

"I don't consider the Soviet Union an enemy," he said.

"Sure, spying is going on, but it is not our policy to severe relations with every country doing spying in this country," the prime minister said.

Trudeau said he couldn't believe that Soviet ambassadors did not want to improve trade and relations with the countries to which they were posted.

RAINS BATTER MEXICAN CITY

TIJUANA, Mexico (AP) — Torrential rains have battered this U.S.-Mexican border city for the past three days, killing at least seven persons, isolating villages and leaving hundreds homeless, Mexican authorities report.

More rains and gale-force winds were expected today.

Mexican Red Cross officials issued a plea for food, blankets and clothing, in short supply because of floods that hit Tijuana earlier this year.

Health officials were trying to prevent any outbreak of typhoid or cholera among those whose drinking water may be contaminated. They vaccinated hundreds at refugee centres, but vaccine was in short supply.

At least 400 homes in low-lying hollows along the rampaging Tia Juana River were swept away.

Elsewhere, the Midwest and Eastern United States were hit with more snow today, adding as much as 15 centimetres to areas with record snow accumulations already on the ground.

Light snow fell over New Jersey and Maryland in the morning.

Some areas unaffected by snow had other sorts of precipitation. Freezing rain and freezing drizzle fell from Kentucky, into the Virginias, through the Carolinas and into Georgia. Thunderstorms spread from southern Georgia along the eastern Gulf Coast.

Rains in the southwest U.S. were heavy enough to cause flooding. Rain continued to fall in California, parts of southern Oregon and Arizona but it was lighter than the downpours that brought mudslides in California and severe flooding in Arizona earlier this week.

Meanwhile, some regions of the United States face potentially dangerous flooding this spring from the melting of unusually heavy snow that still covers large areas, the National Weather Service said Thursday.

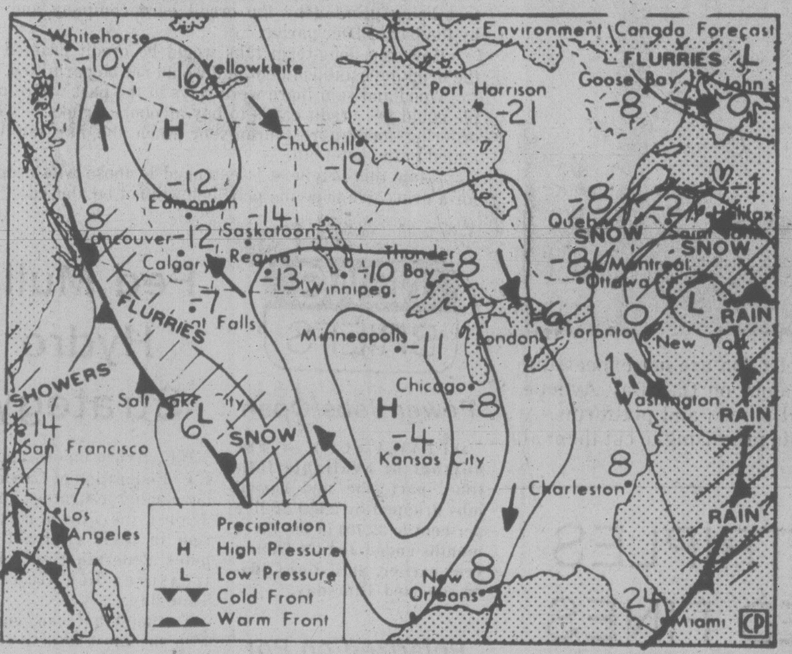

Map valid until noon Saturday

A weak weather disturbance brought cloudy skies and a few light showers to the north coast last night but the rest of the province was clear. Temperatures ranged from zero to minus 5 along the coast to near minus 10 in the southern interior and to minus 15 or so in the Cariboo. Little change is expected today with most of the cloud in the northern half of the province and the only precipitation over the Charlottes and the northern mainland. This inclement weather will move slowly southeastward along the coast today and Saturday bringing increasing cloud to northern Vancouver Island as well as the threat of showers overnight. Elsewhere the sunshine will continue for the next few days.

ENVIRONMENT CANADA WEATHER OFFICE 10 A.M. FORECASTS

Valid Until Midnight Saturday

Greater Victoria: Today and Saturday mostly sunny. Highs both days 8 to 10. Low tonight near minus 2.

Lower Mainland, East Vancouver Island: Today and Saturday mostly sunny. Highs today and Saturday 8 to 10. Lows tonight near minus 1 to minus 3.

North and West Vancouver Island: Today mostly sunny. Increasing cloud and the chances of showers tonight and Saturday in the northern half but mainly clear in the south. Highs today 8 to 11. Lows tonight minus 2 to plus 2. Highs Saturday 7 to 10.

Cut Taxes On Gas: BCAA

VANCOUVER (CP) — The British Columbia Automobile Association asked the federal and provincial governments Thursday to reduce taxes on motor fuel as gasoline prices were boosted to more than $1 a gallon in many parts of the province.

Bill McKinley, association president, said in a news release that B.C. motorists were paying more for gasoline produced from domestic crude oil than Americans were paying for gasoline made from Middle East crude, which costs up to $4 a barrel more.

"Oil company profits notwithstanding, the major blame for the ever-increasing price of gasoline belongs to governments, federal and provincial who take 51.9 cents in taxes for every gallon of gasoline sold," said McKinley.

He said attempts by the federal government to reduce fuel consumption and to equalize prices across Canada had only resulted in discriminatory costs against private motorists.

"The imposition of the 10 cents a gallon federal excise tax in 1975, paid only by the private motorist and designed primarily as an energy saver incentive, has become a lucrative revenue source from a captive consumer."

McKinley said federal excise and sales tax took 14.9 cents out of the price of each gallon, provincial sales tax another 17 cents and additional royalties and taxes on the crude oil at source a further 20 cents, to bring the government tax figure to 51.9 cents on each gallon.

Sherrell Ruling Promised Monday

DOUBT ON DECIMAL WINS ACQUITTAL

VANCOUVER (CP) — Clarence Johnston of Vancouver was acquitted in provincial court Thursday of theft of $445.50 from a city bank after Judge Jack McGivern said he could not be sure if the man was lying.

Court was told that Johnston wrote a withdrawl slip for $4.50 on Sept. 26. Teller Wendy Thomas said she didn't see the decimal point and gave Johnston $450, but he maintains she gave him only $4.50.

Thomas said when she found she was out the difference between the two amounts — $445.50 — she and another employee asked Johnston for the money. He denied ever having it so the bank charged him with theft.

In acquitting Johnston, Judge McGivern said he believed, "that Miss Thomas is probably telling me the truth and that you are probably lying to me."

"But on the evidence before me I can't be sure," he said. "So you get what's known as the benefit of the doubt."

Police Clueless In Grave Theft

CORSIER SUR VEVEY (AP) — Police say they have no clues to the grave robbers who stole Charlie Chaplin's body from a small, unguarded Swiss village cemetery two nights ago.

No ransom demand has been received, and they would not speculate on other possible motives for the theft.

Paul Germain, a municipal worker who helped at the Dec. 26 burial, said it would have taken four men to move the coffin. Police said marks on the ground indicated it had been dragged a short distance.

The thieves left the grave open, with the freshly dug earth mounded alongside. Mayor Ferdinand Volet said the hole apparently was discovered by visitors to the cemetery, but the police did not learn of the desecration until municipal worker Etienne Buenzod saw it and reported it Thursday afternoon.

The hole was filled in and was covered with fresh, flower-studded sod.

OTTAWA (CP) — Immigration Minister Bud Cullen has promised to inform the British Columbia government Monday whether he will allow an American citizen into the country to become manager of ICBC.

Cullen met officials of ICBC for more than an hour in his office today.

He said he will spend the weekend checking their information and inform the provincial government by 7 a.m. PST Monday.

The immigration department decided Monday it would not allow Robbie Sherrell into Canada to run ICBC. Immigration officials said they were not satisfied the firm had conducted an adequate search for a Canadian to manage the company.

Two days before his scheduled starting date, Sherrell was informed that the immigration department had rejected IBCB's sponsorship on his immigration application.

Three ICBC officials met Cullen today to attempt to persuade him they had conducted a thorough search in Canada and found no qualified candidate for the job.

"They did work for months to come up with a person," said Cullen, after the meeting.

A Public Hearing?

When is a public hearing not a public hearing?

That, at least, is the theory of Bryan Gates, the head of a provincial study committee on the future of the Cowichan estuary. It doesn't sit well with a large number of people from the Cowichan Valley, and no more should it.

A spokesman for the provincial environment ministry tried to explain that it was all a misunderstanding. The committee had never intended to hold hearings that the public could attend. "When we announced that there would be public hearings, we meant that any member of the public could present a brief to the task force. The presentations were to be made by appointment with the task force."

And that, he explained, meant individuals or groups could come in one at a time to meet. No group could listen to any other groups' presentation.

It's a strange rationale at best. What it doesn't explain — and what never has been satisfactorily explained — is what reason the committee has for insisting on this high degree of secrecy.

The people of the valley have presented several excellent arguments for open hearings, not the least of them being that they will have to live with whatever decision is made and therefore should be entitled to know what sort of evidence is being submitted to the study committee.

The committee has said only that it wouldn't want to "embarrass" those presenting briefs by making them do so in a public forum. That really means that they don't want to expose people to the natural checks and balances that come from a public process at which exponents of various views can present their ideas and answer questions.

The committee should also realize that it is only delaying the inevitable public hearing by its tactics, not stopping one permanently. The feelings about the estuary are so strong on both sides that neither will accept a defeat without knowing all the evidence on which it is based.

The in camera, fact-finding mission should become a truly public public hearing as soon as possible.

Causeway Chaos

Why is there in some quarters such a passion for strict order on the causeway that borders Victoria's Inner Harbor? Can it be the city's fading, though still strong, Anglo-Saxon heritage?

Why does just the thought of an itinerant ice cream vendor on a bicycle raise such horrible fears in the minds of some members of Victoria city council?

The topic reared its ugly head anew on Thursday as council's downtown development, tourism and licence committee discussed an application to set up a stall on the causeway renting out cameras to the tourists.

Ald. Ron McKenzie noted that the city is getting many applications for similar ventures, after a young Victorian's well-publicized arrest for selling ice cream from a tricycle. Where is council headed in this matter, he wondered?

Cassandra-like, Ald. Bill Tindall said: "Complete chaos."

It's nothing of the sort. Even an ice cream vendor, a girl selling Polish sausages in a bun and a sidewalk camera rental operation — plus the customary bus and wagon tours of the city and environs and whatever other hawkers are allowed to set up shop this summer — cannot detract from the causeway's charm. Rather, they enhance its lively, bustling atmosphere, which we should be encouraging instead of muttering "complete chaos" once a fortnight.

Thankfully, the negative attitude of city council towards tourist-oriented commercial ventures on the causeway seems to be ebbing, and there are more aldermen who recognize that it is more than just a sidewalk.

There are any number of illustrious and successful examples of what the causeway ought to be like — the Ponte Vecchio over the Arno River in Florence, a charming bridge with small shops lining both sides; the Rialto bridge in Venice; the street markets of London; the Pike Street market in Seattle, which is really just a glorified sidewalk.

Perhaps once a year Victoria could set up a London bridge style medieval fair along the causeway, to coincide with tourist season, of course.

Victoria's causeway could be a pleasure spot, attracting locals and visitors alike, if the city encouraged the instincts of those small entrepreneurs who keep pestering for permission to set up shop down there. Make it a bustling, vibrant spot. Now, some days the most exciting thing down there is watching the seagulls land on Captain Cook's statue.

An Insult

Re: the federal government's thumbs-down on Sherrell: it is an insult to the people of the province for Ottawa to tell us whom we can hire to administer ICBC when we know they would never dare tell the Quebecers whom they could hire. — Joe Percival, 522 Trutch Street.

Stupid Complaints

I note in the Feb. 22 edition of your paper that David Reilly, president of the James Bay Community Association is objecting to the proposed noon gun at Laurel Point on the grounds that many James Bay residents went through two world wars and do not want to be reminded of their experiences by hearing a cannon every noon.

Well, now! The First World War ended nearly 60 years ago, and the Second World War ended almost 33 years ago! Just how many James Bay residents, or residents of any other area for that matter, are going to be terribly upset at the sound of one solitary "boom" at noon each day! Does Mr. Reilly imply that every time there is a 21-gun salute from the causeway these poor souls dive under their beds for protection? If so, why haven't there been complaints about the unseemly celebration of the Queen's Birthday, or Armistice Day?

Why not complain that the occasional sound of blasting during building construction causes a violent attack of war horrors, or the sound of sirens send them diving for the air raid shelters?

It would seem that Mr. Reilly is just looking for something to complain about, and this is as good an opportunity as any other. Perhaps it would be a good idea to find out if similar complaints have ever been received about the noon firing of the gun in Ottawa, or the noon gun in Halifax, where, if he remembers, there was a major disaster during the First World War, but it apparently didn't set up any paranoid reaction to the noon gun. Complaints are sometimes justified, but how stupid can you get! — W. J. Plumpton, 1205 Clovelly Terrace.

Duncan Crux

I read in the Times on Feb. 18 that Duncan Crux, who was involved in the Commonwealth Trust Co. financial scandal in 1968, has been granted a provincial licence to sell real estate. He is still on parole and was licensed in August. Crux embezzled millions of dollars of investors and creditors. I am appalled that he is being allowed to deal in public financial operations again.

In 1968, when the story came out, I felt it was a disgraceful state of affairs. I recall it was only the persistence of the opposition party that brought out all the facts.

I feel that the granting of this licence should be reassessed, or at the very least Mr. Crux should be under close supervision. — Ms. Berta Schmidt, 765 Arden Road.

Moving Miracle

Now why wasn't I invited? Former mayors were there with their families and cameras. The owner's wife had on her cashmere coat. Local and not-so-local residents lined the street and boulevards. People hung from the balconies and roofs of neighboring apartments. Hotel guests took some sun from the veranda of the Georgian Suite and breakfast guests at the Tudor Dining Room were entertained by the waterfront activity. And why the gala turnout? Well, Monday morning was moving day for Miracle, Victoria's adopted killer whale.

At 10:30 a.m., Miracle was moved by helicopter from her temporary pool at the Oak Bay Beach Hotel to her new quarters in Sealand at the Oak Bay Marina. A troupe of wet-suited assistants under the direction of a Sealand-jacketed man with a clipboard, guided Miracle into a sling for the quarter-mile flight to her new home. During the loading operation a desk clerk from the hotel dropped his camera lens in the salt water, Paul Horn waited with poised flute case, press with and without press passes perched on the pool's edge, recorders, cameras and notebooks at the ready, spectators speculated on the whale's discomfort and confusion and two young girls tried to get on televison.

Carnival-like indeed was the sight of a tail-flapping whale slung at the end of a cable being helicoptered over the ocean with a land escort including a siren-escorted pickup truck full of divers, dashing spectators and more blue Sealand jackets and Oak Bay police uniforms than have ever been assembled in one place on a February Monday morning. The whale was settled into its new pool to a chorus of Glenlyon primary school footsteps beating a path to the edge of the marina seawall to watch, and a sigh of defeat from the police set to keep the crowd back.

So Sealand has another whale and the Oak Bay Beach Hotel has its swimming pool back. Miracle is in good health and we, the morning bike-riders and wool-jacketed breakfasters, haven't had such a time since the Social Credit nominating meeting or the Tea Party Parade. I suppose we were all invited and a good time was had by all. — Michael Costello, 2157 Cubbon Drive.

GERALD GODIN

Quebec Separation Is Just the Sixth Option

It is one of the ironies of the present situation in Quebec to see old mentors of the grand awakening of the French-Canadians, people like Douglas Fullerton, suddenly turning their guns against the very people who are, at long last, realizing the coming of age.

Maybe they think the pupils are going further than their swami would have liked them to go.

Fullerton was one of the men behind some of the feats of the Quiet Revolution, namely the nationalization of Quebec Hydro and the establishment of a competitor financial syndicate, alongside the A. E. Ames syndicate.

These were signs of things to come. Rene Levesque and Jacques Parizeau were the front-runners, but they used the expertise of men like Douglas Fullerton to achieve these goals, which were, in fact, blueprints for future development.

I learned these facts from Fullerton's recent book, The Dangerous Delusion. What I knew about him was mainly the role he played not long ago in the BAREM (Bureau d'Amenagement du Reseau Express de Montreal).

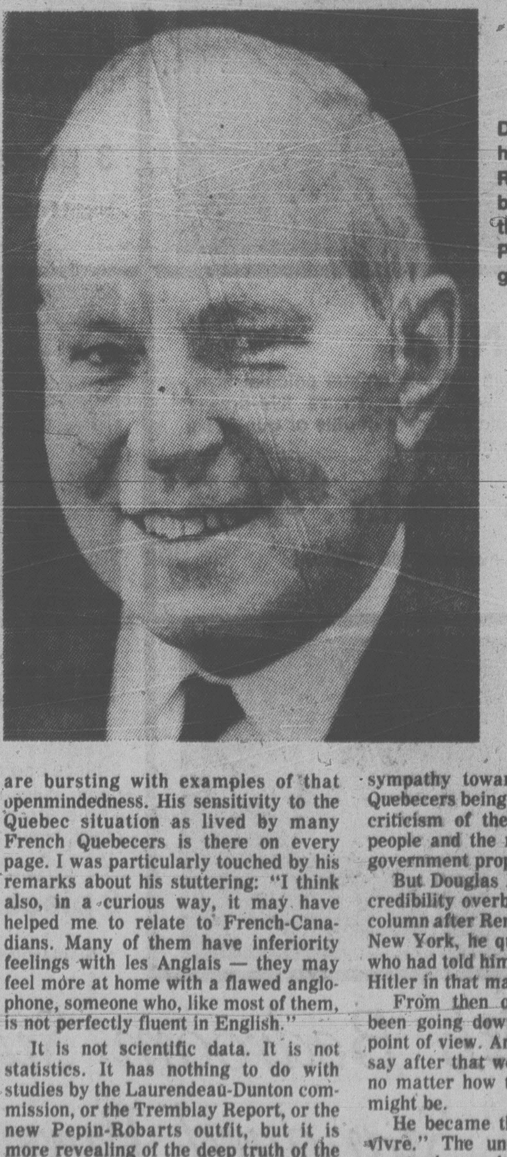
He had then the courage to criticize the Drapeau administration's handling of subway planning and expenses. He stood up against the mayor's complacency, paternalism and contempt for anyone who does not share his view.

Became Policymaker

He was a part, a very important part, in fact, of the Quebec intellectual landscape. And since he was rather sympathetic towards the broad goals of Quebec, and since he was not identified with the establishment and the status quo gnomes of what Murray G. Ballantyne used to call "the square mile," he became one of the policy-makers in Quebec.

It made him, in fact, a very special kind of Anglo-Quebecer. In a way, he was also, all by himself, a sign of things to come, as I saw the other day at a Participation-Quebec meeting: Anglo-Quebecers in love with Quebec and ready to say: I am a Quebecer first and a Canadian after — people made of the wood with which the Quebec of tomorrow will be built. And I would dare say: with which the Canada of tomorrow will be made. People who pawned their rigidity somewhere on Craig Street, where a man like Pierre Trudeau should pawn some of his frozen notions. Though he would not get much for these . . . unless as antiques.

The first chapters in Fullerton's book



DOUG FULLERTON: helped the Quiet Revolution in 1960s but now he opposes the 'holy war' of Parti Quebecois government are bursting with examples of that openmindedness. His sensitivity to the Quebec situation as lived by many French Quebecers is there on every page. I was particularly touched by his remarks about his stuttering: "I think also, in a curious way, it may have helped me to relate to French-Canadians. Many of them have inferiority feelings with les Anglais — they may feel more at home with a flawed anglophone, someone who, like most of them, is not perfectly fluent in English."

It is not scientific data. It is not statistics. It has nothing to do with studies by the Laurendeau-Dunton commission, or the Tremblay Report, or the new Pepin-Robarts outfit, but it is more revealing of the deep truth of the relationships between what is not, in my mind the Two Solitudes (Tell me, does Hugh MacLennan speak French?), but rather, the Two Siamese Twins, bound together but so very different.

A remark like Fullerton's epitomizes what I see as an expression of empathy, a sentiment which is probably not so rare after all, but which is rarely expressed by our very shy friends, the Anglo-Quebecers. Let us call it natural warmth.

My highest hopes would have been to see a sharp mind like his, with all sympathy towards the aspirations of Quebecers being applied to constructive criticism of the goals of the Quebec people and the road that the Pequiste government proposes to get there.

But Douglas Fullerton threw all his credibility overboard when, in his first column after Rene Levesque's speech in New York, he quoted some Americans who had told him: "There is a potential Hitler in that man."

From then on, his credibility has been going down the drain, from our point of view. And everything he might say after that would not be listened to, no matter how true or well-founded it might be.

He became the guest "sans savoir-vivre." The undelicate. The kind of guest who would not be invited again. The guest on the blacklist, because he does not behave. We miss him a lot; we say it is too bad we do not see him any more, but what else can be done, since he was so insulting that night. Do you remember?

He had his doubts about quoting these irrelevant remarks and he checked with one of his friends to reassure himself. Of all people, it was Claude Ryan. And Ryan told him that, yes, he should quote that, it was relevant, and so forth. Ryan, at long last is no longer in his disguise as the objective pundit, but in his true garb of politician, just like you and me.

From then on, I guess, the process continued. He would see less and less of people like Denis de Belleval, his right-hand man at BAREM, and now a minister in the Levesque cabinet. My feeling is that he lost touch with some of the Quebecers one has to see to keep posted on what the government is really after, and on the thinking behind this or that legislation.

And because of that, he started to see everything the Quebec government did as parts of a ploy to destroy the English minority, or to chase them away so as to make sure there are fewer no votes in the referendum. A sick interpretation of facts. In a word: paranoia.

Bill 101 is the thing which inflamed him.

I will not again rerun all the thinking behind Bill 101. Let us say it was designed mainly to restore the language of the Quebec majority in such a way, that it would slowly help erase the "inferiority feelings" Fullerton himself so acutely evoked in his book.

In his mind, and I quote, "a gigantic propaganda campaign" is going on in Quebec, "well-directed and orchestrated." The fact is we have an aim, just like any government has, and we are pursuing that aim even if we now are the government. The funny thing is nobody doubted we were pursuing that aim until Nov. 15, 1976.

We never hid our goals: they are in our platform. We promised we would have a referendum before the next provincial election and we are going to have one. We are using all means we can put our hands on to convince the people of Quebec that they would be better off under sovereignty-association than they are under the Canadian federation. Nothing new there.

He writes that "separation" (and not "sovereignty-association") is an "emotional obsession" when in fact it is mainly the repatriation to Quebec of the taxation powers vested in federal hands in 1867, mainly because then, most of the Quebec Fathers of Confederation thought Confederation was worth a fair try and also because, at the conference table, they were a minority and were bound, like any minority in any negotiation, to make some compromises.

The referendum, from a political point of view, tends to undo some of the things accepted in 1864 in the Quebec debates about the sharing of powers between the central government and the province of Quebec. That is simply because most Quebecers, I hope, now think their provincial government would be the one most likely to solve the economic, structural and social problems which confront them.

It is merely a transfer of power from a government in which we will always be a minority, to the one government on earth in which we, as a nation, are a majority.

I do not see anything emotional in that. It is rather based on simple logic. That there are emotional overtones is a fact, but no more than in some federal speeches about the Pequistes "taking out the heart" of Canada.

After having tried Confederation for 113 years, we now want to try another formula which will, after all, simply be the sixth formula put to the test by citizens of Quebec and Canada in three centuries. In chronological order they were: French rule, British rule, the Quebec Act arrangement, the Lower and Upper Canada scheme, the Act of Union scheme and since 1867, the BNA Act scheme.

Fullerton describes this process as a "holy war." And, along the road, he promises hell to Quebecers: "What about a referendum environment in which the province is approaching an economic breakdown, a state of chaos?" . . . "And finally, what about the possible exploitation of chaos by unscrupulous, authoritarian-minded leaders to seize absolute power without reference to the people's will?"

Another Formula

The authoritarian leader is not named, but when you remember the "potential Hitler" remarks, you now see clearly his catastrophic scenario: a repetition of the final solution designed by the sickest minds in the history of mankind, during the Second World War.

Come now, Mr. Fullerton, do you really think there is any substance in your scenario? If you really think so, you probably need some rest.

And in any case, this is not a time for inflammatory statements or scenarios like yours, but rather a time for reasoning between adults and mature people. The relationship between Canada and Quebec and between the English and French in both parts of the country if the people of Quebec votes yes at the referendm, will have to be based on facts and not on nutty scenarios. There used to be a group of people drawing up scenarios like these in the "inner sanctum" of an American president not so long ago. You know what happened to all of them, including the president himself. Because they had lost touch with reality, reality got them in the end.

Their only benefit is that they will sell a lot of books, just like you maybe, Mr. Fullerton. But whay good will it be to Quebec and Canada? Not much.

Hard Times for Sweden

C. H. VON PLATEN
The Times of London

Economic facts of life
Catch up to world's
High-living welfare state

Not much left for Stockholm shoppers after tax bite

Sweden remained neutral during the two Great Wars. Indeed, it has enjoyed peace since 1814. Spared the ravages of wars and invasions, the country had rare and favorable conditions for achieving prosperity. It did.

Aided by the long peace; rich in deposits of high-grade iron ore; having vast forests serving as a base for a profitable paper and pulp industry; abundant water power; a hardworking and unfrivolous population; industrial leaders fostered in the harsh and unforgiving climate of free enterprise and merciless international competition and, for close on half a century, a succession of social democratic governments which, for a considerable time, showed skill, moderation, and wisdom, Sweden achieved one of the highest living standards in the world.

But the fair weather eventually ended and the storm burst in 1975-76. The Swedish balance of payments became unfavorable, exports waned and the standard of living stagnated. What were the reasons?

The answer seems to be that the international recession played a part, but that a number of trends combined to create an entirely new situation. Swedish exports of iron ore no longer fetch the prices they used to. Cheaper, higher-quality ore is now available in other parts of the world. The demand for paper, pulp, and timber has fallen, though this may be a transitional phenomenon.

Sweden used to be one of the world's largest shipbuilders. But the demand for ships in general, and tankers in particular, has fallen and the shipbuilding industry is severely hit.

The turn of the tide here was the oil crisis, which has had some extremely severe consequences. Sweden now imports 30 million tons a year. The cost is around 11.5 billion crowns, nearly 8 billion crowns more than would have been the case had the pre-1972 prices prevailed.

Sweden has to export more, or import less now, after the oil price explosion, or borrow, which is what it actually does.

The impact of these negative factors has been strengthened by increased competition from new or reconstructed industries in Europe, Japan, and in a number of developing countries.

All these economic facts were perhaps unavoidable. They are, however, not the sole explanation, for Sweden has managed to produce a number of home-bred problems of mainly political origin.

The socialists reigned for 44 years. Gradually they became blessed with a divine conviction of their own infallibility. What was good for the Social Democratic Party was supposed to be good for Sweden. Smugness set in, as the great leaders of the early years of struggle and victory vanished from the scene.

To stay in power, the socialists had to resort to increasingly extravagant promises, particularly in the field of social welfare. At the beginning of socialist rule in Sweden — and I believe this holds true for many countries — a normal increase in productivity and wages could be supplemented or even accelerated by some redistribution of income, improved social welfare and medical aid. This bonanza apparently had to dry up at some point.

Taxes rose to astronomical levels as social security and other public expense increased. In 1977 the "tax-equinox" was August 4. Up till that date all went to the state. What was earned in the remaining five months, minus four days, was le beau reste, for individuals and corporations. The capacity to pay was curtailed by a fall in productivity, largely due to a spate of new regulations, particularly in the field of industrial relations.

The trade unions had the extravagant idea of creating workers' funds by taking over — free of charge — huge sections of industrial ownership; the side-effects of such ambitions and of heavy taxation, as well as the immoderate rise in marginal taxes and the psychological chain-reactions of hopes and ideas of a brave new world of unassailable equality; constant increases in pay, leisure, and welfare, and a rapidly diminishing need to work and save — all of this contributed to the economic decline of the Swedish welfare state.

The 60 per cent of the total national income that the government and local authorities have at their disposal has, obviously, facilitated a vast welfare program and waste.

There has been a constant increase in public sector employment. In 1977 it reached 1.4 million people, out of a total of 3.8 million actively employed — a super-dose of bureaucracy sapping the vitality and resources of productive enterprise.

Public expenditure for health — a "heavy" item — increased to nearly seven per cent of the gross domestic product. Total health expenditure in Sweden is now roughly 7.5 per cent, or at about the same as that of the United States.

But in the U.S. only three per cent of it is public expenditure. Another comparison: total expenditure on health in Switzerland is around five per cent, but public expenditure only around 3.5 per cent.

With productivity lagging, rapid increases in wages, rising social costs, a heavier tax burden on individuals and industry, and deteriorating terms of trade, Sweden has gradually priced itself out of the world market in a number of important sectors.

The situation was further aggravated by the fatal blunder committed in 1973 to tie the Swedish crown to the German mark. Exports suffered, imports increased and one industry after another has had to resort to the government for loans and subsidies to maintain employment.

Some 10 billion crowns a year are distributed in the form of subsidies to money-losing state enterprises and industries for this purpose.

The fight for socialist survival also had repecussions on the foreign policy of Sweden, which should be kept in a low key, be carried out with a certain dignity, and appear morally and intellectually honest. This is the line Sweden has tried to follow during its long period of peace.

But a change took place during the last decade of socialist government. Foreign policy became increasingly a tool of domestic politics, a means of strengthening the social democratic power machine. With commendable rectitude, dictatorships and right-wing regimes were condemned.

Far less was said about the terrors of left-wing governments, and countries like Cuba were considered worthy of receiving Swedish aid.

In spite of all socialist promises, propaganda and pressure, the verdict of the electorate was clear; and socialist rule could eventually only be maintained through communist support. In the 1976 election, the socialists lost and a centre, Conservative Liberal coalition took over. Rarely has a government started its term of office under less auspicious circumstances and in a now hostile climate, by the left-orientated radio and television.

- The absence — mainly due to the inordinately high tax burden — of sufficient incentives to work more for more pay (unwillingness to move to new locations for better jobs, the incredible statistics of absenteeism);
- The relative structural petrification of Swedish industry at a time when change and adaptation to new conditions (primarily new competitive forces in world markets) are clearly called for;
- The waste and inefficiency of a state apparatus absorbing around 60 per cent of current income (for example unnecessary waste in medical aid and state-owned industries, in education and transfer payments), a wage level out of tune with world economic realities.

Undoubtedly, Sweden will go through some difficult years, but the country is rich, the people are fundamentally sound, hardworking and pragmatic. The trade unions have a tradition of strength and dignity, and ultimately a sound approach. Many national virtues were forgotten in the past five to ten years. But common sense may return.

The biggest party, the Social Democratic Party, obviously has to play a constructive role, even in opposition. The party needs a leadership bent not upon tactical manoeuvring, but upon the guidance of a statesman of courage, character and common sense.

Such a change is, unfortunately, not in sight. The quality of the present centre Conservative-Liberal government is on the whole high, and provided that it has enough time — which means more than one three-year period in office — there is every reason to believe that Sweden eventually will regain her place as one of the better governed, more fortunate, more prosperous countries of the world.

The Housewife as Hero

By PHILIP FELIG

(Felig is medical professor at Yale University. He wrote this for the New York Times)

The rise of feminism in recent years has increased everyone's awareness of women's right to achieve equal-employment opportunities. For some women who have chosen to remain full-time housewives, however, the effect has been to diminish their feelings of accomplishment and satisfaction in what has become an unpopular style of life.

In fact, housewives are beginning to speak out about the need for society and, in particular, other women to recognize that one needn't abandon full-time homemaking to be productive and happy. Thrust temporarily into the role of homemaker during my wife's recent trip abroad, I learned to appreciate more directly the duties and satisfactions that housewives experience daily.

First, work that I had taken for granted and had never done (meal preparation, kitchen clean-up, laundry), I quickly recognized would not be done unless I did it. Second, being a good parent required more than a cheery smile and willingness to help with the homework — it meant car pools, making sure snacks were taken and gloves were worn and that someone was available when our youngest son came home from school. Third, my day was not done until each of our three children was in bed and no one was left to mess my spotless kitchen (I really became compulsive about cleaning up after meals).

Initially, it all seemed like an endless succession of tedious details. Yet I soon recognized that without me the family wouldn't run smoothly. It was I who provided a pleasant environment to which the children returned from school and to which I returned from my office. What I did as homemaker seemed far more meaningful to the family's existence than the income I was providing.

Clearly, our daily happiness depended less on the size of my paycheque than on my wife's efficiency.

The most striking insight, however, was neither the extent of the housewife's responsibilities nor their significance, but rather the nature of the satisfactions that she must expect.

There were no grateful patients thanking me for keeping a clean kitchen. No applause from a large lecture hall after making certain the children left happily for school. No praise from a professional colleague for having kept up with the laundry. In short, my reward was entirely from within. I knew I was doing well because the children and I were happy and our needs were met, but there was no outside recognition of that achievement.

I wondered how rewarding my professional life would be if there was no outside recognition. All of us have come to depend upon and expect clearly expressed awareness of accomplishment in the form of promotions, good reviews, election to professional societies, gratitude from patients and clients and, of course, raises. I'm sure that only a very small group of idealists would be left to toil if all of these rewards vanished.

Yet for the housewife it is rare that her effectiveness is truly recognized — perhaps on a birthday or anniversary. To spend a lifetime of accomplishment with so few external rewards requires a very strong personality that derives its satisfactions from the achievements of other members of the family.

Society clearly has been unfair to women but not solely for the reasons claimed by feminists. Women should be given the opportunity to choose their own destiny, but our greatest failing has been in not recognizing those women who spend their lives solely doing and caring for others — in silence.

California Dreaming

russell baker

Profile of an American statesman composed after reading 107 reports published by political correspondents who have made the pilgrimage to California.

☐

Jerry Brown is new and refresing. He is into space and sleeps on the floor. He is accessible to everyone. Some days when people come to see him, he insults them; other days, he takes them out for spaghetti. As governor of California he has built an astonishing political following by keeping everybody guessing what he will do next.

One day when a big delegation of livestock breeders came to complain to him about the smog's dispiriting effect on their bulls mating impulses, Jerry Brown delighted them by playing them Wagner's "Parsifal" in its entirety on his home stereo.

* * *

What enchanted the breeders was the poor quality of sound reproduction in the governor's woofer. Here is one of the secrets of Jerry Brown's political success. Other governors flaunt the best stereo equipment money can buy. Not Jerry Brown. If you want to hear "Parsifal" at Jerry Brown's you hear it through a bad woofer, just the way Jerry Brown hears it, and not the way some ordinary materialistic governor with distorted spiritual values would play it for you.

Jerry Brown hates materialism. This is why he refused to live in the governor's mansion and rented a small pad and sleeps on the floor. Once when his mother came for a visit, Jerry Brown made her sleep on a bed of nails. At the White House Jimmy Carter's political strategists are still climbing the wall about that, because when Jimmy Carter's mother comes to the White House, he lets her sleep on an innerspring mattress.

The Carter people sense that America is bored with the same old conventional politics producing the same old presidents letting the same old mothers sleep on the same old innerspring mattresses. They lie awake nights in dread that Jerry Brown will run for president in 1980 by campaigning across the country accompanied by a mother tossing fitfully on a bed of nails.

When this idea is broached to Jerry Brown, he simply laughs or simply broods. This is another secret of the governor's phenomenal political success. You never know whether he is going to laugh or brood. Once, he went on television and brooded for seven consecutive minutes. The voters loved it. His popularity polls soared and the faculty of the University of California invited him to come brood with them in a three-hour meeting to ponder the future of education.

Jerry Brown delighted all of them when he refused to brood and even refused to laugh, but told them there was more truth in the music of Linda Ronstadt than in all of Plato. Afterward he addressed the State Legislature in flawless Ciceronian Latin, a tongue he is fond of using on official occasions because of his great respect for the Romans' contributions to the art of government.

None of the tired old political labels sit easily on Jerry Brown. He is neither liberal, nor conservative, nor middle-of-the-road, and he believes in neither big government nor small government. In fact, he is usually amused when somebody tries to talk with him about government, although sometimes he is merely bored.

In his bored mood he may dash out of his pad, get into his old jalopy and go dancing or drive up into the Sierra Mountains and think about Aeschylus or the psychic connections between the 18th-century Enlightenment and "Laverne and Shirley." Returning from his meditations, he invariably finds swarms of political correspondents from Washington hovering outside his pad with the same tired old questions about his presidential ambitions.

* * *

His answers are never predictable. Sometimes he upbraids the correspondents for asking stupid questions. Other times he replies with thoughtful philosophic courtesy, observing that there may be more political wisdom in "Laverne and Shirley" than in Arthur Schlesinger and Hamilton Jordan put together.

Then again, depending upon the image he is cultivating that week, he may pack them all into his jalopy and take them for hamburgers and a long discussion of the importance of outer space to humanity's spiritual future.

No wonder the Carter people fear a 1980 challenge from this new, refreshing, umpredictable dynamo from the golden Pacific shore. He is so different, so new, so refreshing, so unpredictable, so new, so refreshing, so — well — so new.

Acquittal Ruled in Stabbing

A 33-year-old North Saanich man was acquitted Thursday by an assize jury of manslaughter in the stabbing death Dec. 18 of James Struik, 23.

Mr. Justice Richard Anderson directed the jury that there was no evidence on which it could conclude there was second degree murder — the charge laid against Ervin Ray Beebe — and that the alternatives were manslaughter or not guilty.

The jury deliberated 45 minutes, returning to the courtroom only once to hear again the Criminal Code definition of self-defence.

After the verdict, Beebe thanked his lawyers, David Wilson and Scott Marshall, and the jury of seven women and five men.

Court was told during the four-day trial that Beebe had an argument with Helmut (Ham) Gruber at the Golden Bear tavern in Sidney over whose turn it was at the pool table.

A little later, Gruber chased after Beebe outside the tavern. Struik ran from the tavern, grabbed and punched Beebe, during which Beebe struck him with a knife. Gruber weighed 260 pounds and Struik 204 pounds.

Struik died from a stab wound to the heart, which caused the loss of almost half his blood, and also suffered a wound in the groin and his lower leg.

In his address to the jury, Anderson quoted from two English courts about the doctrine of reasonable doubt.

"What is very, very important in this case is that there may be two or more rational conclusions you can draw from the evidence. And if you find one favors the accused, you must acquit," he said.

The "real issue" in the case was that the prosecution must prove that the force used by Beebe was excessive and that Beebe did not have an honest belief, based on reasonable grounds, to use the force he did.

The state of mind of Beebe at the time was "all important. You may well ask, what other means did the accused have to (stop) an excessive beating? What was he to do? Was it excessive use of force when being beaten by a 200-pound man to use a knife?"

He said the theory of the prosecution was that Beebe was angry, he could have driven away, but he returned to the tavern knowing there would be trouble. He kept on taunting Gruber and at all times had a knife in his pocket and opened it after jumping over a fence.

If this was so, he said, Beebe couldn't have had an honest belief it was necessary to use the knife for his protection.

The defence theory was that the prosecution had not proved beyond a reasonable doubt that Beebe had used excessive force and that when a 200-pound man is beating you, you are entitled to use a knife.

The defence also said Beebe had proved his own innocence, that he was being badly beaten, and the only way he could stop a further beating was to use the knife and he did use the knife to defend himself.

'Lunch' Costly

Crown counsel Nicholas Lang told the court Lenow was spotted by Saanich police walking in the 3600-block Douglas at about 10 a.m. Feb. 17. Officers went up to Lenow and asked him what he had in the brown bag he was carrying.

"My lunch," Lenow was reported to have replied.

Upon checking the bag, Lang said, officers found two "baggies" of marijuana.

Ostler noted that it was rather a large amount.

Before The Judge

Three days have been set aside next month in provincial court for the preliminary hearing into a charge of second-degree murder.

David Arthur Cathers, 20, appeared Thursday, less than an hour after Mr. Justice E. Davey Fulton of the B.C. Supreme Court set bail at $10,000.

Cathers, represented by Leo McGrady of Vancouver, is charged with the Feb. 15 bludgeoning death of 20-year-old Gerhardt Malcolm Kirmshe, 587 Birch, at 11091 West Saanich Road, where Cathers had been a guest for three weeks.

Crown counsel Nicholas Lang told Judge William Ostler three days will be required for the hearing and April 10 to 12 were set.

Cathers' bail hearing began Wednesday and was adjourned until Thursday for decision by Fulton.

A 27-year-old who led police on a 10-block, high-speed chase early Thursday morning received three, concurrent, one-month jail sentences.

Allan Gene Hollinger, no fixed address, pleaded guilty to dangerous driving, driving while suspended and driving without valid insurance. A charge of driving with a blood-alcohol content over .08 was withdrawn by Lang, who informed the court there could not be convictions on both dangerous driving and driving with a blood-alcohol content over .08 on the same set of circumstances.

Lang told the court Hollinger was spotted at about 12:30 a.m. heading north on Douglas at about 80 kmh by an unmarked, Saanich police car. The chase reached speeds of 110 kmh before Hollinger's vehicle stopped in front of 565 Dumeresq. Hollinger ran a short distance before being captured by Saanich police, Lang said.

Lang said Hollinger was convicted March 11, 1977, in Victoria of impaired driving and was fined $450 and was convicted June 7, 1977, in Parksville of impaired driving and driving while disqualified and was fined $750 and $150, respectively.

* * *

Ostler ordered pre-sentence reports and remanded two men until March 30 after they pleaded guilty to a Feb. 26 break-in at Avis Rent-A-Truck, 1420 Quadra.

Edward Antonio Boldo, 20, of 611 Admirals, and Donald Gordon McDonald, 17, of 310 Roberts, were released on their own recognizance in the sum of $500 and ordered not to communicate with each other.

Court was told both men and a juvenile were spotted at McDonald's Restaurant, 980 Pandora, where Boldo was seen handing the combination of a safe to one of the others. Lang said McDonald and the juvenile kicked in a window at the business premise and ran away for 15 minutes. They returned and opened the safe, taking $1,287. They took the money bag and threw it into the water at the end of Roberts Street, Lang said.

Lang also said the police recovered $1,061.90 of the loot.

* * *

Ostler also granted bail to only one of two teen-agers who appeared on a Feb. 25 break-in charge at Mais Furniture, 1821 Cook, and possession of stolen furniture and home appliances.

Bail was granted to 18-year-old Kelly Norman Lambert while 17-year-old Bernard John Strating was denied bail and remanded in custody until today when an election is expected to be made and a preliminary hearing date set.

Charged with Lambert and Strating is 19-year-old David William Holst who was denied bail Wednesday.

Lambert was ordered not to associate with his two co-accused nor to be in the vicinity of 1115 Caledonia where the three had lived prior to their arrest. He was also ordered to obey a daily 10:30 p.m. curfew during his release and to live with his parents at 2844 Rockwell.

Ostler granted no-publication applications made on behalf of Lambert and Strating by legal-aid lawyer Jasper Bomhof.

Pollution Charge Fails

The firm was accused of piling debris near Cowichan Bay where fish might be endangered.

Judge Lance Heard, in a written judgment Wednesday, dismissed a charge laid under section 33(3) of the federal Fisheries Act after a fisheries inspection officer visted Westcan's Tzouhalem Road lumber terminal last July.

Other offending material was described as stumps, slash and debris.

Bob Hutchinson, counsel for the firm, argued the charge included at least three prohibited activities — logging, lumbering and land clearing — without specifying which was being carried on.

He said the effect of the law is to regulate these activities rather than fishing. It was also pointed out that the terminal lies between two log booming grounds, a potential source of undesirable debris, and further that it was unlikely any dunnage would get into the bay during the normally dry season.

ARTS FUNDING GROUP EYED

The formation of a special inter-municipal body to develop a policy for the allocation of funds to arts organizations was endorsed Thursday by Victoria city council's cultural development committee.

The special arts committee was part of a proposal put forward jointly by the Professional Arts Council of Victoria and the Victoria Community Arts Council.

The first part of the proposal, which was that a set percentage of the municipal budget be allocated to arts annually, was rejected.

Ald. William Tindall said the city had recently asked the Greater Victoria Intermunicipal Committee that one mill be allocated for arts grants, but that request was denied.

He said if the city couldn't win support for that proposal there was little chance that the art organizations could.

Auto Rams Bridge

A 36-year-old Esquimalt woman was to be charged with impaired driving after her new station wagon struck Johnson Street bridge girders and was demolished shortly after 11:30 Thursday night.

City police said the eastbound car apparently crossed over the centreline and hit the west side of the bridge, bending two steel girders. The woman was unhurt.

Damage to the car was estimated at $4,000, and to the bridge $500.

At 12:18 a.m. two cars collided at Bay and Government, causing one to veer off and shear a wooden hydro pole on Government south of Bay. There were no injuries, but damage was estimated at $850.

One car left the scene and was traced by police who said a man is to be summoned for failing to remain at an accident.

A concrete street planter was smashed when a car driven by Glenn Davies, 20, of 565 Mountfield, struck it after running on to the mall at Government and View at 3 a.m. Damage to the car was estimated at $500.

Dual Listings Ignored

Little interest has been shown for dual listings for couples in telephone directories, a B.C. Telephone Co. spokesman said Thursday.

Last August, B.C. Tel agreed to permit dual listings, such as "Smith, John — Mary," along with home address and phone number for $11.

"No longer will the identity of the wife be obliterated," said Vancouver East NDP MLA Alex Macdonald at the time.

Macdonald hailed the move as a small step toward women's liberation.

But six months later, the company is convinced that women don't care.

"We had 805 requests for it in over a million listings," said company spokesman Keith Matthews.

Ducks Before Cars Urged

At least that's the way William G. Firth, of 201 Douglas sees it, and Thursday in a letter to council's parks and recreation committee he asked that automobiles be banned from Beacon Hill.

"Let's kick the cars out," he wrote.

Firth said he realised his wasn't a new proposal.

"There is more reason now because of the increased omnipresence of the roaring, smelling, killing motor vehicle in our society than ever before."

"It would be much healthier for the people and the ducks would just love it."

Ducks, he said, are sometimes run flat by cars and on one occasion he saw an auto drive right through a clutch of webb-footed pedestrians, killing one and breaking the wings of several others.

The parks and recreation committee considered Frith's letter but rejected his proposal.

Committee member Ald. Ron McKenzie said that without car access many people, such as those confined to wheelchairs, would not be able to get into the park.

Crystal Face-Lift Settled

Renovation work that's designed to pull crowds back to the Crystal Pool will start this spring, but without the solarium that was originally planned.

The solarium, a facility with heat and health lamps, may be added at a later date.

Victoria city council's parks and recreation committee Thursday approved plans put forward by committee chairman Ald. Robin Blencoe that would see an estimated $185,000 spent on improvements to the foyer, exercise area, lounge, offices and meeting rooms.

An additional $62,000 in improvements were approved last year to cover costs of installing a sauna, swirlpool, underwater speakers and sophisticated electronic timing equipment for clocking races.

All work is scheduled to begin April 1 and the pool will be closed for at least six weeks.

Total cost of improvements are estimated at $247,000 but Blencoe said all estimates were likely on the high side. The timing equipment, for example, was estimated at around $55,000 but is to cost only $36,725.

In addition the city hopes to recover about $82,000 in a contribution from the provincial government.

Blencoe defended the expenditures saying that they're necessary if the city wants to draw people back to the Crystal. Since the opening of the popular Oak Bay Recreation Centre the Crystal has been under-used.

Blencoe feels the improvements will encourage a much greater use of the facility.

CAUSEWAY CHAOS AHEAD —TINDALL

That's the way Ald. Bill Tindall describes the proliferation of tourist-oriented businesses on Government in front of The Empress.

City council's downtown economic development, tourism and business licensing committee Thursday gave the nod to an applicant who wanted to open a stall on the Causeway renting cameras so tourists can shoot the Tall Ships.

"We're getting a lot of applications," said a concerned Ald. Ron McKenzie. "Where are we going?"

"Complete chaos, Ald. McKenzie," replied committee chairman Tindall.

Tindall warned the committee, which recently approved an application to sell hot sausages on the Causeway, that more and more business applications can be expected.

"Let's face it, it's already a heavy tourist area," said Ald. Robin Blencoe.

Blencoe Plan Sunk

Victoria aldermen should all have a special budget for publishing and publicly distributing any reports they prepare in the line of duty, says Ald. Robin Blencoe.

But when he presented that argument to council's finance committee Thursday he found himself without support and forced to withdraw his proposal.

Blencoe, who recently took money out of his own pocket to pay for the printing of a report on team policing, said the present system allows a majority on council to discourage the publishing of any report they don't like.

Aldermen now must bring their reports to committee, or directly to council, and win approval to have the document printed by city hall if they want to avoid getting stuck with the bills.

"I don't think that's healthy," said Blencoe. "There has to be an allowance for aldermen to write reports that are against the general viewpoint of council."

But other committee members disagreed.

"I think you're just creating a problem for yourself," said Ald. Murray Glazier.

Glazier said all Blencoe has to do is bring his report to council, in a brown paper wrapper if he wants, and ask for a specific amount of money to have it printed.

"That's fine," replied Blencoe, "but I don't think that that's what's going to happen."

He said he felt aldermen would want to read the report and if there was some basic political or philosophical viewpoint that they opposed, then they would try to see it did not go out.

Ald. Ron McKenzie said he opposed the proposal for individual printing budgets because all reports should be dealt with individually. Ald. Bill Tindall also was against the suggestion, saying he thought it could lead to aldermen printing up election material.

Tindall said Blencoe should withdraw his proposal and not bring it back to committee until he had specific recommendations to make as to the monetary amounts to be set aside for each alderman.

Blencoe, in the face of united opposition from other committee members, agreed.

The new Chevrolet Malibu.
Everything we've said in our ads is true.
But you've got to drive it to believe it.

We're asking you to swallow a lot. The new standard Malibu, compared to last year, is over 600 pounds lighter, almost 18 inches shorter. And yet many important interior dimensions are larger. Such progress is hard to believe until you've experienced the car.

So we're issuing an invitation. Come in to your Chevrolet dealer. Take a test drive. Check the back seat and check the front. No tape measure needed; your own sense of comfort tells you that General Motors advanced technology has indeed created a car that is bigger inside, smaller outside. As a matter of fact, rear seat hiproom in the 4-door Malibu sedan is as wide as in the full-size Chevrolet sedan.

And now that we've got you on the road, feel the ride. Instead of concentrating on the length, we've concentrated on the suspension. As a result the new Malibu gives you the ride qualities you associate with cars of a longer wheelbase.

Even the trunk will amaze you. Helped in part by GM's new compact spare tire, it actually offers more cubic feet of space than last year. Usable space, too. Deep enough for large pieces of luggage or grocery bags.

The dash is divided into functional sections that can be removed for easier servicing. A two-level power ventilation system allows you to select cool air for face level, and warm air at foot level. It combines with new rear vent windows that swing open to draw fresh air through the car, even when stopped.

Standard equipment on Malibu is a compact V-6 which, with less weight to pull, can mean better fuel economy. A compact V-6 engine with available automatic transmission that on the Coupe and Sedan delivers 38 km/gal. city, 54 km/gal. highway, 44 km/gal. combined based on approved Transport Canada test methods. (Remember these fuel economy figures are estimates which may be subject to revision. The actual fuel economy you get will vary depending on the driving you do, your driving habits, your car's condition, and available equipment.)

We began by asking you not to believe our ads until you drove our cars. So drive the new Malibu now. Because after you've tried it, we think you will be the best advertisement we've got.

Buying or leasing? See your Chevrolet Dealer soon.

Toronto

TORONTO (CP) — A surge in oil issues sent the Toronto stock market moderately higher.

A trading halt was issued about 11 a.m. in shares of Combined Metal Mines Ltd. at the company's request pending an announcement. In earlier trading, it gained six cents to 21 cents a share on the sale of 58,000 shares.

Among industrials, Allarco Developments climbed ⅞ to $20, Home Oil A ¾ to $38¾, Westcoast Petroleum ¾ to $11⅜, Bow Valley Industries ½ to $22⅞ and Dome Petroleum ½ to $57⅜.

Canada Packers C fell ⅜ to $19⅞, Reichhold Ltd. ¼ to $9½, Resource Service Group five cents to $1.95, Agra Industries A ⅛ to $5½ and Abitibi Paper ⅛ to $11⅜.

Denison Mines rose ½ to $59¾, Gibraltar 10 cents to $3.50 and Falconbridge Copper five cents to $2.90.

Montreal

MONTREAL (CP) — Prices were generally higher in moderate afternoon trading on the Montreal Stock Exchange.

Volume at 2:30 p.m. EST was 272,100 shares, compared with 294,200 shares traded up to the same time Thursday.

Toronto Dominion Bank climbed ⅜ to $17⅝, The Investors Group A ¼ to $9¼, Royal Bank ⅜ to $28⅛, Bank of Montreal ⅛ to $18⅝ and Bell Canada ⅛ to $55. Inco A dipped ⅛ to $15¼, Alcan ⅛ to $25½ and Moore Corp. ¼ to $33¼.

New York

NEW YORK (AP) — Stock prices were mixed after news of another wide U.S. trade deficit blunted an early advance.

NYSE volume totaled 13.71 million shares as of mid-afternoon.

For the second straight day the dollar generally posted gains in foreign exchange. But brokers said traders still seemed doubtful that the U.S. currency was ready to stage any significant recovery.

Today the stock market and the dollar were faced with the news of another large U.S. trade deficit. The commerce department reported at the opening that the nation's imports exceeded exports by $2.38 billion in January.

United Nuclear climbed 2¾ to $36⅜. A New Mexico judge ruled in favor of the company in an action it brought against General Atomic Co. involving uranium pricing.

Getty Oil, which proposed a 4-for-1 stock split and raised its dividend, jumped 8½ to $162.

London

LONDON (CP) — Prices rose fractionally today near the close of moderate trading on the London stock market following the fall in the public sector borrowing requirement. The Financial Times index was up 1.4 to 434.8 an hour before the close. Leading industrials gained fractionally, while gold stocks slipped from earlier high levels. Canadian issues declined.

CATTLE

CALGARY (CP) — Receipts to a 11 a.m. at the Calgary public stockyards totalled 875 head of mostly feeder cattle and stock calves with a light run of slaughter cows.

There were no slaughter steers or heifers on offer.

A normal supply of good condition feeder cattle and stock cows met broad demand with strong activity from local and eastern buyers.

Feeder steers sold $2 higher with feeder heifers $1 stronger. Stock steer calves traded $1.50 higher while stock heifer calves sold $1 higher.

Good feeder steers over 800 pounds 45-51.50; 700-800 pounds 46-52.50. Good feeder heifers over 700 pounds 42-46; 500-600 pounds 42-47. Feeder cows 29-37.50. Good stock steer calves 500-600 pounds

Sun Life Lone Loser

MONTREAL (CP) — Sun Life Assurance Co. of Canada, appears to be alone in losing business because its head office is in Quebec.

That was the reason it gave when announcing its intention earlier this year to move the head office to Toronto.

But executives of eight other companies based in Quebec said in a recent survey their companies sold more insurance last year than in 1976.

Sun Life president Thomas Galt told the company's annual meeting Feb. 14 that sales of individual life insurance, distinct from group policies, declined slightly in 1977.

He said the drop was "the result of a two per cent decrease in Canada" which he attributed to the Quebec government's goal of independence.

"This has led some policyholders and prospective policyholders refusing to buy from any company with its head office in Quebec," he said.

Sun Life's reported decline in sales of individual insurance ran counter to the national trend, according to figures released by the Canadian Life Insurance Association which says the face value of such policies written in Canada last year increased nine per cent to $23.8 billion.

That total represents 46 companies, 80 per cent of the Canadian total.

Ian Mair, president of Prudential Assurance Co. Ltd. of Montreal, said his company's sales of individual policies last year grew 5.2 per cent nationally. However, growth outside Quebec was faster at 8.7 per cent.

Clement Gauthier, president of La Sauvegarde Compagnie d'Assurance sur la Vie, of Montreal, called Galt's remarks "a surprising statement ... It surprises me that a company of Sun Life's stature would suffer because its head office is in Montreal."

Oscar Mercure, president of another Quebec-based firm, L'Assurance-Vie Desjardins, said that "the claim of Mr. Galt, as it appeared in the papers, doesn't seem fair."

Jean-Marie Poitras, president of La Laurentienne Compagnie Mutuelle d'Assurance, said Sun Life "has been in Montreal and has developed around the world.

"I don't see why people anywhere — in Britain, the U.S., or the rest of the country — wouldn't continue to support it," Poitras said. "It has a federal charter and its liabilities are payable in Canadian dollars."

Officials of other large insurance firms voiced similar reactions.

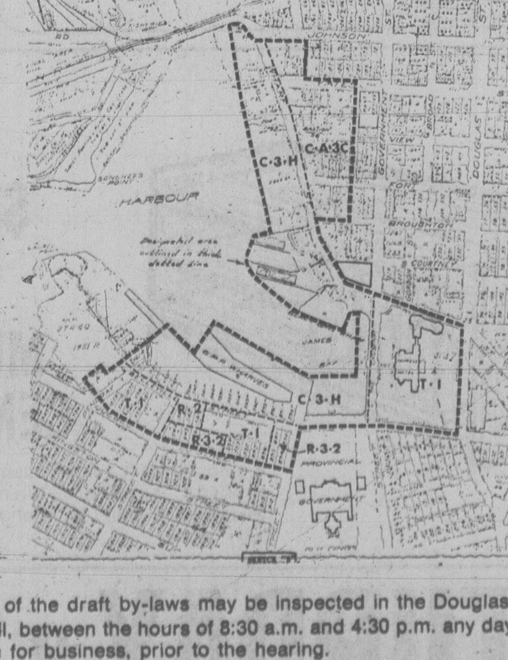
Re: "Development Permit By-law, 1978"

The purpose of this draft by-law is:

FIRST: to amend the "Zoning By-law, 1956" by providing for the issue of development permits pursuant to Section 702AA of the "Municipal Act," which will regulate various aspects of developments, including dimensions and siting of buildings and parking facilities, landscaping, playgrounds, signs and the EXTERIOR FINISHING of buildings, and,

SECONDLY: to designate the area, depicted in the map below, as a DEVELOPMENT PERMIT AREA in which NO DEVELOPMENT WILL BE PERMITTED other than the development of not more than three self-contained dwelling units, unless the owner of the land first obtains from the City Council a development permit, which may impose all or any of the restrictions and conditions mentioned in the said Section 702AA of the "Municipal Act."



Copies of the draft by-laws may be inspected in the Douglas Street foyer, City Hall, between the hours of 8:30 a.m. and 4:30 p.m. any day the City Hall is open for business, prior to the hearing.

Table Knife Slices Oakalla Jail Bars

VANCOUVER (CP) — The iron bars on some of the jail windows at the Lower Mainland Regional Correctional Centre (Oakalla) are so soft they can be cut with a table knife, a corrections branch inspector said Thursday at a public inquiry into conditions for women in British Columbia jails.

In addition, a hacksaw blade used in a recent escape attempt still is hidden in the Oakalla women's jail, said Inspector Alan Nichols.

Nichols also said that at Oakalla:

—jail staff have quit reporting assaults by prisoners because reports about them are treated in a nonchalant way;

—a woman guard at the jail was required to take her supervisors to dinner to show her gratitude for a promotion;

—as far as he knows, there was no inspection of the jail by Burnaby fire marshals from 1974 until late last year;

—the former director and deputy director were told a year ago about allegations of sexual misconduct between guards and prisoners at the jail;

—a male guard and female prisoner were transferred at the same time to the same minimum-security community corrections centre after it was alleged they were too friendly.

Nichols said he recommended new window bars in the jail after an inspection in 1974.

The bars were replaced on the second floor of the jail but no changes have been made on cell windows in living quarters on the ground floor, he said, so prisoners "bang an ordinary table knife on something hard a few times to make a serated edge" and use it to cut the bars.

"One bar is enough," he said. "Most of the girls are quite slim."

Nichols said management lost control of the women's jail during the three-year tenure of director Robert Burns and his deputy Stan Hofseth who were replaced last December when the attorney-general's department ordered the public inquiry.

Nichols said he told Burns and Hofseth of allegations of sexual misconduct at the jail about a year ago after receiving complaints from jail staff, the clery and the B.C. Government Employees' Union.

Hofseth earlier told the inquiry he was unaware of the allegations

Nichols said he'd seen copies of memos dating back to 1976 when jail staff said they had made similar allegations to Burns and Hofseth.

Nichols said part of an RCMP investigation last November into the allegations was scrutiny of three years of passes covering temporary release for women prisoners and it was found that a few prisoners were repeatedly under escort by the same male guards.

Nichols also said he's made to feel like "a hatchet man, Gestapo agent and fink" in his work as a corrections branch investigator.

Nichols said one hurdle in his attempts to conduct an investigation at Oakalla was thrown up by Ted Harrison, Vancouver region corrections director.

He said the inspection and standards section would function move effectively if it were separate from the corrections branch and reported directly to the attorney general instead of corrections director John Ekstedt.

WORLD CONFLAB FOR UVic

Scientists from around the world will attend an international conference on education, linguistics and psychology at the University of Victoria — the first of its kind held at a Canadian university.

They will work on the topic, Linguistic Awareness in Learning to Read, during a conference in the last week of June.

The conference is sponsored by the International Reading Association, which will cover most of the costs, estimated at between $20,000 and $30,000.

Gov't to Monitor Wolf Poisoning

SMITHERS (CP) — The fish and wildlife branch will spend $18,500 this year to determine whether controlling wolf populations causes caribou herds to increase, a branch spokesman said Wednesday.

Mike Chambers, regional information officer, said the branch will poison wolves in the Level Mountain area and compare caribou calving rates with a control group in the Kawdy Plateau area where wolves will be left alone. Both study areas are 150 kilometres northwest of Telegraph Creek.

Chambers said the study will help determine whether or not wolves cause a decline in big game populations and help the branch set more realistic bag limits in the area.

He said strychnine baits buried in the Level Mountain area will be recovered before the snow melts. Chambers said there is no proof that wolves kill caribou calves.

He said the study, part of a $40,000 predator control budget for northern B.C., will begin with a careful count of caribou populations.

VANCOUVER: 1.3M BY 1991?

VANCOUVER (CP) — Greater Vancouver's population could reach 1.3 million persons by 1991, about 200,000 more than in 1976, says a Greater Vancouver Regional District (GVRD) study.

The 1976 population for Greater Vancouver was 1,085,282.

Planning director Gerard Farry said the study is preliminary and the 1991 population forecasts should be used with caution.

$500 GAS AD FINE

NEW WESTMINSTER (CP) — A Burnaby service station owner who duped drivers into believing they could buy gasoline for 69.9 cents a gallon was fined $500 in county court Thursday for misleading advertising.

William Cecil Ablitt was charged in September 1976 after an inspector for the Federal Consumer and Corporate Affairs Department was lured into his station by a sign with eight-foot numerals advertising gasoline at 69.9 cents a gallon.

However, the gas advertised was "marked" or purple gas which is taxed lower than car gas and intended only for farm machinery and boats.

The sign said "marked" and "reg gas" in 12 inch letters on either side of the numerals.

Albitt was acquitted in Burnaby Provincial Court after he argued that anyone driving a car in B.C. would know what marked gasoline was and he would tell customers it was not for highway use. However, County Court Judge C.M. Hyde quashed the aquittal.

He said potential customers asked for the lower priced gas and this is proof of misleading advertising.

Union Quibbling Over Words — WCB

VANCOUVER (CP) — The Workers' Compensation Board said Wednesday that the Nanaimo local of the Pulp, Paper and Woodworkers of Canada, which claimed the board illegally altered four health and saftey regulations by failing to hold a mandatory public hearing, is quibbling over words.

The board has decided, however, to review its decision to raise the allowable level of mercaptan, a toxic gas emitted in MacMillan Bloedel's Harmac pulp operation at Nanaimo, board spokesman Grant McMillan said.

The union complained that changes to regulations governing board orders, responsibility for infractions and hazardous work conditions were made privately within the board.

McMillan admitted the changes were not indicated in draft proposals nor brought up at a public hearing in May, 1976, that proceeded a complete revamping of the regulations. New health and saftey regulations came into effect Jan. 1, 1978.

"It's a question of how much we can cover in public hearing sessions," McMillan said.

"The more time we spend answering charges and so-called illegalities, the less time there is for the work of the board."

End Threats Or Vote-Barrett

Canadian Press

Opposition Leader Dave Barrett says Premier Bill Bennett should either call a provincial election or stop making inflammatory statements.

Bennett had said Monday he might consider calling an election if the New Democratic Party continued its criticism of the Social Credit government. The premier called the NDP "the enemy within" for predicting the province will end the year with a deficit.

Barrett told a news conference that Bennett has created an air of economic uncertainty in the province by threatening an election, as he did last fall during an emergency session of the legislature.

The NDP leader said this uncertainty, in conjunction with the government's plan not to introduce a budget for the 1978-79 fiscal year until after the year has begun, has done more to hurt the economy than opposition criticism ever could.

He denied he predicted the province would have a deficit. Barrett said he was merely quoting from Statistics Canada figures when he said it appeared B.C. could end this fiscal year on March 31 with a deficit.

Barrett said he feels the government will end the year with a balanced budget, not due to its economic expertise but because it has drawn heavily from special funds set up by the former NDP government and the former Social Credit government of W. A. C. Bennett, who is the current premier's father.

Airport Losing

PRINCE GEORGE (CP) — The airport in this central British Columbia city is expected to lose $700,000 this fiscal year.

Airport manager John Williams said while airports in Montreal, Toronto and Vancouver are expected to show a profit because of the amount of traffic they handle, smaller airports do not have that opportunity.

Largest B.C. Chrysler Dealer in Receivership

VANCOUVER (CP) — Lawson Oates on Broadway Ltd., the largest Chrysler dealership in British Columbia, has been placed in receivership at the request of the Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce, the bank said Thursday.

The bank appointed receiver Don Henfrey to protect its position after Chrysler Credit Canada Ltd. siezed the dealership's new cars.

Chrysler Credit, owed about $4 million, made its move Feb. 15. Since then, however, it and Chrysler Canada Ltd. have been working on a deal whereby the car company would take over the dealership through a subsidiary company.

Henfrey said it is not unusual for Chrysler Canada to take over a dealership that gets into difficulty. The dealership's financial problems were blamed on a build-up of inventory during the current sluggish car market.

Henfrey said business is going on as usual and the finance company redelivered the 700-vehicle new car fleet this week.

The bank wouldn't indicate how much it is owed but it holds a $600,000 debenture filed with the registrar of companies last month.

Lawson Oates was incorporated in Ontario in 1962 and registered in B.C. in 1971. It sells both new and used Chrysler products, averaging sales of 3,500 units a year. It also leases cars.

U.K. TO CURB JAPAN CARS?

LONDON (AP) — The British government may limit auto imports from Japan "unless the Japanese car industry comes forward with a firm commitment to voluntary restraint," The Observer newspaper says.

Japanese passenger cars took 10.6 per cent of the British market last year and the Japanese Automobile Manufacturers Association refused earlier this month to agree to export ceilings requested by Britain's Society of Motor Manufacturers and Traders.

RURAL HOUSING SUBSIDIZED

The federal and provincial governments Thursday announced an agreement to provide a maximum of 387 housing units in rural and remote parts of B.C..

The two levels of government said that under the 1978 Rural and Remote Housing Program Designation Agreement, about 55 communites in B.C. with populations under 2,500 are in line to receive a total of $14 million.

Herring Figures Up After Survey

Surveys of herring stocks in Barkley Sound on the west coast of Vancouver Island and in the Strait of Georgia indicate there might be more fish this year than predicted, the director of field operations for federal fisheries said Thursday.

This year's catch quota is 82,500 tons which will produce about 11,500 tons of roe. Last year a record 80,000 tons of herring was landed.

Dick Crouter said Thursday that about 400 tons have been taken at Ganges and another 100 tons off the Queen Charlotte Islands during this first week of fishing. This is about normal.

Queen Charlotte herring are generally the last to mature off the B.C. coast but there is an early run at Naden Harbor which is keeping 16 gillnetters busy.

About 50,000 tons of herring have been located in the Imperial Eagle Channel area of Barkley Sound and could be mature enough to fish by Sunday, said Crouter.

"Tests show thay are now producing only two to three per cent roe and we are looking for 10 per cent," he said.

Crouter said the Bella Bella area will probably be opened this Sunday also but only for gillnetters.

Other schools up to 300 tons are beginning to show in the Denman Island-Nanaimo area which is normally a big producer.

Last year herring delivered to the dock were worth $2 million and the wholesal price to Japan and som other markets was $90 million.

This year the price paid to seiners has been increased to $220 from $173.50 a ton and the price to gillnetters is increased to $430 a ton from $350.

CHURCHES RAP FARM AID CUTS

The provincial government has been criticised by the Inter-Church Committee on World Development Education for reducing agricultural aid to developing countries.

The inter-church committee represents the Anglican, Catholic, United, Presbyterian and Lutheran churches of Canada.

Anne Fletcher, Victoria branch spokesman, said the inter-church committee wants the grants increased.

Agricultural aid to developing countries, sent directly to those in need and not to governments, should be increased to help small farmers become independent, she said.

The agricultural aid program was started in 1969 under the W.A.C. Bennett administration. Money for the program was obtained from interest, about #75,000 a year, on a $5 million investiment.

In 1975, the NDP administration added $5 million to the fund.

The present government placed the $5 million investment from the W.A.C. Bennett administration back into general revenue, then removed the $5 million from the NDP.

Probers Don't Know Who Piloted Plane

CALGARY (CP) — The Transport Canada investigators do not know who was flying a Pacific Western Airlines Boeing 737 when it crashed while attempting to land Feb. 11 at Cranbrook, a senior department spokesman said Thursday.

In a telephone interview from Ottawa, chief investigator Bill Howes said he has received transcripts of tape recordings of radio conversations with the municipally-owned airport. However, investigators were not certain whether pilot Chris Miles or first officer Peter Van Oort was at the controls when the airliner crashed.

Forty-two persons, including an infant, and four of the five crew members were killed in the crash. Another person later died in a Vancouver hospital. Six others survived.

Howes said investigators have received recordings of Miles and Van Oort made previously at other airports and were making voiceprint analysis to compare them with the Cranbrook recordings.

"Whoever was doing the talking probably wasn't doing the flying," he said, adding that it is not unusual for one of the cockpit crew to handle the radio while the other lands the plane.

Transport Canada officials said earlier the pilot did not make a final radio call to ask Cranbrook personnel to remove a snowplow that was working on the runway.

Test results of the plane's two engines show they were working properly at the time of the crash, Howes said.

Paraplegic or Amputee

OTTAWA (CP) — Giving Quebec independence would be preferable to succombing to many Quebecers' demands for a more decentralized federal government, Senator Eugene Forsey said Thursday.

Without Quebec, Canada would be an impoverished amputee, the Liberal senator from Ontario told the Task Force on Canadian Unity.

"But Canada with Quebec, but with a central Parliament whose jurisdiction had been gutted, a central government whose organs had been paralyzed . . . would be a paraplegic.

"If I have to choose, which God forbid, I should choose the amputee."

Forsey said he would not be interested in preserving Canada, already one of the most decentralized federations, if it were to become "a 20th century North American Holy Roman Empire."

Forsey made the remarks during a panel discussion on what types of constitutional change are needed to keep the country united. The discussion occurred during the second of three days of hearings in the national capital by the federally-appointed study group.

Solange Chaput-Rolland, Quebec representative on the group, said whatever new type of constitution is adopted, she wants it to be readable to all Quebecers and not filled with obscure references to "the Empress of India" now found in the current constitution — the British North America Act.

Richard Cashin, Atlantic representative, said the constitution, which rests in the British Parliament, was imposed on Canadians.

Quebec Liberal Senator Carl Goldenberg disagreed, saying that the provinces had agreed to accept the constitution when they entered Confederation.

Senator Jacques Flynn, Progressive Conservative leader in the Senate, said the cause of the current national unity debate is not the constitution but tensions between French and English Canadians.

"Constitutional reform bears no problems to relations between French and English," the Quebec senator said.

Conservative Senator Paul Yuzyk from Manitoba said a new constitution should guarantee French - and English - language rights on the national scene and that individual provinces should grant rights to other language groups.

Little Time For Briefs

OTTAWA (CP) — Twelve national organizations concerned about the future of Confederation discovered Thursday that the Task Force on Canadian Unity did not have much time for them.

The groups came armed with recommendation-laden briefs and representatives from several provinces but were told to limit their presentations to 10 minutes each.

A theme running through many of the presentations was that the diversity of Canadians forms the backbone of the country's culture and the federal government was doing little to nurture that culture.

The Canadian Council of Film Producers said domestic cultural products such as television shows are often inferior to their U.S. counterparts because less financing is available in Canada.

The council suggested that the defence department exchange budgets with the Canadian Broadcasting Corp. The federal government gave the defence department $3.7 billion in the 1977-78 fiscal year and $467 million to its broadcasting network.

The Royal Canadian Legion received hearty praise from the study group members for its initiatives in promoting unity.

The legion has formed its own unity study group.

Jean-Luc Pepin, co-chairman of the federal study group, urged the Legion and other large voluntary organizations to press their provincial governments to adopt policies which would enhance unity.

GIFT TO WORLD HUNGRY ENDED UP ON THE SHELF

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Mexican authorities will be asked how a can of beef, a gift of the people of Canada to the United Nations' World Food Program, ended up selling for 25 pesos (about $1.27 Canadian) on a shelf in a Mexican supermarket.

The issue was raised by Al Purdy, poet-in-residence at University of Western Ontario, following a visit last Christmas to a supermarket in Chapala, a small Mexican town just south of Guadalajara.

Purdy said in an interview today the canned beef had a large maple leaf on the red-and-white label.

It was marked "Canadian meat loaf" in English and French and was packed for the World Food Program.

"There were a lot of cans," Purdy said. "I didn't count them. I just wanted to buy a can."

He brought the can home.

Frank Shefrin, director of Agriculture Canada's liaison service which administers Canada's participation in the food relief program, said in Ottawa the beef is not supposed to be sold.

He said the beef is destined for about 60 countries where food reserves are at critical levels.

N-Debris Shovel Cleanup

EDMONTON (CP) — Canadian Armed Forces nuclear accident support team members Thursday began picking up small radioactive fragments of Cosmos 954 with snow shovels in Pine Point, N.W.T., 800 kilometres north of here.

Scientists believe the small particles, which range in size from pepper flakes to buckshot, are the residue of the reactor core of the nuclear-powered Soviet satellite which re-entered the earth's atmosphere over the Northwest Territories Jan. 24.

Major Vic Keating, an Armed Forces spokesman, said in an interview Thursday that Fort Resolution, about 90 kilometres northeast of Pine Point, was cleared Wednesday and no radiation particles were found in Fort Smith on the N.W.T.-Alberta border.

Soviets Block Canada Bid For N-Safety Space Rules

UNITED NATIONS (CP) — The Soviet Union effectively blocked Canadian proposals on nuclear safety in outer space, but Canadian Ambassador William Barton said Thursday he will take the fight all the way to the UN General Assembly if necessary.

The Canadian plan received wide support but the Soviets and their allies obviously were not ready to accept it. One of the key proposals called for creation of an ad hoc group of experts in the UN to study and initiate action on new safeguards for nuclear-powered spacecraft.

Since all UN space bodies operate on the basis of consensus, the Canadian plan withered on the vine without Soviet support.

After a three-week session, the 47-member outer space scientific and technical subcommittee adopted a lengthy report that recommended only that the various views on nuclear safety in space be examined again at the June meeting of the main committee on the peaceful uses of outer space.

Barton, obviously disappointed after some tough sessions with the Russians, said Canada had hoped to generate immediate specific and positive action in the subcommittee.

Barton said Canada will make a similar initiative in the outer space legal subcommittee when it meets in Geneva later this month.

In its working paper, Canada proposed that the working group could study the possibility of limiting nuclear-power sources aboard spacecraft.

The report said that despite the views of most delegations favoring the working group, it was not possible at this time to reach a consensus on the proposal.

Rail Pension 'Fiddle' Claimed In Millions

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canadian National Railways and Canadian Pacific Ltd. owe hundreds of millions of dollars to railroad pension plans, Dan McKenzie (PC—Winnipeg South Centre) told the Commons Thursday.

Reading from a letter from the Canadian Railway Employees' Pension Association, McKenzie said from the start of the plans in the 1930s, both companies have avoided paying to a very large extent their share of contributions into the plans.

As a result, hundreds of millions of dollars are owed to the plans and a government investigation should be called to investigate the charges, McKenzie said.

He said last year the CNR boosted the pension plan by $2.3 million, adding that these "are truly just a few crumbs off the banquet table."

McKenzie also called the pension plans disgraceful, saying they discriminate against already-retired employees because plans are not indexed to increase with inflation while pensions for present employees will be.

He was speaking during debate on a government bill that would among other things wipe out the CNR's $808 million debt to Ottawa.

Knowles said a glaring example of gross inequality in the treatment of railroad workers is that the father of a former president of the CPR received a pension of $83.53 a month, while the next president, Ian Sinclair, got paid $330,450 last year.

"It's not human, it's not decent, it's not civilized,"

Loto Drops Best Odds Claim

TORONTO (CP) — Guy Cousineau, president of Loto Canada, says the lottery has dropped its advertising claim that it has the best winning odds.

The move follows a statement by a special review panel of the Canadian Advertising Standards Council that the Loto Canada claim, "Your best chance to win a million," contravenes the council's code of standards.

Marshall Pollock, managing director of Ontario Lottery Corp., had complained. The corporation holds draws for $1-million prizes in its Provincial lottery.

Cousineau said in a news release that Loto Canada based its claim on accurate statistical odds.

"But we understand the council's concern that this type of comparative advertising is neither good for the lottery business or for the advertising industry."

Deportation Delay

TORONTO (CP) — The deportations of seven Jamaican women were delayed Thursday pending a decision involving an injunction petition. Lawyer James Lockyer of Toronto requested the injunction, arguing that the deportation should be prevented until the federal human rights commission has investigated the women's complaint, filed with the commission earlier this week. Mr. Justice P. M. Mahoney reserved judgment on the injunction. The women broke immigration rules before coming to Canada several years ago by saying they had no dependent children in Jamaica.

FANCY MONTREAL HOTEL IN THE RED

MONTREAL (CP) — The 318-room Place Howard Johnson hotel in the city's east-end is in financial trouble, unable to make payments to some creditors on time, Mario Beaulieu, one of the hotel's owners, said Thursday.

The hotel has been losing money since it opened in July, 1976, and has had trouble meeting financial obligations since last September, Beaulieu said.

He said the hotel's owners are negotiating with the Bank Canadian National to stretch out payment of some debts over a longer period than originally planned.

Place Howard Johnson is owned by Auberge Renaissance Inc., in which Beaulieu is one of four equal shareholders. The company holds a franchise from Orangeroof Canada Ltd., of Toronto, the Canadian licensee of Howard Johnson Co., Boston.

Orangeroof has seven hotels and 22 restaurants in Canada, five of the restaurants in Montreal.

Guay Demands Tighter Clamps on Porn

OTTAWA (CP) — Revenue Minister Joe Guay urged the Commons justice committee Thursday to propose tougher sanctions against obscene material, arguing that promised new Criminal Code restrictions against child pornography don't go far enough.

"I think we have to go beyond that," Guay said, referring to proposals by Justice Minister Ron Basford to clamp down on child-sex exploitation.

Guay and J. P. Connell, deputy minister for customs, were the latest in a series of witnesses testifying before the committee as it deals with 10 anti-pornography bills proposed by private MPs.

Guay said customs officers currently have more power than courts to check the spread of what he called sexual filth in the country.

Stuart Leggatt (NDP—New Westminster) said the problem with coming up with any new Criminal Code sanctions against pornography rests in the definition.

The problem wes a subjective one.

Connell said the decision to prohibit entry to magazines and other material is based on a number of factors, ranging from photographs to grammar and syntax.

Some magazines showing sexually-explicit pictures may be allowed into the country because they have "redeeming features" — well-written articles by well-known authors.

Wildlife Fed Man Raked

OTTAWA (CP) — Liberal and Progressive Conservative MPs lashed out at a representative for the Canadian Wildlife Federation Thursday for failing to visit the Yukon before writing a brief on a proposed northern pipeline.

Francois Bregha, energy analyst for the federation, said in a nine-page brief he felt the proposed agency to oversee the pipeline construction faced "an irreconcilable conflict of interest."

He questioned how the agency could ensure quick construction of the pipeline while at the same time minimizing the social and economic impact of the $10-billion project.

But the first questions Bregha faced from Erik Nielsen (PC—Yukon) was whether he had visited the Yukon or travelled the proposed route, a line of questioning later picked up by another Conservative and a government member.

At one point, T. C. Douglas (NDP—Nanaimo-Cowichan-The Islands) stepped into the debate to say "witnesses come here to give information, not to hear exhortations and condemnations."

He later described the reception to the brief as hostile, saying MPs can bring out weaknesses in the argument of a witness through questioning "not by hectoring and badgering."

Bregha, who is writing a book on the pipeline, said he was surprised by the reaction of MPs. He felt both the Liberals and Conservatives had prejudged the pipeline issue without a clear idea of the impact it would have.

But Jack Pearsall, (L—Coast Chilcotin) said outside the committee that although he thought it was an excellent brief, if Bregha had visited the Yukon he might have changed some recommendations.

Bregha also drew the ire of Keith Penner (L—Thunder Bay) with a suggestion that native land claims should be settled before the pipeline goes ahead.

That would force an intolerable pressure on the negotiators for both sides, Penner said. He urged Bregha to reconsider and write the committee if he changes his mind.

Bob Briscoe (PC—Kootenay West) suggested Bregha was there under false pretences, since the brief had little to say about wildlife.

"Have you ever walked a trapline?" Brisco asked the witness when discussing what affects the pipeline would have.

"I don't have to go to the Yukon to trap to know there is an impact," Bregha said.

Asked how he could object to the pipeline route on the basis of looking over a map of the area, Bregha said he had been told by Foothills officials that was the method they used to decide on portions of the northern route.

The wildlife representative said U.S. President Carter estimates the gas from Alaska will cost $6 billion less over the life of the contract by going through Canada instead of by tanker.

He felt on that basis, more benefits should have been gained by the federal government in negotiations with the U.S.

Pearsall said he objected to the tanker route since it would involve more shipping traffic along the West Coast, an area where there already is a danger of pollution.

Mystery Girl A Canadian?

AUBURN, Calif. — Authorities believe an unidentified girl about 17 years old may have come from Canada.

The girl, now living with a family in this Sierra town about 250 kilometres east of San Francisco, was taken from a Reno-bound bus Jan. 27.

Ted Smith, chief probation officer, said the girl won't say who she is.

"All the girl says is that she does not want to go back 'there.' Wherever 'there' is."

He said her clothing bears Canadian labels, and she has a shirt and a balloon marked "Camp Alexandra."

There's a possibility her name is Carrie, he said.

Galloping Granny Off

JOHANNESBURG — Mavis Hutchison, South Africa's 53-year-old "galloping granny" leaves here today for Los Angeles to begin a 70-day run across the United States. Mrs. Hutchison has been running long distance for 17 years and has won a number of races in South Africa. She plans to begin her U.S. journey from the Pacific to the Atlantic Coast March 12, following up the run with a lecture tour across the United States. The slight, 109-pound grandmother said she is not scared by the run, but has been working to strengthen her voice, improve her vocabulary and to project her personality in preparation for the post-run lecture tour.

SHERBROOKE, Que. — Charles Marion, the credit union employee held by kidnappers for 82 days last year, began a $850,000 defamatory libel suit Thursday against two media organizations for insinuating he may have been involved in planning the abduction. He is suing Jacmond Inc., publisher of the Montreal tabloid Photo-Police, and Radio-Canada, the French-language network of the CBC, as well as reporters Andre Fournier of Radio-Canada and Pierre Schneider of Photo-Police.

LONDON — Prince Michael of Kent, 16th in line to the throne, and the woman he plans to marry, German-born Mrs. Marie-Christine Troubridge, have consulted with the Archbishop of Canterbury to resolve constitutional and religious problems barring their way. Mrs. Troubridge is a Roman Catholic who is waiting for final steps in her divorce from London banker Tom Troubridge. The 1701 Act of Settlement, which regulates the succession to the British throne, forbids anyone in line for the throne to marry a Catholic. Also, the political establishment has been reluctant in the past to sanction marriages by members of the Royal Family to divorced persons. Princess Margaret, the Queen's sister, had to break her romance with Peter Townsend more than 20 years ago because he was divorced.

NATRONA HEIGHTS, Pa. — They may not offer as much companionship as dogs or cats, but Charles Wasson thinks pet potholes could be as much fun as pet rocks. The 27-year-old student teacher has developed a pothole plaque made of the same frail asphalt that cracks and breaks under the freeze and thaw of southwestern Pennsylvania winters. It's complete with a pothole and a plate identifying it as a genuine imitation of those found on area highways. Target customers, he said, are people who want to send their legislators a message about poor highway conditions. "I'd like to mount a mail-order campaign," he said. "I'd send one plaque to the customer and another, smaller version to their legislator in their name. Maybe we'd get something done."

Arrest Was In the Cards

ORLANDO, Fla. — Sales clerk Arlene Carpenter sold herself two pairs of shoes and then called the police.

Authorities say Clarice Cunningham, 27, was jailed on a forgery charge for buying the shoes with a stolen credit card — Mrs. Carpenter's. She was also charged with parole violation.

"I don't know how I stayed calm," said Mrs. Carpenter.

WARNING: Super-Heroes Pose Health Hazard

OTTAWA (CP) — Super heroes can be dangerous for your health, says science fiction author Frank Herbert, author of the Dune trilogy.

"We tend to turn over to super heroes our own individual decision making and our own observational powers," the 57-year-old former journalist said in an interview.

"If you look at the Dune trilogy carefully, you'll see that I was showing the evolution of a super hero and what inevitably happens in the aftermath of a super hero," Herbert said. "One of my theories has been for a long time that there ought to be a surgeon-general's warning on super heroes."

Even if a super hero is perfect, like Paul Atreides the central character in his best-selling trilogy, and never makes a mistake, he'll disappear some day and human beings will take over and create a power structure that tends to attract psychotics, he said.

Herbert, in Ottawa for Carleton University's international conference on science, literature and contemporary culture, says Dune trilogy also deals with the ecological transformation of a desert-colored planet.

The three volumes, Dune, Dune Messiah, Children of Dune, originally conceived of as just one book, have made Herbert a cult hero — a position and image he says he does not like.

"I try very hard to get out of that because you should be very careful about believing your own publicity," he said.

More than 10 million copies of the trilogy had been sold.

A reporter for the San Francisco Examiner and the Seattle Post-Intelligence until 1971, Herbert said he conceived the idea for Dune while covering a United States government dune-control project in Florence, Ore.

"I delineated it in Dune — just spelled it out — and that got me started on studying how we inflict ourselves on the planet under our feet," Herbert said.

Herbert said he is working on a fourth book which he thinks will be better than Dune. Although he would not reveal any plot details because the book is in progress, he did say that it was tentatively titled The Jesus Incident.

The burly, bearded author of 19 novels has won the coveted International Fantasy, Hugo and Nebula awards for science fiction. He lives with his wife Beverly on a wooded, six-acre estate near Tacoma, Wash., where, he says, he writes between 1,000 and 10,000 words a day.

He and his wife grow their own vegetables, keep chickens for eggs and meat and have stocked a pond with trout. They are also planning to heat their swimming pool with solar energy and are building a windmill for electric power.

MOTHER TAKING PLEA TO POLAND

TORONTO (CP) — Una Claire-Golabek, a medical secretary whose estranged husband's family took her son to Poland a year ago, says she is going to Warsaw in mid-March to fight a custody battle over the child.

Mrs. Golabek, 28, said in a recent interview she is spending the last of her savings in an effort to win back custody of her son, Paul, 5.

Her Polish-born husband, Andrew, fled to Poland last April. He was out on bail on a charge of assaulting her.

Once in Poland, Golabek filed for divorce and custody of his son.

Mrs. Golabek, who does not speak Polish, will go to court in Poland with a Supreme Court of Ontario order granting her interim custody of the child.

Through the federal department of external affairs, she has retained a Polish lawyer to represent her in the custody case. The lawyer cost her $450 and her air fare is $850.

Mrs. Golabek estimates her marital troubles have cost her about $20,000 for legal fees and private investigators and in lost income.

Symphony Names Manager

The Victoria Symphony Society has appointed Jean M. Hunter as its new manager.

She succeeds Michael Englebert.

Hunter is the first woman among the dozen managers the symphony has had.

She has a comprehensive background of work in television, radio, the record industry and films in Canada and for a time, with Columbia Pictures in Hollywood.

She says the coming season presents an exceptional challenge with its series of guest conductors who will be auditioning for the position of music director.

Audience interest should be at an all-time high, she feels, as the various styles, qualities and personalities of the 10 selected conductors are presented.

The new manager's 33 years of experience in the entertainment industry includes being owner-manager of a Toronto booking and talent agency and acting as business manager for Denny Vaughan Orchestras Ltd of Toronto.

She has also done promotional work and served as musical director and conductor of a classical music and interview show on Toronto's CKFH.

She was associated with the Royal Conservatory of Music as a booking agent for concert tours and symphony guest appearances, and with the CBC as a talent relations officer and particularly with the CBC symphony in matters of arbitration and dispute.

CHILD SYMPOSIUM

A medical symposium on early recognition and treatment of abnormalities in child development will be held from 8.30 a.m. to 4.30 p.m. April 7 in the Garth Homer Achievement Centre on Darwin.

The symposium is being sponsored by the Queen Alexandra Hospital for Children and the Queen Alexandra Solarium for Crippled Children Society.

HOMETOWN TOURIST TICKETS SELLING OUT QUICKLY

About 6,000 of the 8,000 tour tickets for the hometown tourist weekend have already been sold, Visitors Information Centre information officer Lorraine Cooper said Thursday.

Tours of eight Victoria attractions on one $2 ticket begin at 10 a.m. Saturday. Buses will leave from the Causeway tourist bureau all day long to take people to Anne Hathaway's Cottage and Sealand, both on the tour. The other six attractions are within walking distance of the harbor.

The promotion will raise $16,000 for the Visitors Information Centre. The attractions donate their premises for the weekend.

Tickets are being sold at the Causeway bureau and at ticket kiosks in shopping centres and department stores. Only 8,000 can be sold because of space limitations. Children's tickets are also $2. Infants in arms are free.

$1M Sought for Diabetes

March is diabetes fund-raising month and the Canadian Diabetic Association has set a national target of $1 million.

It is estimated that well over 500,000 Canadians have diabetes.

The Victoria branch is carrying out a mail campaign in an effort to gain financial support from the community's business sector.

The branch's address is P.O. Box 672 and the phone number, 382-5434.

Funds raised will be used for research, for support of the diabetic through education and support of medical and health workers by improving and extending their expertise.

Dollar Dip A Threat To Defence

OTTAWA (CP) — The sliding dollar may cost Canada $71 million extra for a long-range patrol aircraft and millions more for new tanks for the armed forces.

It could be a factor in government plans for the new $2.3-billion fighter aircraft although Supply Minister Jean-Pierre Goyer would not comment on that possibility Thursday.

Goyer said outside a cabinet meeting that the long-range patrol aircraft, built by Lockheed Corp. of California, will cost $71 million extra if the dollar continues to be worth 10 cents less than the American dollar. That is based on a program cost for the 8 Lockheed Aurora aircraft of about $700 million.

He said that payments are being made continually to Lockheed.

Allan McKinnon, Conservative defence critic, said the government may have to pay up to 20 per cent more than originally estimated for new Leopard tanks being built by Krauss-Maffei, a West German firm. The German Mark has climbed in value to 56 cents in comparison to the dollar from 40 cents since the contract was signed in October, 1976.

The armed forces are buying 128 Leopard C-1 battle tanks at a cost of $187 million.

U.S. Boost Sought for $

But he acknowledged the lower dollar value, which adds to the price for imported goods, puts pressure on the inflation rate.

Currently, prices are rising at a nine per-cent annual rate. Since late 1976, when the dollar was worth a peak of $1.03 U.S., its declining value has added an estimated four per cent to the inflation rate.

Ed Broadbent, New Democratic Party leader, said it is clear that the international community wants federal action to stimulate jobs and investment. Without that, traders and speculators will devalue the dollar further, he suggested.

Chretien said the effect of federal measures in a budget last March 31 and a mini-budget Oct. 20 was to offer personal tax cuts of $2 billion and another $900,000 in incentives for corporations. That is more stimulation than any other Western nation has offered for economic activity, he claimed.

Chretien said he is "disappointed" by slow GNP growth in the final months of 1977, but he added that private economic forecasters are equally puzzled about the slowdown.

He rejected a suggestion from James Gillies (PC—Toronto Don Valley) that a new federal budget is necessary. It is still too early to know how successful measures from last year's budget, many of which took effect only on Jan. 1, will be in stimulating growth, the finance minister said.

Some 'gold bugs' think the price will skyrocket to $500 an ounce

By DEREK SIDENIUS
Times Staff

With the dollar plummeting in value, more and more people are turning to that standby of old — gold.

An interest in gold is again mounting in Victoria although it hasn't reached the frantic level of 1973-74 when an ounce of gold soared over the U.S. $200 mark.

On Wednesday an ounce of gold sold here for $183.25 in U.S. funds and Thursday morning it went up to $184.50 or $206.82 Canadian. Today's quotation was $183.50 bid on an asking price of $184. In November an ounce sold for $150 U.S..

Some "gold bugs," as they are known in the investment business, feel the price will rise to $500 an ounce.

But Anne Mills, supervisor of securities for the Bank of Nova Scotia in Victoria, is more cautious.

"I don't think it'll come to that. It's a big gamble I would say."

Mrs. Mills said trading in gold has been growing since early February with almost as many buyers as sellers.

On Wednesday sales locally reached nearly 100 ounces with two major purchases of 60 ounces and a kilobar (32 ounces), the most of any day so far this year.

The bank, one of Canada's two major sources of gold bars, plaques and coins, says sales are averaging $150,000 a week.

Mrs. Mills says the sellers for the most part are people who bought gold four or five years ago, got caught when the price dropped, and are now trying to make up their losses.

The buyers on the other hand feel the dollar will continue to fall and are looking for something that will provide a hedge against inflation.

Mrs. Mills said there has been a surge in the number of inquiries over the past month.

"We waste a lot of time on the phone. The thing many people don't realize is we can't give advice. We are not allowed to give our opinions."

Gold sold by the bank here ranges from 20-gram wafers worth $118.66 to 400-ounce bars worth $81,000 Canadian. There's also a demand for gold coins such as the South African krugerrand, one-ounce of 99 per cent fine gold, which is selling for more than $205 with some sales as high as $218. In September, 1976 the coin could be bought for $125.

Not many of the big 400-ounce bricks are sold here but the bank in Vancouver was sold out of them on Wednesday.

Mrs. Mills said the gold investors come from all walks of life. But many are former Europeans who've been hit by currency problems in the past.

"I'm a real bull on gold," he told the Times.

He has six krugerrands left in hia bank safety deposit box from a bundle he bought a couple of years ago.

"The dollar is shot as far as I'm concerned."

He foresees the day when gold will be worth $500, $600, even $700 an ounce.

"For many years I've maintained we can't keep on printing more and more paper money because there's no backing left.

"There's very little gold in Fort Knox. The United States has such an enormous debt. They can never repay it because there's not enough gold left. They lost it all in Vietnam, just gambled it away."

Mulder said the wise investor is putting his money in krugerrands rather than bullion because krugerrands can be sold anywhere in the world while bullion can be sold conveniently only at the bank where purchased.

There's one disadvantage to buying the gold coins here, he said. Purchasers have to pay seven per cent sales tax.

If a person is thinking about putting a lot of money into coins it would be to his advantage to go to Alberta where there's no sales tax, he said.

Radio Security Worrying Police

Police board chairman Mel Couvelier and other members have asked Chief Bob Peterson to get an estimate on the cost of radio scramblers that would garble communications to all but scrambler-equipped receivers.

Victoria Chief John Gregory said radio security has been discussed by Greater Victoria chiefs and the Canadian Association of Chiefs of Police who are at present armed with radio broadcasting legislation which is difficult to prosecute.

He said there is nothing illegal about monitoring police radio calls, but it is unlawful to use to advantage information received in this way. And that is the hard thing to prove.

Peterson told the Saanich police board he believed radio monitors tipped off burglars at Cedar Hill Golf Club and Tillicum Drive-in Theatre and hamper even routine investigations. In addition, he thought, listening in on broadcasts of information, such as involving a domestic disturbance, constitute an invasion of privacy. Yet there was no other way of relaying messages in the heat of the moment.

In one instance, there was a reprisal against a woman who reported vandals tearing down a street sign after her name and address were broadcast to the investigating officer. Her property was damaged the next night, Couvelier said.

Gregory said scramblers are expensive, about $1,000 for each receiver, or about the same cost as the radio itself. He said police forces and the federal government (which is assisting in financing) are watching with interest a Vancouver police department experiment involving silent radio transmission.

This device, costing about $4,000, provides a computer terminal in a patrol car activated by high frequency signals from a computer centre to give police printed messages.

Harbor Oil Spill Cleaned Up

Clean-up operations were being completed this morning following a spill Thursday of up to 500 gallons of medium-heavy bunker oil from an overfilled tank at the Gulf Oil bulk storage plant on Songhees Road.

Most of the oil spilled on to the shoreline, except for a few gallons which entered the water and was contained by a boom pending retrieval.

"Oil Snare," an absorbent plastic cord, and polyurethane foam were used in the water clean-up. About a one-foot depth of oil-soaked earth was also removed from the site, and replaced by fill.

"We're just finishing it off now," Gulf's Victoria manager Bob Porter said today. "We're very pleased with the way the operation has gone."

American Fishboat Nabbed by Patrol

The skipper of an American fishing boat is to appear in provincial court here after his 110-foot dragliner was seized Wednesday by federal fisheries officers off the west coast of Vancouver Island.

Federal fisheries spokesman Bob Wowchuk said Gunnar Ildhuso of Seattle has been charged with a violation of fishing regulations.

Wowchuk said Ildhuso's vessel, the Mar-Gun, of Seattle registry, was spotted by the fisheries boat, Tanu, on patrol about 27 miles south of Estevan Point.

He said the dragliner had its nets out in an area the fisheries department had closed to both Canadian and American fishing.

A spokesman for the Mar-Gun's five-man crew said they were unaware the area was closed and had only been fishing two days when stopped.

He said they had about 40,000 pounds of fish in the hold which has a capacity of 360,000 pounds.

$3,000 Fire Damage

An overheated plywood drying machine caused two fires and about $3,000 damage Thursday night at B.C. Forest Products Gorge Road mill.

Deputy fire chief Mike Belton said accumulated dust and waste material caught fire in the machine's roof duct but the blaze was put out by the mill's fire crew.

The fire was out when city firemen arrived shortly after 9:08, but sparks blew to an adjoining presto-log mill and ignited waste on the upper exterior of the building. Firemen firemen tackled that outbreak with an aerial truck.

Some Salty Words Lead to a Chippy Incident

When the chips are down, salesmen will do almost anything in the crunch to ensure their products get prominence in stores, Judge William Ostler heard Thursday.

Ostler, shaking his head in disbelief, said while there is almost nothing in life that isn't contentious, added: "But I never dreamed there would be so much drama over a bag of potato chips.".

The judge's comments came as he convicted a 29-year-old man of assault causing bodily harm.

Saanich police charged Muralt after an incident Nov. 9 at Lee's Food Market, 3297 Douglas.

Sadler testified that the incident occurred at the store when he was making a delivery of potato chips and other products. He was collecting money when he noticed Muralt kneeling at his rack, located right next to Sadler's.

A crisp verbal exchange then took place.

"Get your (expletive) chips off my rack," Muralt was alleged to have began.

"Keep your nuts off MY rack," Sadler replied.

"Get (expletive)," Muralt retorted.

"Same to you," Sadler said.

Sadler said Muralt then grabbed him by the neck and punched him. After the initial blows, three of them to his right eye, Sadler curled up into a ball and Muralt continued to pummel him on the side of the head and shoulders.

Muralt, called to the stand by defence lawyer David Shaw, told the court he noticed Sadler was putting his Frito Lay chips in the bottom of his (Muralt's) rack prior to the exchange of profanity and scuffle.

Under cross-examination by Crown counsel N.K. Varma, Muralt admitted that none of Sadler's products was on his rack.

"I only used enough force as was necessary," he stated.

In his summation, Shaw said Sadler was putting stock in Muralt's rack. He said it was part of the gamesmanship involved in the business but that Sadler was "waving a flag in front of the opposition." Shaw contended that Sadler committed an assault by trespassing. He said Muralt would go bankrupt if he didn't protect his property. In this instance, Shaw concluded, "the opposition went too far in their gamesmanship."

Ostler asked when gamesmanship and violence became bedfellows and rejected applications by Shaw for absolute or conditional discharges.

"These matters must be resolved in a civilized manner," Ostler said, handing Muralt a suspended sentence and six months probation. In addition, he ordered Muralt to pay for the repair of Sadler's watch, damaged during the fight, within three weeks.

CBC viewers are still shaking their heads over what could only be described as a "spirited defence" of Captain Cook's morals and purity by none other than Tourism Minister Grace McCarthy.

There stood Grace, all red hair and indignation, under the Cook statue on Government in full public view, telling television viewers that contrary to claims by New Westminster NDP MLA Dennis Cocke, Cook certainly had not suffered from what in the old days, was referred to delicately as a "social disease".

Grace, her fury fuelled undoubtedly by fear that people might boycott the Cook celebrations if credence was given to the suggestion that the mariner might have been less than simon-pure, really went to town.

Most viewers, however, must be wondering if it was all really necessary.

One eye-witness to the whole thing said with considerable understatement that the whole thing was "bizzare", to say the least.

A woman in Central Saanich will be without her car for the next two weeks — and heaven help her husband when he returns home.

Central Saanich police said the woman called on Tuesday to ask if it was okay for her to drive her car without the new decals until her husband comes home. She said he's away for two weeks and is sure he bought the new ones but must have hidden them somewhere because she can't find them.

"Sorry Ma'am, no way," the officer replied.

It would be hard to find a group of individuals more dedicated to corporate masochism than Saanich aldermen.

Almost every Monday and Tuesday night they're assembled in committee or council sessions with daunting agendas that keep them plugging away until 11 p.m. or later, long after any self-respecting citizen should be abed.

But occasionally even stout hearts quail.

Last Tuesday, when one such meeting had already been under way for nearly three and half hours, Mayor Mel Couvelier suggested the planning committee adjourn the tail-end agenda items to a Wednesday night meeting, which would have meant three night meetings in a row.

Some aldermen paled at the thought, and Ald. David Paterson groaned, somewhat pathetically: "We were looking forward to a night off." Couvelier took pity on them and the meeting was adjourned indefinitely.

The provincial government can't take all the credit for a new $1 million scanner that Health Minister Bob McClelland has promised for Royal Jubilee Hospital.

Hospital administrator Dr. Archie Pickles says the purchase of the sophisticated instrument involves a donor, in this case the Royal Jubilee Hospital's women's auxiliary which has pledged $125,000.

Pickles says the auxiliary has donated more than $200,000 to the hospital over the past two years from money raised through its gift stores in Royal Jubilee and Memorial Pavilion, its downtown thrift store, wagon sales of magazines to patients, and the annual bazaar.

It did seem a little strange that Conservative leader Vic Stephens this week became the first candidate in the Oak Bay byelection to address the Victoria Labor Council.

Daryl Anderson, a council delegate from the Canadian Union of Public Employees, found it not only strange but downright aggravating.

"What has the Conservative party ever done for labor in this province," he raged at one point.

He thundered that the council's political action committee was "bloody well wrong and should be censured" for its decision to invite only Stephens and the NDP candidate Bennett Camp, who will address the delegates at the next meeting March 15.

But Camp may not have a solo performance like Stephens, as the delegates, after much wrangling, agreed to invite all the other candidates to the next meeting as well.

"On with the show this is it . . ." — Bugs Bunny

Victoria city council will be videotaped by Cable Ten cameras later this month, probably on the 14th and 15th or shortly thereafter.

The taping sessions will take place at council committee meetings and will provide both Cable Ten and council with an opportunity to see how the aldermen perform on camera.

The tapes will be studied by both parties before any decision is made over the possibility of Cable Ten taping all committee meetings for a regular city hall show.

Sooke residents may get more than raindrops falling on their heads if they get their sanitary sewers installed.

Capital Regional District executive director Dennis Young suggested this week that instead of releasing effluent into the ocean it might be possible to use planes and spray nearby forests with collected sewage.

"Think of the effects of a couple of runs by water bombers," he said, as the public works committee discussed alternatives to ocean outfalls.

Sooke's Charlie Perkins had his own solution.

"I was told last night about a microwave system. That's a system for the disposal of effluent in which it just disappears up the pipe," he countered.

On the Buses Victoria-Style

An elderly couple got on the Richardson bus at the start of Monday rush hour at the main stop in front of Woolworth's on Douglas Street. No seats were free, and in a loud voice the lady began haranguing the young people who were sitting down.

"Young people are so inconsiderate these days," she said. And more, in a similar vein. A young girl got up and offered her place.

She hadn't noticed them, she said, because she had been engrossed in her book.

"Would you like a seat?" she asked politely.

Came the crusty reply: "No!"

And they got off the bus two stops farther on at Humboldt Street, leaving several passengers wondering if she preferred standing with sore feet and a sharp tongue to sitting in silence.

VIKETTES CAPTURE PLAYOFF OPENER

CALGARY — The University of Victoria Vikettes have cleared the first hurdle in their bid for the national women's championship in the Canadian Women's Intercollegiate Athletic Union basketball playoff here.

The Vikettes pulled steadily away in the second half to defeat Bishops University Gatorettes of Quebec 73-58 in the series opener.

It was the 23rd straight victory for the Vikettes this season in an undefeated run.

Vikettes now will meet the team that knocked them out of last year's playoffs — The University of Winnipeg Wesmenettes. The game is scheduled for 6 p.m. Victoria time tonight.

Carol Turney, the leading scorer in the Canada West University Athletic Association, paced the Vikettes with 31 points while sisters Leslie and Shelley Godfrey each contributed 10. Vikettes led 40-31 at the half.

Debbie Huband was the leading scorer for Bishops with 24 points. Vikettes had only 18 turnovers compared to 27 by Bishops while the rebounding was about even. Vikettes had 34 and Bishops 32. Vikettes shot 46 per cent and Bishops 44.

Cathy McPherson was the heroine for the Wesmenettes. She scored two free throws with only two seconds remaining in the game to give her club victory. Winnipeg trailed 50-33 at the half.

Defending champion Laurentian qualified for the final with a 60-51 victory over Calgary Dinnies. Laurentian will meet the winner of the Vikettes-Wesmen game in the tournament final Saturday afternoon in a nationally-televised game on CBC-TV.

Jim TAYLOR

What Have The Feds Ever Done Before?

Do not hold your breath waiting for the feds to force the National Hockey League to take in Winnipeg, Edmonton and Quebec City. The gun they're shooting is empty.

Thursday morning's story out of Ottawa did not indicate any sort of firm stand on the government's part, with the threat or promise of action to come. It was a simple answer to a simple question, and it mushroomed.

A reporter phoned Ian Howard, executive assistant to Iona Campagnolo, federal minister of fitness and sport, and asked him how the government felt about Winnipeg Jets' attempt to get into the NHL.

Howard replied that it was the attitude of government that professional hockey should remain in the three Canadian WHA cities, but that other than coming out in their support there was nothing much to be done.

"I said that the Minister has spoken to John Ziegler, the president of the NHL, and told him the government would wish to see major professional hockey in those three cities," he said late yesterday from his office in Ottawa.

"But the government deals in public funds and the teams involved are owned and controlled by private enterprise."

In other words, what the government has provided is moral support. With that and $6 million and the backing of the NHL's Board of Governors you can get yourself a franchise.

Ziegler has already informed the governors that Iona has called—and said he'd simply told her nothing had changed since last year when the World Hockey Association made its last pitch for merger.

* * *

In the coming days we'll read and hear from a lot of politicians rushing to back the right of the Jets, Oilers and Nordique to jump ship and leave the rest of the WHA floundering. It is a motherhood issue, and this is an election year. Senator Keith Davey has already leaped in with both feet, saying the government is anxious to get the NHL into the three cities "because professional hockey could help unify the country.

"If national unity means anything," he thunders, "Quebec should be playing Edmonton in hockey at the professional level."

So that's what national unity is all about: the right of any city to play shinny against any other city. Thank you, Senator, thank you.

Uh, Senator, Quebec has been playing Edmonton since the WHA was formed. For a couple of years, Quebec was also playing Calgary. In one of the less successful bids for unity, Rick Jodzio put Marc Tardif in hospital.

Davey is the man, remember, who in his 54-day tenure as commissioner of the Canadian Football League suggested CFL franchises for Saskatoon and Victoria. In the fight to bore the Canadian sports fan to death, the good senator is ever on the front lines.

Incidentally, the Nordiques are owned by Carling-O'Keefe, a brewery. I mention this only because when the senator was commissioner of the CFL he came out against the Schenley Awards because he didn't feel close association with a distillery was the sort of image a Canadian league needed. Mind you, it was not an election year.

* * *

If memory serves, the first time the feds got involved in a professional sports franchise squabble it was to pressure John Bassett Jr., into taking his World Football League franchise out of Toronto and into Memphis. The fans, as I recall, were not consulted.

The second time, Labor Minister John Munro tried to save Hamilton football from Harold Ballard, branding him a threat to guess what? National unity. Again, no one asked the paying customers.

The one time the fans truly voiced their desire and need for federal support was in 1972, prior to the first Canada-Russia series. They wanted Bobby Hull on Team Canada—badly. There were letter campaigns, radio spots, even billboards—To Russia With Hull—all privately financed.

Hull was a Canadian, a superstar, a hero to every little kid who picked up a hockey stick. But he played in Winnipeg in a rival league and was thus by NHL definition unclean.

Where was national unity then, Senator?

Assorted government types stood up and protested, and the NHL ignored them. As for the letters, Clarence Campbell said "I put them in the round file."—meaning his waste basket. We knew then where the power lay.

Frankly, I'm getting almighty tired of national unity. Not the concept—just the words, and only then when they clutter up sports pages.

The antagonism between Quebec and other parts of the country will not be wiped away by a hockey stick, no matter how it's used. If the sheer joy of watching Montreal Canadiens can't melt French-English barriers, nothing will. And it's too big an issue to be used as a foot-in-the-door ploy by every sports group in search of a franchise or a buck.

The NHL isn't interested in national unity. If unity was the issue, how is it that the expansion from six teams to 18 involved only one Canadian city? Unity, hell. It can't even handle parity.

Right now its big concern is deciding whether to stand back, let the WHA collapse and move into the vacated cities—or throw selected teams a $6 million life raft and sell them their garbage franchises.

The decision will be reached by the Board of Governors, not the bores of government.

Hawks Stall Cats' March

PORTLAND — Centres Brent Peterson and Perry Turnbull and some good offensive timing worked to the advantage of Portland Winter Hawks and against the Victoria Cougars here Thursday.

The limited plus factors were enough to carry Portland to a 7-4 victory and stall Victoria's march towards a Western Canada Hockey League playoff berth.

It wasn't one of Portland's more inspiring performances. Only two of three lines showed any consistency and the Hawk defence played erratically. But the Western Division leaders still had enough to subdue the Cougars.

The centres both scored twice and earned one assist and were clearly the leaders for the Hawks.

Both also came up with well-timed goals that cut off any revival possibilities for the Cougars.

Goals by Blake Wesley and Dave Ross sent the Hawks to a 2-0 first-period lead but Victoria drew even early in the second on goals by Glen Cochrane and Leroy Heck.

Portland's Wayne Babych broke the tie at 7:46 and three minutes later Peterson supplied the first example of spirit-wrecking timliness.

Down by one, the Cougars were given a chance to draw even again when Ross was tagged with a minor penalty. Peterson, however, intercepted a carelessly-fired pass and broke away to score a short-handed goal that made it 4-2.

Victoria captain Curt Fraser, set up neatly by Gary Lupul, got that one back at 16:56 and 4-3 score meant Cougars were back into the thick of things.

Turnbull then decided to contribute his example of good timing. First off, he forced the keeping of the puck in Victoria's zone by flagrantly interfering with Bill Jobson when the Cougar forward was moving to a loose puck to clear.

That kept attacking pressure on the Cougars and seconds later Turnbull scored the 5-3 goal with only 35 seconds left in the second period. That one really hurt.

Peterson and Turnbull ran the score to 7-3 early in the third period, each with their second, and the handwriting on the wall said that was the end for the listless Cougars.

Islanders, Bays Expected Winners

Special to the Times

NANAIMO — Nanaimo Islanders have just about everything going their way in this year's Vancouver Island high school boys' basketball championship tournament.

The Hub City team is ranked No. 1 in the province, has a 40-1 record and for the first time in 16 years has home-floor advantage.

The only major obstacle to the Islanders' hopes for their first Island championship is perennial-champion Oak Bay Bays, who have won 13 titles, including the last five in a row.

Nanaimo and Oak Bay are favored to meet in the final of the 28th annual tournament and they gave credibility to those expectations by scoring lopsided victories in the opening round of play Thursday at the new Malaspina College gymnasium.

The host Islanders pounded Parkland Panthers 98-46 before a crowd of about 300 in the bubble-covered gym while the reigning B.C. champion Bays clouted Courtenay Towhees, 96-51.

Oak Bay's victory was the only one for the four south Island representatives as in other games Cowichan Thunderbirds downed Mt. Douglas Rams 76-56 and Campbell River Tyees beat Belmont Braves, 83-63.

Play continued this afternoon with Courtenay meeting Mt. Douglas and Belmont facing Parkland. In semi-finals tonight, Oak Bay plays Cowichan at 7:15 and Nanaimo takes on Campbell River at 9.

Nanaimo looked sharp in the win over Panthers. The Parkland team, fourth-place finisher in the south, played well considering its capabilities but the overpowering Islanders led 32-8 after one quarter and 54-23 at the half.

Gerald Kazanowski, six-foot-six, controlled the boards against inexperienced Greg Wiltjer, the six-foot-eight grade 11 Parkland centre, and Greg Kazanowski hit well from the outside for the Islanders.

Oak Bay's Don Horwood was the only south Island coach who didn't feel the modern Malaspina gym had an adverse effect on his players. The recently-completed gym is covered by a vinyl bubble, has a floor made from a rubberized compound and the lighting is different from most standard gyms. Due to heating problems, the gym was also cold Thursday and fans were forced to bundle up to stay warm.

"I don't think it made any difference," said Horwood. "We played on a surface like this down in Oregon."

The Bays started a little slowly against Courtenay but quickly picked up the pace and led 24-11 after one quarter and 47-23 at the half.

"They were a little nervous at the start," said Horwood. "We didn't play great but we didn't play bad."

The big forward line of Ken Kirzinger, Kelly Dukeshire and Wayne Andrews led Oak Bay scoring. Kirzinger hit for 22 points, Dukeshire contributed 21 and Andrews scored 16. Flois Aranas was high for Towhees with 18.

Coaches Joe Milligan of Parkland, Bill Spotswood of Belmont and Rick Humber of Mt. Douglas felt their players were at least a little hindered by the strangeness of playing in the Malaspina bubble for the first time.

"The players weren't used to it. They were complaining about it," said Milligan. "But I'm happy with the way they played and I think we have an excellent chance of finishing third."

Humber said his players didn't shoot well and were hurt by fouls but he is optimistic that they can take the Thunderbirds.

Rocks Eye Buckley In Lacrosse Draft

Fifty-four players will be on the list of graduating juniors from the Western Canada Major Junior "A" Lacrosse League at the annual draft of the Western Lacrosse Association in Vancouver tonight.

Richmond and Victoria McDonalds head the list with 13. And insofar as Victoria Shamrocks are concerned it is unlikely they will draft any mainland players, according to coach Nirmal Dillon. "I think we'll stick with Island players," he said.

The Shamrocks have the first pick because of the deal which saw Bob Cool go to Nanaimo Timbermen last year.

And the Shamrocks will select a player they already know and who played for them last year.

Steve Buckley will be their No. 1 choice. After that, they can pick from other members of McDonalds if they are still available. They are: Rick Bains, Steve Crucher, Cleve Dheenshaw, John Entzminger, Lorry Gloeckner, Steve Hepburn, Tej Labh, Robert McKay, Dave Prette, Jamie Robertson, Rick Sage and Mark Schoor.

Nanaimo Timbermen are expected to opt for Labh who previously played on a line with Cool and former scoring champion Kevin Alexander who are both members of the Nanaimo club.

Two much sought after players will likely be goalkeeper Jim Poelzer and forward Jack Fulton of New Westminster.

Ray Mattinson, Mark Schnarr and John Krgovich head the short list of six graduates from Burnaby Cablevision, the Minto Cup champions of 1977.

BURNABY — Mat Aitken, Eric Cowieson, John Krgovich, Ray Mattinson, Brent Novak, Mark Schnarr.

COQUITLAM — Doug Abbott, Jim Alward, Keith Baker, Wade Baker, Wayne Baker, Doug Dufault, Bruce Kennedy, Wayne McAuley, Noel Oldham, Erik Otterstrom, Doug Wasilieff.

RICHMOND — Len Ciminelli, Ian Clearie, Dave Cochrane, Davinder Deol, Ron Grant, Daryl Harris, Tim Kelly, John Lawson, Michael McGuckin, Scott Miller, Bob Patterson, Steve Reynolds, Dan Stewart.

Manitoba Backs In

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont. (CP) — Cathy Pidzarko wasn't keen about backing into the Canadian women's curling championship Thursday night, but since it's probably the last chance she'll have, the young Manitoba skip wasn't about to argue.

"It's not that nice a feeling," the 23-year-old Stony Mountain skip admitted after waiting tensely in the stands through the late rounds of Thursday night's 11th and final round while the only two rinks left to challenge her were defeated.

"It would be nice to win while you are playing. It sort of seems too easy to win this way."

Waiting among the spectators after drawing the final-round bye in the 11-rink, round-robin competition, she watched as first British Columbia, then Nova Scotia, went down to defeat.

New Brunswick's Karen McDermott, from Bathurst, ruled out a playoff for Nova Scotia, scoring a 7-6 decision over Penny La Rocque's Dartmouth foursome.

That left B.C. and Nova Scotia in a three-way tie for second place at 6-4 with Alberta when Betty Cole of Edmonton closed with a 5-4 win over Saskatchewan, skipped by Charlene Goodwin of Saskatoon.

In other final-round games, Ontario's Sheila Seltzer of London defeated Carole Topp of Montreal, representing Quebec, 8-7, and Yukon-Northwest Territories, with Donna Alexander of Whitehorse, trimmed the Labrador City rink of Sue-Anne Bartlett from Newfoundland 6-4.

Although the over-all salmon-fishing picture is far from fantastic around Vancouver Island, a few good catches continue to trickle in from a number of locations.

Several winter chinooks to 20 pounds have been caught on Tyee strip, Wonder spoons and No. 5 Tom Mack spoons trolled on deep lines close to Secretary Island at Sooke.

"Not too bad" was the word from Becher Bay, where fishermen are landing chinooks to 25 pounds using strip, minnows or anchovies, up to 180 feet of line and two pounds of lead. Bedford Island and Church Point have been favored spots.

The stretch of water between Race Rocks and Christopher Point has been yielding chinooks to 15 pounds on anchovies, six-inch minnows or Tyee strip fished about 40 to 60 feet down.

Krippled-K spoons, hootchies and strip have been used to land a few chinooks and ling cod as well as numerous bluebacks near Chatham and Trial islands off Oak Bay.

* * *

With the possible exception of Don and Walt Norbury, who have been boating small chinooks of Sidney Spit and the Powder Wharf, fishermen haven't been doing well off Sidney.

One spot that might be worth a try this weekend is Fairfax Point, where some larger chinooks have turned up around this time in past years.

In Saanich Inlet, success has been limited to small chinooks and blues in the vicinity of Moses Point, McKenzie Bay, Willis Point, Stone House and Bamberton.

Further up-Island, small chinooks and blues are showing off Bold Bluff, under the Sansum Narrows power line, near Sherard Point and in Porlier Pass.

Blues are numerous off Nanaimo but anyone wanting to catch a chinook had better be prepared to go deep. The feed — and hence the fish — has been hovering between the 250 and 400-foot depth.

* * *

On the west coast of the Island, fishermen are catching fair-sized chinooks on strip at about the 90-foot level in Holford Bay.

Trout anglers are starting to pick up some good catches on Salt Spring Island as well as in Quamichan, Brannan and Sproat lakes. In the latter area, some lunkers weighing up to eight pounds have been taken off the mouth of the Taylor River — but they're spawning fish.

Steelheaders are landing a few nice catches in the Riverbottom stretch of the Cowichan River, where the annual March run is under way.

Other fair steelhead returns were noted in the Oyster, Campbell and Gold systems.

NIBBLES: Victoria-Saanich Inlet Anglers' Association will hold its annual banquet, awards night and dance starting at 6 p.m. March 18 in the Ingraham Hotel . . . Tickets, at $8 each, are available from most Saanich Inlet boathouses or by telephoning either Ron Perks (592-1613) or Gary Vaughan (479-2173).

ERWIN SHEA

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP) — The desire for victory still exists for Arnold Palmer. He wants it. He hungers for it.

But Palmer, brutally honest as ever, admits it isn't the same. The passing years, growing wealth and worldwide fame such as few men have enjoyed have dulled the sharp edge of his desire.

It's now a yearning, no longer a burning.

"Twenty years ago I was 28 years old and broke," said Palmer. "And that's a hell of a lot of difference.

"I could sit here and tell you the desire is the same, but it just isn't there. It's obvious. My golf game has shown it over the past few years."

Over the past few years, five of them since he last won a golf tournament in the United States, Palmer has slipped from constant contender to the uncomfortable role of elder statesman. He made a major move to reverse the trend, to roll back the years, with a solid, seven-under-par 65 Thursday that put him in a tie with Bob Murphy and Tom Kite for the first-round lead in the $200,000 Florida Citrus Open.

It was his best score in two years.

"It's been a long time," said Palmer. "If I gave you a list of all the reasons I want to win again I'd keep you here for hours."

Palmer, winner of 61 American tour titles and almost certainly the most popular player the game has ever produced, has his work cut out for him in his quest for his first victory in this country since the 1973 Bob Hope Classic. Not only are two men tied with him but there are 18 locked within three strokes of the top spot.

Dave Barr of Kelowna, B.C., and rookie Jim Nelford of Vancouver were both at 72.

Better Look by Lions?

Youthful Vancouver Island football players will be performing under the eyes of the professionals this weekend.

They'll be running through their gridiron paces Saturday and Sunday, hoping to impress coaches during a player development camp staged by B.C. Lions of the Canadian Football League.

Directing the show will be Vic Rapp, the CFL's coach-of-the-year in 1977, and his coaching staff from the Lions, guest coach Frank Hindle of Victoria and camp co-ordinator Ray Vollinger, also of Victoria.

Attendance at the annual camp is by invitation only and this time 85 young men from 15 to 20 will start work in full gear Saturday at 9:45 a.m. in centennial Stadium. Following a lunch break, they'll be back on the field for another session before kickers and punters display their talents from 4 to 4:40 p.m.

Another practice session is scheduled at Centennial Sunday morning, starting at 9, and an exhibition game, for which an admission fee will be charged, is slated for Royal Athletic Park at 2:30 Sunday afternoon.

Coaches and players will meet for a windup discussion at 4:30 before coaches huddle to decide which Island players will be invited the Mainland development camp of the Lions, who have overlooked several good Island prospects in past years and may be planning to take a better look this time around.

Sabres Top Islanders Again

By The Canadian Press

There are nights when Al Arbour will go to great lengths to explain what his New York Islanders did right or wrong in a particular hockey game.

However on Thursday night, the bespectacled coach snapped at reporters:

"I don't want to say anything."

The reason for Arbour's unhappy frame of mind was a 6-3 loss his club suffered at the hands of Buffalo Sabres in one of three National Hockey League games.

In the others, Boston Bruins held on to edge Atlanta Flames 4-3 and Los Angeles Kings defeated Colorado Rockies 5-2.

Rene Robert scored two goals for Buffalo during a 30-second span in the second period leading the Sabres to their third home-ice triumph against the Islanders this season. Craig Ramsay also turned in a two-goal performance, including a short-handed effort late in the third period.

Islanders' captain Clark Gillies fired two goals for New York with Bryan Trottier getting assists on both. Trottier, who was leading the NHL scoring race until Tuesday night, now is two points back of Guy Lafleur of Montreal Canadiens.

Veterans Jean Ratelle and Wayne Cashman scored in the first period goals with Don Marcotte and Brad Park adding second-period goals for the Bruins, who withstood a late rally by Atlanta to extend their unbeaten streak to five games.

The Kings, paced by a one-goal, two-assist effort by Marcel Dionne, strengthened their grip on second place in the Norris Division by beating the Rockies.

WHY CONVERT TO THERMO GLASS?

Thermo glass is the best window insulator possible. Why? Because Thermo Glass and only Thermo Glass has a dead air space between the interior and exterior pane of glass. The dead air space stops the cold air — cold. That's comfort.

Now Thermo Glass can be installed with the 'HAIDA' conversion system, to your existing windows, patio doors and skylights, quickly and inexpensively without any costly frame changes. Phone now for a free estimate. A professional consultant will be pleased to advise you at no cost.

FOREST CLOSER TO SOCCER TRIPLE

NOTTINGHAM, England (Reuter) — Nottingham Forest coasted to a convincing 3-1 win against Queen's Park Rangers in the second replay of their English Football Association Cup fifth-round tie Wednesday.

The victory brought Forest one step nearer the unique treble of the Cup, the English League championship and the League Cup.

Forest went ahead after only three minutes when Martin O'Neill tapped in a low cross from Tony Woodcock, who had an inspired game.

Forest kept up the pressure and after a 63rd minute equalizer by Stan Bowles for the Rangers, Woodcock put Forest back in front a minute later. Woodcock then scored the third goal 11 minutes from time.

The revised English F.A. Cup quarter-final to be played March 11 has Middlesborough vs. Orient; Millwall vs. Ipswich Town; West Bromwich Albion vs. Nottingham Forest and Wrexham vs. Arsenal.

Wenzel Takes Lock on Crown

STRATTON MOUNTAIN, Vt. (AP) — Lise-Marie Morerod, a 21-year-old from Lausanne, Switzerland, has let the World Cup over-all title slip from her grasp—gone now, most likely, along with her giant slalom crown.

The freckle-faced Morerod, the defending world champion, has only one slalom race left, here on Saturday, in which she can gain additional points on the leader, Hanni Wenzel of Liechenstein. However, the additional 10 points would not make up the 154-135 lead which Wenzel took with her giant slalom victory Thursday.

The biggest change in the standings came in the women's GS, where Wenzel took the lead from Morerod by one point, 106-105.

Wenzel had the fastest time in each run—one minute, 13.61 seconds the first time down and 1:08.77 on her second run for a total of 2:22.38.

Maria Epple of West Germany was second in 2:23.54. Morerod was third in 2:24.20, followed by Ursula Konzett of Liechtenstein in 2:24.93 and Irene Epple, Maria's younger sister, in 2:24.96. Cindy Nelson of Lutsen, Minn., was sixth in 2:25.15.

Loni Klettl of Jasper, Alta., placed 26th in 2:30.34 and Ann Blackburn of Chicoutimi, Que., was 27th in 2:30.50.

LEMOLO TROPHY AT STAKE

Thunderbird Fleet Opens Race Series

Victoria's No. 4 Thunderbird fleet is holding its winter regatta for the Lemolo Trophy this weekend, racing out of the Royal Victoria Yacht Club.

There will be a five-race series with no throw-outs, racing beginning at 10 a.m. on both Saturday and Sunday.

Veteran sailor Ned Ashe, honorary fleet member and the club's honorary commodore, will be handling the committee boat and John Watson, the fleet's vice-president, will head the race committee.

★ ★ ★

Mark Prater of the Seattle Yacht Club won the five-race Laser series with a total of 7½ points. Next was Tony Rose of the host club with 11 points and in third spot was Rupert Holmes-Smith of the University of Victoria's sailing club with 12½ points.

James McGinnley of the University of Washington with Doug Abramson as crew skippered his Taser to top place with a total of 6¼ points. Runners-up were Craig Thomas and Clinton Pelto of SYC with a total of 8¼ points. In third position were Dick Rose and Sarah Steele from the University of Washington. They totalled 12 points.

★ ★ ★

Laser enthusiasts of the Esquimalt Squadron, Canadian Forces Sailing Association, will have series racing again on Sunday. Start time is 1 p.m.

★ ★ ★

In the Sidney area, members of the Canoe Bay Sailing Club will compete in a 14½-miler to Canoe Rock and back on Sunday. The race begins at 9:30 a.m. in the vicinity of the government wharf at the foot of Beacon.

Fifty-three boats were on the start line for Saturday's six-miler, which was won by Barry Camp's Chantarelle. After her came Roger Vale's Temenos, Roy Hingley's Romada, Bill Martin's Georgia Girl, Cam Thomson's Cal Lori, Gordie Inglis' Water Mellon, Daryl Foster's Tzonqua, Ed Haines' Lotte, Ken Martin's Sana and Soren Isbrand's Danish Pastry.

RVYC's Catalina 27 fleet has completed its winter B series with the over-all winner being Jack Trueman's L'Chaiim. After her comes Don Gunn's Gunnboat, Gary Jacobi's Salty Dream and Doug Ross' Amica. In the race that completed the series on Saturday Salty Dream was the first boat over the line, being followed by L'Chaiim, Bill Motram's Maple Sea and Amica.

The club's Cal 20 fleet also had series racing on Saturday. Ed Life's Semiramis won the race, being followed by Peter Coy's Kittiwake, Peter Fisher's Klahanie, Harry Marshall's Tongariro, Frank Cushion's Por Gusto, John Martin's Refuge and Brenda Jackson's Merlin.

★ ★ ★

Members of the Victoria Canoe Club will be doing their thing for the environment on Sunday by clearing up some of the debris that is blocking the upper reaches of the Cowichan River.

On the way down from Deep Bay, north of Qualicum, on the weekend we spent the night tied up near the ferry slip on Gabriola Island. There's not much room there and the wash of the ferry gives you the impression you're sleeping in a hammock.

But a visit to the Surf Lodge makes up for any inconveniance. It's an attractive spot with two of the most genial hosts we've found on the marine circuit.

We were told half of Gabriola's population have fallen victim to unemployment and were saving their money in order to meet Tuesday's deadline for car insurance. There were stll enough at the lodge, however, to make the evening one to remember.

Rivers Signs New Pact

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (AP) — Outfielder Mickey Rivers has reached an agreement with New York Yankees for an extension of his American League baseball contract, putting him in the $1-million category.

Rivers's contract was extended three years beyond the present agreement, scheduled to end with this season and calling for a reported $200,000 a year.

The new pact is for three years starting in 1980, with a total package estimated at $1 million.

Vanier Award to City Woman

The award to Mrs. Judy Tethong came through the Outstanding Young Canadians Program sponsored by the Canadian Junior Chamber of Commerce.

Mrs. Tethong, of 582 Cedarcrest, was nominated by Victoria Jaycees.

Born in Oakville, Ont. and herself a teacher, Mrs. Tethong's work with Tibetan refugees began in 1962 when she joined the Canadian University Services Overseas (CUSO).

She was in the first group of volunteers posted to Kangra, a village for Tibetan refugees in northern India.

On arrival, she and her colleagues found thousands of refugees who had fled their country in 1959.

Most were covered with sores, suffering from tuberculosis, dysentery and malnutrition and hundreds were dying.

The first task was to nurse those they could back to health. Supplies were limited so Mrs. Tethong started a letter-writing campaign to her family and friends in Ontario. Her parents' home became a used clothing depot almost overnight.

Once the refugees' health began improving, Mrs. Tethong started teaching and in 1964, the Dalai Lama, religous and secular head of the Tibetans, asked her to set up a school to teach Buddhist monks. During this time she learned to read and write in Tibetan.

In 1968 the Tethongs were married. He had been named by the Dalai Lama to head the construction of a refugee camp on 4,000 acres of jungle land and make a new home for the Tibetans.

While her husband was directing the settlers in clearing land and planting crops, she spent weeks tramping from one home to another persuading the refugees to be inoculated against cholera, typhoid, tuberculosis, smallpox and whooping cough.

She was successful and when the time came for the second round of shots the people went for them willingly to the recently constructed 50-bed hospital.

Working with Indian colleagues, a home science course was devised. She did the translating and taught the Tibetan women how to make high protein meals.

TETHONG
. . . honored today

During this time Mrs. Tethong had taken several Tibetan children under her wing. Three of them were particulary bright but there were no funds for a college education. She again wrote home to Ontario and soon her family was sponsoring the children at college.

Today, Mundgod is a dynamic centre for more than 7,000 Tibetan refugees. Tents and huts have been replaced by 11 villages of cement or brick homes. There are three schools, a workshop, several temples, flour mills, banks and even a home that houses 600 old people.

The Tethongs will be in Canada for a few years to allow their two small daughters to savor Canadian life but both the Tethongs are directors of the Tibetan Refugee Aid Society.

They intend to return to India in a year or two, Tethong again to be assigned to an area of concern by the Dalai Lama, his wife returning to her chosen fields of work.

Today's award is not the first Mrs. Tethong has received. In late 1976 the federal government recognized her contributions to the Tibetan people and she was invested as a member of the Order of Canada.

Sounding Out Hearts

GAINESVILLE, Fla. (AP) — Physicians are bouncing sound waves off the walls of patients' hearts to develop more information on the structure and functions of the organ.

"We can measure the size of the heart or its individual chambers, measure the thickness of the heart walls, assess the efficiency of the heart's contraction and study the pattern of movement by specific valves," Dr. Len Christie, director of the program at Florida Health Centre, said.

He said the procedure, being used on more than 30 patients a week, is painless, does not require surgery and is relatively inexpensive.

Christie said the technique helps evaluate patients with endocarditis, an infection inside the heart, and can show calcium deposits on a cardiac valve.

Other disorders that the technique can help diagnose, he said, are leaks in valves, congenital heart defects, thinning blood vessels and accumulation of fluids around the heart.

"Echocardiography has improved our ability to pinpoint the mechanisms behind certain heart diseases and, thus, to determine the appropriate treatment," Christie said.

The technique involves placing a small device against a patient's chest to transmit high frequency sound impulses toward the walls of the heart.

The returning echoes of the impulses are picked up by a sensor and changed into electrical signals. Those signals are then displayed on a fluorescent screen as outlines of various parts of the heart.

Some fruit drinks and wines are sold in large decanters that make handy vases for long-stemmed flowers. You could also turn a decanter into a lamp base. A glass supply store can drill a hole in the bottom for the electric wire. Fill the decanter with small shells, colorful pebbles or sand. Or you could paint the glass with thick latex. In fact, you can turn an unusual vase, or even a clay drain tile, into a distinctive lamp for much less than a factory-made lamp if you ask for a little help for what to buy at an electrical supply store.

Old Waffle Irons Make Their Mark

What could be better than steaming-hot waffles toasted to tawny-brown perfection and topped with butter and warmed maple syrup? "Nothing," you say. "But who wants the expense — both in initial cost, and in cost of operation — of a 1,500-watt electric waffle iron?"

Well, you don't have to have an electricity-gobbling waffle griddle to make and enjoy those scrumptious, square cakes. The easier way is to:

—Use that waffle iron to make those delicious square cakes in the oven section of your wood cookstove, as Grandma used to do.

Virtually all secondhand shops and thrift stores carry old, discarded (thus low-cost) electric waffle irons. All you need are the two cast iron (or cast aluminum) plates from one of these derelicts, and you're in business.

Try to remove the plates from the appliance before you buy it just to make sure you can (they're usually designed to come off for easy cleaning). Since you won't be needing the heating elements, you might as well look for a unit that isn't working for the simple reason that such an iron will be less expensive than one that still works.

To complete your unit, you need to find a couple of hinges, bend them to fit the metal plates, drill holes through the plates' rims and screw the hinges on. If the waffle plates are round, try one large hinge.

Finally, add a small, metal handle (such as an old drawer pull) to one of the plates at a point opposite the hinge(s) to facilitate the opening of the waffle iron. Now you'r ready to cook.

To use the waffle iron, simply preheat it in the oven of your cookstove. Then:

—Brush vegetable oil onto the hot plates. (Do this before every waffle.)

—Close the waffle maker.
—Bake in a medium-hot oven for about 10 minutes. (You'll have to experiment with this a bit, of course, to get your technique right.)

If your family is large or really likes waffles, get two old irons to recycle. That way breakfast won't take so long to make.

OFFICE BLOCKS NOT HEALTHY

PARIS (Reuter) — Parisians are more likely to lose their hair, develop eye problems and catch colds if they work in highrise buildings, says a report published this week.

They are also three times more vulnerable to throat infections than other office workers, the report said.

The chief cause of the ailments, the report said, is badly regulated air conditioning and artificial lighting. Workers made things worse by turning to cigarettes, coffee and medicines to cope with poor conditions, it said.

The report said 40 per cent of those questioned suffered from eye problems, 41 per cent from colds, sore throats or sinus trouble at least once a month and 46 per cent showed symptoms of cardiovascular disease such as palpitations or varicose veins.

It said 32 per cent said their hair became more greasy and began to fall out and 30 per cent complained of skin problems.

No comparative figures were given but the report said the city's estimated 40,000 highrise workers have three times the average microbes in their throats.

Little Dab of Scent The Stuff of Dreams

By LYNNE GORDON

Perfumes won't change your personality, but without a fragrance you're not properly dressed. They're the stuff that dreams are made of. A few dabs and, according to the ads, you become self-confident, mysteriously innocent or wildly romantic. Perfume ads may promise you everything but they fail to inform you of some practical details such as how to choose a fragrance, how to wear it and how to look after it.

Fragrances can be bought in different strengths. Perfumes are the strongest and most expensive. They have more essential oils and a few dabs should last you 3 hours or more. Eau de toilette has fewer essential oils and the scent should stay on your skin about an hour and a half. Eau de cologne is lighter still and last only about half an hour. Perfumes are for dabbing; colognes are for splashing. In Europe at the time of Napoleon, deodorants were unknown, so those in the know imported scented water from the City of Cologne in Germany and used it for bathing. Eau de Cologne — water from Cologne — now comes from France instead of Germany. While it would make a costly bath today, you can afford to splash it on liberally.

Men's fragrances are growing in popularity. Eau de toilette is the stronger scent with an alcohol base of about 90 proof. The cologne is ligher and the after shave is more diluted still, so that it won't burn skin after the pores are opened by shaving.

Perfumes are very delicate and, like the flowers they came from, are sensitive to light and heat. Fragrances should be kept covered or in a drawer or cupboard and in a cool place. Too much exposure to light and heat will destroy their strength.

In what quantity should you buy a fragrance? The larger the bottle, the better the price, in most cases for example, a quarter ounce of perfume may cost $16 whereas the same perfume in the once ounce size will cost $50. That's a saving of $14 on the larger size. But there is another factor. Just as a flower will fade from a human touch, so also are perfumes affected by human contact. Each time you apply a fragrance to your skin from a bottle, some of your skin bacteria gets into the bottle and weakens the fragrance. The larger the bottle, the more likely the fragrance will darken from skin contact over a period of time. Experts advise that you buy an atomizer along with any large bottle of perfume. You can refill the atomizer when it empties and avoid excessive skin contact with the perfume in the bottle.

What kind of perfume should you buy? That depends on many things — your taste and personality; the weather, time of day and season of the year when you wear it; the effect you want to create and who you wish to attract; how you're feeling and how you would like to feel.

In the winter or fall, you may prefer a warm fragrance; in the summer, something light and refreshing. If the weather is wet and grey, you might like a sunny scent. Some fragrances are cool and friendly; some are warm and sexy. If you're working in an office during the day, cologne or toilette water is more suitable than perfume which works best in the evening. An office of 50 women, each wearing a diffrent perfume, can leave you with a splitting headache by the end of the day.

Generally, certain types of people use particular scents, according to a department store perfume buyer. Blondes and petit people prefer lighter florals. Darker and less fragile types lean towards spicy and heavier fragrances Although one would expect people from hot climates to use fragrances which are fresh and crisp, the opposite is in fact true. People in tropical climates tend to prefer fragrances which are heavy and sweet.

Hardly any product which you buy in a shop is more intimate or more closely associated with your emotions than perfumes. You can purchase perfumes in many stores, but the atmosphere in which you choose is very important. You should be able to try on different scents, to take your time and not feel rushed by a salesperson. It helps, too, if the person serving you is enough of an expert to help you select the scent.

PLENTY OF TV

PRAGUE (AP) — If they want to, Czechoslovaks can watch television 17½ hours a day, the news agency CTK reported.

CTK said the state-run TV channel, which signs off for 6½ hours daily, makes 55 per cent of its telecasts in color and has on hand 1,500 imported films and plays—30 per cent from the Soviet Union, 30 per cent from other Communist countries and 40 per cent from "the rest of the world."

A Few Words For the Animals

DEAR READERS: Although this column deals with people and their problems, I'd like to devote a little space to animals, who are unable to speak for themselves:

There are approximately 35 to 40 million dogs in North America and 22 to 30 million cats, but the problem is the number of people who neglect their animals. Take dogs, for instance.

Thousands of dogs are destroyed every day at the pound because their owners don't care. Pets are traffic victims because they're allowed to run free. They starve, too, because they are fed improperly — or not at all.

A few questions and rules for dog owners should be considered before a dog is made part of a household:

Every dog should have a licence. Will yours have one?

Who will be responsible for feeding and grooming the pet?

Who will walk the animal regularly, on a leash, for exercise?

Who will see that the puppy gets the necessary shots?

Who is to housebreak the dog, teach it manners and provide a fenced-in place for it?

Allowing a dog to breed accidentally is cruel. Have your pet spayed (or neutered) if you don't want her tribe to increase.

Owning a pet can be a mutually loving and rewarding experience — if the owner will accept his responsibility seriously. To do less is a dirty trick on man's best friend. And that goes for cats, too.

Love—ABBY.

DEAR ABBY: I have been courting a 30-year-old divorcee who has five boys between the ages of 4 and 10. I am 47, in excellent health and own a good business.

This woman is barely getting by between her job and the little support money she gets from her ex-husband.

I want to marry her, but I am not having much luck. She says she likes my company, but for a husband she'd prefer a younger man. I've tried to tell her that with five boys to raise she will have a tough time getting a younger man. I like children, Abby, and I'm honest, sober and solvent. Can you think of some other arguments in my favor that I could use to win her — NOT ON.

DEAR NOT: For a marriage to succeed there must be mutual willingness. If you were to "win" her because you had more "pro" arguments than she had "con," yours would be a very sorry union indeed. If she thinks she can do better — let her try. But if you change your phone number, let her know. She may want it.

DEAR ABBY: Recently there have been letters in your column from tall people who resented having strangers mention their height.

I had a gentleman friend who was 6 feet 7, and when someone would ask him how tall he was, he'd say, "I'm 5 feet, 19 inches."

One woman who was told that said, "Good heavens, I could have sworn you were over six feet tall!" A.B.

DEAR A.B.: Thanks for giving my tall readers a short course in how to handle that rude question.

International Year of Child Focuses on Child Rights

OTTAWA (CP) — Representatives of 400 organizations, from the Boy Scouts to the Canadian Bar Association, meet here next week to kick off their campaign for the coming International Year of the Child (IYC).

''This will be a once-in-a-lifetime opportunity to focus attention on the needs of children,'' Andy Cohen, chairman of the Canadian committee for 1979 IYC, said in a recent interview.

If you accept the proposition that there are basic human rights, he said then you have to say there is no age limit to those rights.

"I'm not talking about having parents arrested for sending their kids to bed early, but look at custody cases after parents are broken up and child abuse cases and see how many rights children do have."

The IYC was first proposed in the United Nations in 1974 and the year of the child was later designated for 1979.

"The UN decided that each country must focus attention on its own children to avoid huge international events and massive propaganda."

The preliminary meeting is being held so organizations might be better prepared to press provincial governments for improved child-care legislation, Cohen added.

"This coalition of agencies is quite serious about what it is doing. We don't want to repeat International Women's Year when many organizations were not consulted or consolidated until half-way through the year."

Cohen, who is also executive-director of the Canadian Council on Children and Youth, says society must consider the rights of children because they comprise 40 per cent of the country's population.

"We are all going to be old someday and today's children are going to be running our country and possibly the world. In our rush to emancipate women we have neglected what happens to their children."

Compared with children in developing countries, Canadian youths have certain advantages, he said, "but we are not without children with those disadvantages, especially those in the native populations.'"

By L. L. COLEMAN, M.D.

By L. L. Coleman, M.D.

I've suspected for some time that my husband is an alcoholic. When I bring up the subject, he denies it, although lately he seems less resistant to the idea. Neither one of us have had courage enough to really confront the situation. I know that eventually he'll have to join AA. Is there some drug he could take until he definitely decides to go? — Mrs. G.J.

Dear Mrs. J.:

You both are obviously avoiding confrontation with your husband's drinking problem. Facing the situation, even though it may be terribly painful, is the first step to his recovery.

Alcoholism is a disease, a very insidious disease that creeps up and envelops the drinker until he is caught in a trap of absolute dependency. It is an illness, just as high blood pressure or chronic bronchitis is an illness. Alcoholism has symptoms. Some are obvious; some are less apparent.

When this concept of illness is understood, there is no need for a sense of shame or stigma to keep you from seeking the help and guidance you need. Note that I say "you," even though it is your husband, and not you, who has the problem. The reason is that alcoholism is not only a personal, but a family problem, because the destiny of the entire family can be undermined when one member is an alcoholic.

It is a dramatic statement to say that "once an alcoholic always an alcoholic." Yet the acceptance of this truth is absolutely essential if the disease of alcoholism is to be controlled. I say "controlled" rather than "cured" because it is now recognized that alcoholism, like diabetes, is a permanent illness. With proper guidance and control, people with either illness can live long, productive lives.

Your question about a drug is but another ploy to avoid helping your husband to take that significant step of joining Alcoholics Anonymous or getting a consultation with a psychiatrist interested in the problems of alcoholism.

There is a drug, antabuse, which works in a strange way. It does not curb the desire for alcohol. Cases for antabuse treatment are carefully chosen by the specialist. The drinker is warned that taking even a drop of alcohol while on antabuse therapy will make him violently sick. Antabuse, therefore, is not a cure. It is an additional way to help the known alcoholic to live as a serviceable citizen.

Drinkers who are chosen to embark on this form of treatment reach a stage of quiescence and are in a better position to have psychological support. Not all alcoholics can be depended on to maintain their daily dose of antabuse. Failure, then, is inevitable.

Alcoholics Anonymous still heads the list of all the leading forces in the rehabilitation of the chronic alcoholic. The medical profession owes a debt of gratitude to the dedicated members of AA and the organization itself for the invaluable help they offer to so many of our citizens enslaved by the disease of alcoholism.

Mild Anti-Labor Swing In U.K. Byelection

Conservative Vivian Bendall, a realtor, scored an easy victory in a byelection in the East London suburb of Ilford North. But the swing against the governing Labor party was not as strong as many predicted.

With three more byelections imminent and a general election probable this year, the Ilford campaign was seen as a major test. Conservative Leader Margaret Thatcher, who called for an eventual end to non-white immigration during the campaign, described the victory as "a handsome gain."

"The people backed us and sacked Labor," she said.

Bendall received 5,497 more votes than his Labor opponent, Tessa Jowell, more than seven times the margin by which the right-wing Conservative party lost the seat in 1974. The byelection was made necessary by the death of the Labor MP for the riding.

Bendall's first action after his victory was to pledge support for "all people and colors and creeds" in Ilford, which has significant Jewish and Asian minorities.

Although race played a major part in the campaign, the neo-Fascist National Front made a poor showing. Its candidate, who urged that non-whites be expelled, received barely five per cent of the vote.

Despite leaving Labor in an over-all minority of eight in the House of Commons, where it relies on the support of the Liberal party, the Ilford result was not dramatic by British byelection standards. The swing against Labor was 6.9 per cent compared with 12 per cent in byelections of the last few years.

Labor is left in a minority of eight seats in the Commons. It commands 310 votes—306 Labor plus two from the separate Scottish Labor party and two Northern Ireland Labor supporters.

The opposition totals 318. These are 281 Conservatives, 13 Liberals, 11 Scottish National Party, 10 Ulster Unionists and three Plaid Cymru (Welsh nationalists).

The government is able to win most parliamentary votes because it has the support of the Liberals under an agreement between the two parties.

There are four non-voting seats for the Speaker and three committee chairmen and three vacant seats to give a total of 635 seats in the Commons.

PRICES SOAR FOR SOVIETS

MOSCOW (WP) — The Soviet government doubled the price of gasoline this week to $1.10 a gallon and quadrupled coffee to $13.25 a pound in a sudden upward "adjustment" of some luxury consumer goods.

The state committee on prices also increased the cost of gold and platinum jewelry by 60 per cent and chocolates, auto parts and service on some sluggishly moving goods such as black-and-white televisions, small refrigerators, ready-to-wear synthetic garments and synthetic furs.

Park Tells 'Ugly' tale

WASHINGTON (AP) — Tongsun Park is reported to be giving the House of Representatives ethics committee what two members call seamy, odious and ugly details on using commissions from U.S. rice deals in an alleged attempt to buy congressional influence for South Korea.

"We covered the most odious episode in the story today," Representative Bruce Caputo (Rep. N.Y.) said.

"It was a conspiracy of American businessmen, congressmen and Koreans to make blatantly improper payments over a sustained period of time with U.S. taxpayers' money," Caputo said.

"The details are revolting," he said.

Seat of Issue Not the Moon

WASHINGTON (AP) — A hemorrhoid specialist told a national commission Thursday that "the United States spent $50 million to study the back side of the moon that never caused any of us any trouble but not one cent to study the backsides of our own suffering people."

Dr. Leon Banov, a Charleston, S.C., proctologist, made the remark in testimony before the National Commission on Digestive Diseases, established by the U.S. Congress to develop a long-range plan for diverting national resources to fighting digestive disorders.

Asked where federal research dollars should be spent to attack anorectal disorders, Banov said he would begin by defining medical terminology at that end of the human anatomy.

People are taught from childhood to cover up their backsides and refer to things that happen there with a variety of euphemisms, he said, and as a result even physicians and medical texts don't agree on the medical meaning of such terms as hemorrhoids.

PEOPLE STILL GET BIGGER

DETROIT (AP) — Just as the auto industry is shrinking its cars to meet fuel-economy standards comes some bad news from a Michigan State University researcher: people are still getting bigger.

But, anthropologist Howard Stoudt told a gathering of automotive engineers Thursday, most people aren't growing as fast as they once were.

"For the automotive or equipment designer, the implication seems clear: future changes can be expected to take place at a continually decreasing rate," Stoudt said in a paper presented to the Society of Automotive Engineers.

Rich children, bigger than poor children, have slowed in growth compared with the less-affluent.

Stoudt, citing previously reported studies, said today's Western adult is about four inches taller than the adult of 100 years ago.

$10 Bread Mix Seized in U.S.

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. marshals in Cleveland, Ohio, Thursday seized 20,000 cartons of "No Hunger" bread mix that had been advertised around the country as an appetite depressant and disease preventive, a government spokesman said.

Wayne Pines of the Food and Drug Administration said the seizure came as a result of an investigation by FDA and the Ohio state department of agriculture into claims made for the bread in newspaper advertising and on the label.

Pines said the mix, which was sold by mail order for $10 a box, violated U.S. labelling laws because it was being promoted as a drug "with no evidence of therapeutic effectiveness."

"It appears the recipe is for whole wheat bread with a little fruit oil in it," Pines said.

The spokesman added that each box of No Hunger bread mix would produce only four loaves of bread, making it an extraordinarily expensive bread product.

Claims that the bread is a hunger depressant that prevents heart attack, cancer, obesity, hemorrhoids and other ailments are "illegal and grossly deceptive," he said.

RCs DISSENT BUT HANG IN

NEW YORK (AP) — A large majority of American Roman Catholics disagree with their church on various key issues—including its bans on divorce and contraception—but nevertheless are active in the church, says a new national study.

The special survey of 1,405 Catholic households, released Thursday by the Gallup Poll organization, found that 69 per cent think divorced Catholics should be permitted to remarry in the church, and 73 per cent say the church should allow contraception.

The figures were even higher for college-educated Catholics—74 per cent on divorce and 83 per cent on contraception. Nearly half the over-all sample—44 percent—also thinks the church should modify its stand against abortion, with nine per cent having no opinion.

"We find that a great many Catholics are in disagreement with the church, yet they're not leaving it," George Gallup Jr. told a news conference. He said that particularly the more educated Catholics are "realizing the tremendous diversity in the church" and that they "don't need to rush away from the church" because of differences with its official stands.

The special study, made for the Catholic Press Association and funded by the Lilly Endowment Inc., of Indianapolis, found that college-educated Catholics are more devout, both in church attendance and in the importance of religion to them, than those of only high school education.

Coal Miners Divided, Poll Shows

WASHINGTON (AP) — Striking U.S. miners, angry over proposed increases in medical bills and curbs on wildcat strikes but worried about the sacrifices of their continuing work stoppage, are divided and uncertain over whether to ratify a proposed contract, interviews with more than 100 local union leaders show.

"A majority don't think much of it, but it will be mighty close," said Carl Willey, of Craigsville, W.Va., president of Local 1254 of the United Mine Workers union.

As balloting by union members begins on the tentative settlement of the 88-day coal strike, Willey's words reflect the sentiment of many miners.

In Associated Press telephone interviews with 106 leaders of union locals across the U.S., 24 said their members will vote for the contract while 35 forecast "no" votes.

But 47 local presidents said Thursday either that it is too early to tell which way this weekend's vote will go or that they did not want to predict the outcome.

The UMW leadership, led by President Arnold Miller, has not yet convinced a majority of the local leaders to back the pact, the interviews found.

Twenty-eight leaders said they personally will vote yes, but 40 said they will vote to reject the pact. Thirty-eight either refused to say or were undecided.

Many union locals held meetings Thursday to discuss the pact and the voting sessions, most of which are scheduled Saturday or Sunday.

One of the most controversial provisions of the proposed contract is a clause designed to discourage wildcat walkouts, which coal-mine operators have wanted to limit for years.

The contract, tentatively agreed to a week ago by the UMW and the Bituminous Coal Operators Association, calls for wage increases during three years of up to $2.40 an hour more than the current average of $7.40 an hour. It would guarantee health and pension benefits, but force miners to pay part of the health costs that had been fully paid before.

The pact also provides penalties—including dismissal—for the leaders of wildcat strikes and those who picket during such work stoppages.

Fossils Aid Theory

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Fossils found in Antarctica confirm many of today's continents once were a single land mass, a biologist says.

Fossilized bones of amphibians and reptiles found by a team of scientists supports the generally accepted view that Antarctica, Australia, Africa, South America and the subcontinent of India once were one, some 230 million years ago.

Dr. John Cosgriff of Wayne State University told the National Science Foundation that many of the species found in the barren rocks of Antarctica's Cumulus Hills were found on the other continents.

Trudeau Jests as Posties Beef

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau smiled and blew a kiss to several hundred postal workers demonstrating on Parliament Hill today.

The protesters, members of the militant Canadian Union of Postal Workers (CUPW), booed the prime minister as he emerged from Parliament and climbed into his car, where his three young sons were waiting.

Trudeau joked with photographers, asking: "What are you fellows waiting for? Do you want me to stick up my finger or something?"

Then, with a flourish, he blew a kiss to the shouting postal workers. His children seemed more interested in the cameras than the demonstrators.

CUPW president Jean-Claude Parrot said purpose of the demonstration was to protest delays in contract talks. The union also said the post office has violated provisions of the previous contract, which expired June 30.

Parrot, who estimated that almost 1,000 postal workers took part in the demonstration, said "this will show the public that postal workers are more determined than ever."

The union will fight for its contract demands, "even if it means we have to go on strike again this year."

However, he failed to get the unanimous consent required for passage of his motion.

The demonstration started outside the offices of the Public Service Staff Relations Board, which was setting the terms of reference for a conciliation board appointed to look into the dispute.

The protesters then moved to Parliament Hill.

Miners Reject Raise

GRANISLE (CP) — The world's highest-paid copper miners, employed at the Granby mine in this community 600 kilometres north of Vancouver, have agreed to delay a pay raise to help keep the mine open.

The United Steelworkers of America's Local 898 has agreed to a four-month extension of its labor contract without a wage increase for 250 members working for Granby Mining Corp.

Granby says it will keep its Granisle mine operating despite a $2.6-million loss last year.

A union spokesman said the union will be back at the bargaining table May 1, hopeful that the price slump will have reversed itself by then. He said the Granisle workers are the world's highest paid copper miners with a journeyman's rate of $8.75 an hour.

Monty Alton, assistant to the Steelworkers' western director, said Thursday: "Yes, we are facing the economic facts. You can't extract money from a company if they aren't making it. When they were making money we got big settlements and went ahead of everybody.

"Our position is that if an industry is making a profit we should get our share. If not there is no point in killing it."

The Granisle workers accepted a no-increase contract for 1976 and received two 30-cent hourly raises for 1977.

AFTER HOURS SNACK FISHY TO POLICE

Patrolling police stopped when they saw two young men eating outside McIvers Fish and Chips, 1822 Island Highway.

It was late Thursday night and the place was closed.

Steven Phillip McKeil and Kenneth James Smith, both 19, were charged with breaking, entering and theft of food and are to appear in provincial court.

Drunk Centre 'Abused'

PRINCE GEORGE (CP) — The RCMP's crackdown on chronic alcoholics in this Interior British Columbia city has been criticized by the director of a treatment centre for alcoholics.

Rene Gobillot, director of the Alouette River Regional Correctional Centre in Maple Ridge, said section 64-a of the Summary Convictions Act, under which the alcoholics are being sent to him, does not allow him to hold them against their will.

Gobillot said one Prince George man who was sent to the centre Feb. 6 has already walked away and is likely to do so again.

Gobillot said alcoholics should be ordered by the court to attend treatment in facilities in their own community, then if they failed to obey the order, they could be sentenced to his institution for a-breach of the court order and he would be able to hold tmem.

Clover Pt. Closed Longer

Victoria residents will have to do without their park area at Clover Point until at least May 1.

The Capital Regional District's public works committee Wednesday asked Victoria council to keep the construction site closed until that time.

It was originally estimated the area would be restored by September, 1977, but the deadline was then moved to December.

The committee was told a seawall must be completed and reseeding done on the site where a sewage pumping station has been built before the park can be reopened for public use.

Norman Howard, regional engineer, said the work should be completed in about eight weeks.

Metchosin Reunion

Former residents of Metchosin district are invited to attend a reunion at the Metchosin School March 10 at 7.45 p.m.

Sponsored by the Metchosin Museum Society, the meeting will feature a film taken in 1949 when the original school was closed as well as a singsong and refreshments.

"It's an opportunity for young and old to meet and to look back on the days when Metchosin was a younger community," said museum president Ben Swindell.

CANDIDATE NUMBER SIX

A sixth candidate has entered the March 20 byelection in Oak Bay to fill the seat vacated by former Tory leader Scott Wallace.

Does, of 1417 Pembroke, says he doesn't belong to any party and is running as an independent.

Does says a key issue as far as he is concerned, is the lack of leadership by Premier Bill Bennett on problems such as labor strife in the province.

The bidding:

North	East	South	West
1 ♡	Pass	1 ♠	Pass
2 ♡	Pass	3 ♣	Pass
3 ◇	Pass	3 NT	Pass
Pass	Pass

Opening lead: Six of ◇.

As can be observed, the normal North-South contract on this deal would be four hearts. But, as we all know, peculiar things happen at the bridge table. In today's deal it all began when South bid three clubs, instead of making the proper call of three hearts. And South had another chance to put his partner into a heart contract when North bid three diamonds. However, South elected to take the short route to game by bidding three no-trump.

What happened to South at this contract will be observed in a moment. I'm reasonably sure that the memory of this deal will remain with South for the rest of his bridge-playing life.

Against South's three-no-trump contract, West, feeling that his partner had no spades (based on South's initial response of one spade), elected to open the six of diamonds. A low diamond was played from dummy, East put up the nine, and South captured the trick with his queen. If one were to look at the North-South hands, it would be difficult to visualize that South had just made the only trick he was going to make! But that's exactly what happened.

To trick two South led the nine of hearts, and when West followed with the three, South finessed against West's hoped-for queen. Upon winning the trick, East shifted to the queen of spades, and then continued with his remaining spade. On one of the seven spade leads, a diamond was discarded from dummy. After winning the seventh spade trick, West led his remaining diamond, trapping dummy's king, and enabling East to make four diamond tricks. Down eight, for a loss of 800 points.

YOUR HOROSCOPE

Astrological Forecast for Saturday, March 4
By SYDNEY OMARR

ARIES (March 21-April 19): What was status quo is no more; there is shakeup and final result could be beneficial. Important adjustment occurs at home. Taurus, Libra, Scorpio could figure prominently. Money, remodeling, reunion, setting things straight with family member — these could be spotlighted.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Hold off on travel if possible. Directions, goals could be confused. Get better definitions, perceive terms, perfect methods and techniques. You gain by reading, detecting hidden meanings. What was obscured will be revealed.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Mrmber of opposite sex makes assertion which could be considered "provocative." Older individual figures in scenario. Accent on taxes, financial status of partner, mate. Nothing is apt to be halfway — a commitment is made. Yes, you're involved!

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Stop trying to bring back something that has seen its day. Let go of the past — you have your life to live and it is the future. Contracts, contacts, culmination of special "arrangement" — these grab spotlight. You'll receive encouragement from unusual source.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): New techniques, contacts, methods help get you through and past routine which has proven nonproductive. Take a chance on yourself. Stress greater originality, independence, creativity. Another Leo — and an Aquarian — could be in picture. Keep diet, nutrition, health resolutions.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Obtain hint from Leo message. Creativity, involvement, personal magnetism are featured. Follow through on hunch. You learn through teaching process. Gain indicated if you share, if you let others know that you can be vulnerable. Helping hands are available if you open lines of communication.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Highlight versatility — express, create, travel, accept social invitation. In matters of speculation, stick to number 3. Gemini, Sagittarius figure prominently. Leave details for another time. Gain overall view. Puzzle pieces will fall into place.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Put ideas to work — don't delay. Relative may sing blues, but you do have you own life to live. What seemed far away will come within touching distance. Short trip proves significant. Check calls, mail, messages. Someone wants to tell you something.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Examine various possibilities, propositions. Give full play to intellectual curiosity. Gemini, Virgo individuals figure prominently. Money picture is slightly erratic, but you will gain access to what is needed.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Conflict at home base is indicated. Have facts, figures available. Taurus, Libra, Scorpio could be involved. Money, budget, purchases are spotlughted. Be diplomatic, not gullible. Stand tall for principles, but make intelligent, creatibe compromises.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): See as is, not through romantic haze. Perceive potential. Give full play to extrasensory perception. Accent on what happens in hospital, within group, club, organization, behind closed doors. Pisces, Virgo figure prominently — so does the number 7. You gain access to privileged information.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Obstreperous associate will make noise, but can be dismissed as a paper tiger. One who really cares for you remains steadfast. Accept burden of responsibility — in business and love. You'll be well repaid!

IF MARCH 4 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY, . . . you were on your own early, rebellious, stuborn, creative, clamoring to hear minority point of view. Yes, you are unorthodox and many cannot live with you or without you. Aquarius, Taurus, Scorpio persons play important roles in you life. March and December should be memorable months for you in 1978, a year featuring big changes, creative endeavours, relationships that lead to something permanent. Yes, travel also is in picture.

FUN WITH FIGURES

By J. A. H. HUNTER

Joe had been busy quite a while at the table. "I just figured out something on our house number, Dad," he said. "Interested?"

"Maybe, but it seems just a regular 3-figure number," Harry replied. "Let's have it."

The boy smiled. "Okay. If you total the squares of its digits you get exactly half the number."

What was it then?

(Answer Monday)

Yesterday's answer: 32566 was SMALL.

Get the Indoors to Bloom

Flowers in the house on the meal table, or near us where we work, perhaps at a desk, mean more than a spot of color to many of us. They are symbolic of an outdoor freedom temporarily denied while we are within the house.

The flowers of spring are symbolic in their simplicity, the simple grace of green tipped snowdrops, the quiet beauty of purple violets, the wide-open look of blue Vinca flowers (periwinkle).

Many gardeners will have these flowers outdoors now but may never have thought of bringing them into the home for various reasons. One could be that it takes so many to make a bouquet; and another perhaps more frustrating to a flower lover — these are flowers that soon wilt when taken from their own cool environment.

The wilting problem is rather easily overcome by using a closed clear glass container, or one with a small opening to allow air in but to prevent the escape of humidity.

Round or rectangular fish bowls are ideal, and so are those clear and beautifully shaped brandy snifters that find their way into hospitlas as carriers for orchids.

For spring garden flowers, a thick layer of live green moss in the bottom half of one of these gives a clean cool background for blue flowers particularly. Perhaps because blue is a quiet color, it has a personal appeal. Half a dozen sweet violet stems, or three stems of Vinca minor thrust into an opening in the green moss satisfies the need for outdoor contact for days.

The jar or bowl opening must be wide enough for putting in the moss without too much soiling of the glass inside.

A pair of long-handled scissors (or tongs) are a help. The short, rather soft flower stems can be stiffened by binding on a toothpick with a small elastic band or other form of tie. The moss should be damp but not with free moisture when inserted into the container. Make an opening in the moss with the long scissor points, then drop the reinforced flower stems into place. A gentle push with the scissor tips will close the opening with moss around the stems.

No extra moisture is needed for the duration of the flowers I have mentioned, four to five days according to house temperature.

If free moisture (water in the bottom under the moss) is present, humidity will be too high, soon causing the flowers to rot in a home temperature around 19 to 20 deg. C.

A clear glass cover for the opening is an advantage since it may be used to build up humidity if this is thought necessary, or it may be partially opened or removed if the inside glass gets foggy with excessive moisture. If a glass cover is lacking, use a small piece of clear plastic or plythene wraping.

Green moss is most easily found in one's own garden, near plants which take a great deal of nutrient from soil or grassed area.

This type of moss has a great beauty when looked at with even a hand reading glass, for many types of lowly plants can be seen. When normally damp from having been attached to winter-wet soil, the moisture is long lasting.

Later in the season, a flat handful lifted from dry soil is set in a low bowl containing an inch of water which will be soaked up over night. Avoid saturating.

People having this kind of moss will be doing apartment friends a favor by taking a made-up glass container arrangement of the simple spring flowers. The moss can be used for months, and the flowers look so lovely in their green mossed glass house that no one will dare to cast a stone of criticism for the choice.

HOW TO WRITE A GOOD CLASSIFIED ACTION AD

1—IT'S BEST to start your ad with the name of the article or service you have to offer. If you have an apartment, room etc., for rent, or property for sale: start your ad with the location.

2—BE CLEAR. Readers respond more quickly and favorably when given complete, definite information. Always include the price in your adveertisement.

3—MAKE IT EASY for the reader-prospect to reach you. Always give your telephone number or your name and address. If you do not have regular hours, state a preferred time for the prospect to get in touch with you.

4—PLAY SAFE. You get the greatest reader attention by using consecutive insertions. A six-day order is best and costs less, and you can, of course, stop your ad as soon as you get the results you want. You pay only for the days your ad appeared. Lower yearly rates are available to those who wish to keep their services or products before the public.

5—PLACE YOURSELF in the reader's position and ask yourself what you want to know about your offer. The answer you give will make a good Want Ad.

6—GIVE YOUR PROSPECT every inducement you can with good copy. Classified action ad readers have the money and are already interested in buying the merchandise or service you have to offer; the details and information you give are the most important.

7—TO PLACE YOUR AD, call 385-2121, your direct line number to fast Want Ad action. A courteous, efficient advisor will be glad to help you word and place your order. And remember. Classified Action Ads afford you the most complete coverage. Telephones are open 8:00 a.m. to 6:00 p.m. for you daily, Monday through Friday; 8:00 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. Saturday. Don't allow the reader to speculate

APPLICATION FOR A WATER LICENCE WATER ACT (Section 8)

I, the Corporation of the District of Saanich, of 770 Vernon Avenue, Victoria, B.C., V8X 2W7, hereby apply to the Comptroller of Water Rights for a licence to store water out of Blenkinsop Lake which flows south via Blenkinsop Creek and discharges into Swan Lake and give notice of my application to all persons affected.

The storage dam will be located at the existing outlet of the lake.

The quantity of water to be stored is 24 acre-feet per annum.

The purpose for which the water will be used is land improvement (flood control).

The land on which the water will be used is the project of the licensee within Lot 2 of Section 66, Victoria District, Plan 1743.

A copy of this application was posted on the 12th of December, 1977, at the proposed point of diversion or site of the dam and on the land where the water is to be used and two copies were filed in the office of the Water Recorder at Parliament Buildings, Victoria, B.C., V8V 1X5.

Objections to this application may be filed with the said Water Recorder or with the Comptroller of Water Rights, Parliament Buildings, Victoria, B.C., within thirty days of first publication of the application.

SCHOOL DISTRICT No. 65 (Cowichan) NOTICE TO CONTRACTORS

Sealed tenders marked "Tender for Quamichan Jr. Secondary School," and bearing the name of the tendering firm, are invited by the Board of School Trustees for the construction of additions and renovations to Quamichan Jr. Secondary School at Duncan, B.C.

Working drawings, specifications, instructions to bidders, and forms of tender may be obtained by GENERAL CONTRACTORS only, from the School Board Maintenance Office, 2670 James Street, Duncan, B.C. on payment of a deposit of Fifty Dollars ($50.00) for each set of working drawings, etc. which will be returned on receipt of the sets of documents in good condition. Applications for refunds will only be received for thirty (30) days after the award of a contract.

Bid Depository procedures and rules for Sub-Trades will be used, to close at the Victoria Bid Depository, 1075 Alston Street, Victoria, B.C. and at the Nanaimo Construction Association, 2232 Wilgress Road, Nanaimo, B.C. at 4:00 P.M., Thursday, March 23, 1978. Plans are on view at the Construction Association of Victoria, the Nanaimo Construction Association, the Alberni Valley Construction Association at Port Alberni, B.C., the Amalgamated Construction Association at Vancouver, B.C., and the Construction Plan Services at Burnaby, B.C.

A Certified Cheque or Bid Bond, in the amount of ten percent (10%) of the tender submitted must accompany all tenders. A performance Bond to bind the tenderer in the amount of 50% of the contract price, must be provided within fourteen days of a contract being awarded. This bond shall be approved by, and acceptable to the Owner and made out to School District No. 65 (Cowichan) as owners.

If the tenderer defaults in executing the contract within six days following notification in writing of the award of the contract, then said Certified Cheque or Bid Bond will become the property of the Board of School Trustees, School District No. 65 (Cowichan)

Tenders must be in the hands of the undersigned by 2 00 P.M., Friday, March 31, 1978, at which time they will be opened in public. Repeats Jobs Call

OTTAWA (CP) — Statistics showing that almost $4 billion was paid in unemployment insurance benefits last year prompted Ed Broadbent, leader of the New Democratic Party, to call Thursday for more job-creation programs.

"It is better to pay Canadians to work than to pay them not to work," Broadbent said in the Commons.

Broadbent said government and private forecasts indicate that unemployment benefits will cost $4.5 billion this year unless unemployment is substantially reduced.

Statistics Canada reported last month that 991,000 persons were unemployed in January, up from 882,000 in December.

Statistics Canada said the net payment of $3.9 billion in 1977 was 16 per cent higher than the net payment for benefits in 1976. The average weekly benefits rose to $101, up nine per cent from average weekly benefits in 1976.

There were 2.8 million claims filed in 1977, up five per cent from the previous year.

Mountie 'Scared For His Life. . .'

TORONTO (CP) — A Massachusetts businessman said Thursday that Lonnie Neely, an RCMP constable who died while on vacation in Mexico, broke into his hotel room and told him he was frightened for his life.

Sam Levine, who recently returned home from vacation in the resort town of Mazatlan, said he and his wife Muriel were awakened early Feb. 19 by Neely who was kicking in their hotel room door.

Levine said in a telephone interview that Neely broke into the room and asked for help.

"He was was incoherent, but I could understand something about him being chased by a gang and being frightened for his life," Levine said.

"Muriel and I were scared too because if there was a gang bent on getting him, they'd probably get us too."

Levine said he called the hotel desk twice asking for the police and Neely tried to put a table up against the door to block passage into the room.

Neely ran out of the room and then Levine said two men ran down the corridor after the constable.

"I heard scuffling, some groans, then dead silence," said Levine, who said he later learned that Neely had banged on other hotel room doors.

Mexican officials have said that Neely died after falling accidentally from a hotel-room balcony while he was drunk.

But Ralph Branscombe, the consul to the Canadian ambassador in Mexico, said the Canadian government is not convinced that Neely's death was an accident and an embassy official has gone to Mazatlan to investigate.

"We want to know why there has been this cover-up," said Branscombe.

Dr. William Parker, Manitoba's chief medical examiner who conducted an autopsy on Neely's body, said that Neely had been beaten and his body was covered in bruises.

GIRL, 11, KEPT AS SLAVE BY COLLEGE PROFESSOR

MIAMI (AP) — A former college professor has pleaded guilty to using an 11-year-old African girl as a slave in his home, feeding her rice on a tin plate and giving her only one dress.

Syed Riaz Hussain Shah of Okeechobee, formerly a teacher at Miami-Dade Community College, entered the plea Thursday to a charge of involuntary servitude under a plea-bargaining arrangement. He faces a maximum sentence of five years in prison and a $5,000 fine.

His wife, Ishrat Majed Shah, an anesthesiologist, pleaded guilty to lying to immigration officers. She could be sentenced to six months in prison and fined $500.

The girl, Rose Iftony, was brought to the United States from Sierra Leone, after the Shahs promised to educate her and send money to her mother.

FBI agent Lathell Thomas testified Thursday that neighbors and visitors said the girl was kept constantly scrubbing floors by hand.

14-Month Child Created in Lab?

NEW YORK (AP) — Publishers Weekly has printed an advertisement for a forthcoming book on what is described as "the scientific investigative report of the century," dealing with the alleged creation of human life in the laboratory.

The book, In His Image, The Cloning of a Man, is scheduled for publication in June by the J. B. Lippincott Co., according to the ad in the trade journal. The author, David Rorvik, could not be reached. His agent, Barbara Lowenstein, and spokesmen for Lippincott refused to discuss details of the book pending its publication.

The ad is headlined: "A human baby created in a laboratory is 14 months old." It says: "To protect the child from harmful publicity and other participants from certain controversy, Rorvik refuses to divulge names or places, but he describes fully the circumstances of his involvement in this momentous development and the details of the scientific procedure itself."

The New York Post, in a story in today's editions, quoted an unnamed source identified as a close associate of Rorvik as saying the child was a boy and was the clone or genetic duplicate of a U.S. millionaire, in his 60s, who wanted an exact copy of himself.

In cloning, the process referred to in the title, the nucleus of a somatic or body cell is put into an egg cell from which the nucleus has been removed. The egg then begins to divide and grow and could become a mature animal, identical to the one whose cell was used.

British scientists, within the last decade, produced a living frog through cloning a single cell from another frog. Genetics experts say, however, that such a process involving humans is virtually impossible at this point.

The Post quoted Dr. Liebe F. Cavalieri, a molecular biologist at the Sloan-Kettering Institute, as saying: "if this is not a hoax, it is the most appalling, dangerous medical experiment in history."

Soyuz Ready For Docking

MOSCOW (AP) — A newly launched team of Russian and Czechoslovak cosmonauts began preparing their Soyuz 28 capsule for docking with the orbiting Soviet Salyut 6 space station, Tass reported.

No time was given for the linkup.

The Soviet news agency said Russian cosmonaut Alexei Gubarev and Czechoslovak Vladimir Remek had completed 13 orbits around the earth since their blastoff from Soviet Central Asia Thursday evening.

During their first radio communications session with ground control, the cosmonauts "reported that they had started implementing the program of preparing the Soyuz 28 ship for a rendezvous with the orbital complex Salyut 6-Soyuz 27," Tass said.

It said that Gubarev and Remek — as well as cosmonauts Yuri Romanenko and Georgy Grechko aboard Salyut 6 — were feeling well.

Romanenko and Grechko, who have been in orbit since Dec. 10, will set a record Saturday for continous time in space, breaking the previous 84-day record set by U.S. astronauts aboard Skylab 4 four years ago.

Cook and VD Still Hot Topic

Captain James Cook's role in the spread of venereal disease has become a hot topic for debate between Tourism Minister Grace McCarthy and New Westminster NDP MLA Dennis Cocke.

Cocke told a party meeting last week that the province's celebration of the 200th anniversary of Cook's discovery of B.C. is a waste of money because the explorer's main contribution to the region was social disease.

Mrs. McCarthy said Wednesday Cocke is wrong to blame Cook, because the disease was brought ashore by sailors — despite Cook's strict health measures.

"Cook made sure that any man that was going on board his ship was completely healthy and free of any disease, and he was very particular about that disease," she said.

Cocke is sticking to his guns, pointing to the captain's inclusion in a list in a recently-published book of trivia. The book ranks Cook as sixth in a list of 20 prominent historical victims.

BLAIS THREATENS ARREST

Cossitt Gets Until Monday To Return Secret

Times News Services

OTTAWA — The government has given Conservative Tom Cossitt until Monday to return what it says are top-secret documents on foreign agents in Canada.

Later Solicitor-General Jean-Jacques Blais told reporters that Cossitt would be served with a "formal notice" under the Official Secrets Act requesting a return of the documents, which the government has said were stolen from the RCMP security service.

Jerome said the time during the weekend will give Cossitt, who has made statements in the last weeks about Soviet money entering Canada to support terrorism, time to consult his lawyer.

Blais left open what the government would do if Cossitt refused to turn over what the minister said are two copies of one document and part of a second.

But the government made clear Thursday it would use all means at its disposal to get the papers back. It warned of arrest and charges under the Official Secrets Act.

The announcement delays a threatened confrontation between Cossitt and the government. He was warned Thursday he could be arrested and charged under the act unless he co-operated in the immediate return of the sensitive documents.

Jerome said Cossitt has consulted a lawyer who specializes in the situation. The lawyer has asked for more time to study Cossitt's position.

It was not immediately clear what document Cossitt is to be served with under the act. However, it appeared it would bind Cossitt not to reveal anything contained in the file.

...lonely vigil

On Thursday, Prime Minister Trudeau said Cossitt is undermining efforts of the RCMP security service to protect Canadian sovereignty.

Blais said publication of the contents of the document would do irreversible damage to the Canadian security service.

Cossitt said that during the day Blais showed him a document that indicated statements he has been making in the last weeks are true. He has been saying that Soviet money is coming into Canada

Credit Card Drinking On the Way

By AL FORREST
Times Staff

Credit card cocktails are on the way and liquor czar Vic Woodland's a bit concerned.

A provincial government ruling that credit cards may be accepted by cocktail lounges and pubs could mean more drunks and hungry families, says Woodland, Liquor Licencing and Control Branch general manager.

"What will happen if people start buying drinks for the house on their credit cards?" he said.

Woodland was commenting on a decision by the consumer and corporate affairs ministry saying drinkers can use credit cards in bars.

Credit cards previously were not legal in bars for fear customers would drink too much or spend all the family grocery money, Woodland said.

"I can't quarrel with the decision," he said. "It is a reasonable one. But it creates several new problems."

Chief among these is the possibility that there will be "overservice" — a technical term for more drunks.

Up to now, customers have had to stop drinking when their money ran out but with credit cards there will be no need to stop.

"We will be watching this situation carefully to see customers are not overserved."

On a personal basis, he said he is concerned about the effect on families' finances from credit card drinking.

"We can't regulate family spending but we are concerned about this aspect."

Woodland said cocktail lounges probably will begin accepting credit cards but beer parlors likely won't.

"It would slow down the service in a pub," Woodland said. "And then there is always the danger that someone would run up a big tab in the beer parlor and then take off. People are always coming and going in pubs."

Under the decision, customers can pay their tabs for each session by credit card. There is no easing of the ban against running up weekly or monthly tabs, however.

The consumer and corporate affairs ministry pointed out that in the case of single-day drinking, the credit is in fact being granted by the credit card company and not by the bar or beer parlor.

However, long-term tabs would be credit granted by the drinking establishment and would not be permitted.

Woodland said there were ways in the past where people could use credit cards to buy alcoholic drinks — when ordering food in restaurants or when the bar tab was added to the hotel bill.

"Now this privilege is extended to those who drop in for a drink. We hope the privilege will not be abused."

Chretien Defends Borrowing in U.S.

OTTAWA (CP) — The government decided to borrow $750 million U.S. publicly on New York money markets partly because it could get better interest rates through a public offering, Finance Minister Jean Chretien said today.

He denied suggestions from Opposition Leader Joe Clark that the $750 million is a "token amount" and that the government was turned down when it tried to place the bond offering privately.

The borrowing was announced Thursday night as a measure to help defend the Canadian dollar's value and to finance a growing deficit on international transactions.

In New York today the Canadian dollar was down 11/100 at $0.8922 U.S. Pound sterling was down 3/10 at $1.9390.

Chretien said Ottawa had the option of either a public offering or a private issue of bonds. A public offering allows more flexiblity in varying maturity dates for the borrowing and generally means the borrower has to pay less interest, he said.

Details about the interest rates Ottawa must pay will not be known for some time.

Sinclair Stevens (PC—York-Simcoe) noted the government spent $715 million U.S. in February alone, buying up unwanted Canadian dollars on currency markets to support their value, and about $45 million more this week.

Over 40 per cent of Canada's U.S. dollar reserves have gone out of this country in two months' time, Stevens said.

Figures released Thursday, he said, showed that there had been an exodus of $715 million.

"If we couple that with the outflow in January of $200 million, that represents an outflow of over $900 million. In addition another $45 million has been lost in the last two days," he said.

"When we decide to borrow more, if we decide to borrow more," the Commons will be told, Chretien replied.

Stevens asked Chretien if it was usual to have such a loss in U.S. dollar reserves. He asked if this was the "ordinary type" of market behaviour that the finance minister has been talking about in the commons.

Chretien said February was a particularly difficult month.

"That is why we had to intervene. It is the reason we announced we will be borrowing on the U.S. market very soon in order to have some more reserves on hand," he said.

Stevens recalled that last week the finance minister had said he did not intend to intervene to bolster the Canadian dollar. Now he has indicated that the central bank and the government had decided to intervene and that was obviously the cause of an exodus of U.S. dollar reserves. He suggested that Canada had been caught with an unexpected outgo of U.S. funds.

Chretien said the Bank of Canada intervened to make sure there was an orderly market. He said he had already indicated they had made use of the facility organized last fall to the tune of $200 million. And Canada plans to borrow some American dollars later on.

The finance minister said he is not yet revising his forecast of a six per-cent inflation rate by the end of the year.

U.S. Deficit Still on Skids

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States trade deficit for January was $2.4 billion, continuing at a rate that led to a record $26.6-billion deficit last year, the commerce department reported today.

The January deficit was the largest since a record $3.6-billion deficit in October, and it followed deficits of $2.4 billion in November and $2.1 billion in December.

The deficit could lead to further erosion of the dollar against harder currencies. European market sources said today that while technical factors had led to a steadying of the dollar, there could be a sharp reaction to further heavy U.S. trade deficits.

The price of gold bullion was fixed at $183.80 U.S. an ounce in London, 45 cents down from Thursday's closing rate.

American businesses exported $10 billion in goods in January, while importing $12.4 billion in goods.

Economists said the decline in trading activity was caused partly by bad weather at U.S. ports. However, the January decline also was attributed to an unusually strong trading month in December, when shipments increased after settlement of a dock strike.

Woman Subdues Attacker

COQUITLAM (CP) — A would-be rapist was sent to hospital Thursday after his victim knocked him out by breaking a vase over his head.

RCMP said that the 30-year-old woman was awakened by a man who had entered her apartment and was sexually attacking her.

"The woman offered considerable resistance," a police spokesman said. "She repelled the attack, rendering the man unconscious."

The man was still unconscious on the floor when police arrived. The intended victim suffered superficial bruises. The man was taken to hospital where he was in fair condition.

Ronald Hough, 29, of Coquitlam was charged with attempted rape, indecent assault, possession of a dangerous weapon and breaking and entering.

JUDGE TRIPLES IMPAIRED FINES

NEW WESTMINSTER (CP) — Lower courts should be tougher on impaired drivers, a county court judge said Thursday as he doubled and tripled fines for 10 men convicted of impaired driving.

Most had been fined in the $250 range in provincial court, but Judge McMorran increased most of the fines to $500, and raised two to more than $700.

Reading from a prepared judgment, he said that in 1976, Parliament doubled the maximum penalty for impaired driving to $2,000, but fines have not reflected this change in the law.

Penalties now "do not reflect the seriousness with which the drinking-driver offence has been considered legislatively either federally or provincially, nor do they reflect protection for the public or deterrence to potential offenders," he said.

"Waves of epidemics of crime, as this has been described in these cases, can be brought under a measure of control by progressive increases in the severity of punishment."

A spokesman for the provincial court in Victoria said fines handed out by judges here have been customarily higher than in Vancouver and are currently averaging between $350 to $400.

District Judge William Ostler said there is no policy regarding fines judges should set here.

It's up to each judge as he sees the case, he said, and to do otherwise would upset the basic tradition that judges are masters in their own homes.

Lyrical Weatherman's Head Firmly in Clouds

By PAUL MOSS
Times Staff

In the weird and wonderful world of the weathermen, those backroom boffins whose stock-in-trade consists of isobars, isotherms, occluded fronts, troughs and suchlike, there lurks a romantic soul with a lyrical turn of phrase.

On and off for several months now his bulletins filled with extravagant prose, metaphor and alliteration — a far cry from the usual terse stuff we're used to — have been coming over the news wires, only to be rephrased by copy editors who want the message short and clear.

The writer probably would have remained anonymous had it not been for his latest effort a few days ago, which included such gems as:

"The purveyors of cloud will be a platoon of petite perturbations originating over the Yukon."

Three telephone calls tracked down the location and identity of the author.

He works as a meteorologist in the Vancouver weather office, his name is John Thomas and — perhaps this explains all — he's a native Victorian.

Why does he pen such florid phrases as: "Churning with convective turmoil, the cooler air behind the front will keep things showery along the coast and will trigger flurries as it swirls through coastal passes and tumbles into the Interior?"

Thomas, 32, who was educated at Langford's Belmont high school and at the University of Victoria, said today weather forecasts tend to be so dry (even if they're wet) and so straightforward that all he wants to do is inject a little color into them.

He concedes that his approach is a little tongue-in-cheek but denied he's a would-be writer.

Asked what his colleagues think of his literary efforts, Thomas replied: "They're split into two factions: those who think I shouldn't do it and those who think it's quite a giggle."

"He doesn't mind as long as the stuff isn't too frivolous."

Thomas, who joined the Vancouver weather office last fall after stints in Toronto and Montreal, said he has at least one other fan — his wife.

"She thinks it's interesting," he added.

Presumably, if Thomas is allowed to continue sending up his weather balloons of magniloquent composition, we can expect more of this kind of thing:

"The energy impulse required to traverse the ridge was imparted to the front by the turbulent collision of opposing energy currents in the forms of a southward shifting cold trough and a northbound stream of steamy, subtropical air."

Some 'gold bugs' think the price will skyrocket to $500 an ounce

They Reckon No Gold In Them Thar $$$Bills

By DEREK SIDENIUS
Times Staff

With the dollar plummeting in value, more and more people are turning to that standby of old — gold.

An interest in gold is again mounting in Victoria although it hasn't reached the frantic level of 1973-74 when an ounce of gold soared over the U.S. $200 mark.

On Wednesday an ounce of gold sold here for $183.25 in U.S. funds and Thursday morning it went up to $184.50 or $206.82 Canadian. Today's quotation was $183.50 bid on an asking price of $184. In November an ounce sold for $150 U.S..

Some "gold bugs," as they are known in the investment business, feel the price will rise to $500 an ounce.

But Anne Mills, supervisor of securities for the Bank of Nova Scotia in Victoria, is more cautious.

"I don't think it'll come to that. It's a big gamble I would say."

Mrs. Mills said trading in gold has been growing since early February with almost as many buyers as sellers.

On Wednesday sales locally reached nearly 100 ounces with two major purchases of 60 ounces and a kilobar (32 ounces), the most of any day so far this year.

The bank, one of Canada's two major sources of gold bars, plaques and coins, says sales are averaging $150,000 a week.

Mrs. Mills says the sellers for the most part are people who bought gold four or five years ago, got caught when the price dropped, and are now trying to make up their losses.

The buyers on the other hand feel the dollar will continue to fall and are looking for something that will provide a hedge against inflation.

Mrs. Mills said there has been a surge in the number of inquiries over the past month.

"We waste a lot of time on the phone. The thing many people don't realize is we can't give advice. We are not allowed to give our opinions."

Gold sold by the bank here ranges from 20-gram wafers worth $118.66 to 400-ounce bars worth $81,000 Canadian. There's also a demand for gold coins such as the South African krugerrand, one ounce of 99 per cent fine gold, which is selling for more than $205 with some sales as high as $218. In September, 1976 the coin could be bought for $125.

Not many of the big 400-ounce bricks are sold here but the bank in Vancouver was sold out of them on Wednesday.

Mrs. Mills said the gold investors come from all walks of life. But many are former Europeans who've been hit by currency problems in the past.

"I'm a real bull on gold," he told the Times.

He has six krugerrands left in hia bank safety deposit box from a bundle he bought a couple of years ago.

He foresees the day when gold will be worth $500, $600, even $700 an ounce.

"There's very little gold in Fort Knox. The United States has such an enormous debt. They can never repay it because there's not enough gold left. They lost it all in Vietnam, just gambled it away."

Mulder said the wise investor is putting his money in krugerrands rather than bullion because krugerrands can be sold anywhere in the world while bullion can be sold conveniently only at the bank where purchased.

If a person is thinking about putting a lot of money into coins it would be to his advantage to go to Alberta where there's no sales tax, he said.

Radio Security Worrying Police

Police board chairman Mel Couvelier and other members have asked Chief Bob Peterson to get an estimate on the cost of radio scramblers that would garble communications to all but scrambler-equipped receivers.

Victoria Chief John Gregory said radio security has been discussed by Greater Victoria chiefs and the Canadian Association of Chiefs of Police who are at present armed with radio broadcasting legislation which is difficult to prosecute.

He said there is nothing illegal about monitoring police radio calls, but it is unlawful to use to advantage information received in this way. And that is the hard thing to prove.

Peterson told the Saanich police board he believed radio monitors tipped off burglars at Cedar Hill Golf Club and Tillicum Drive-in Theatre and hamper even routine investigations. In addition, he thought, listening in on broadcasts of information, such as involving a domestic disturbance, constitute an invasion of privacy. Yet there was no other way of relaying messages in the heat of the moment.

In one instance, there was a reprisal against a woman who reported vandals tearing down a street sign after her name and address were broadcast to the investigating officer. Her property was damaged the next night, Couvelier said.

Gregory said scramblers are expensive, about $1,000 for each receiver, or about the same cost as the radio itself. He said police forces and the federal government (which is assisting in financing) are watching with interest a Vancouver police department experiment involving silent radio transmission.

This device, costing about $4,000, provides a computer terminal in a patrol car activated by high frequency signals from a computer centre to give police printed messages.

Harbor Oil Spill Cleaned Up

Clean-up operations were being completed this morning following a spill Thursday of up to 500 gallons of medium-heavy bunker oil from an overfilled tank at the Gulf Oil bulk storage plant on Songhees Road.

Most of the oil spilled on to the shoreline, except for a few gallons which entered the water and was contained by a boom pending retrieval.

"Oil Snare," an absorbent plastic cord, and polyurethane foam were used in the water clean-up. About a one-foot depth of oil-soaked earth was also removed from the site, and replaced by fill.

"We're just finishing it off now," Gulf's Victoria manager Bob Porter said today. "We're very pleased with the way the operation has gone."

American Fishboat Nabbed by Patrol

Federal fisheries spokesman Bob Wowchuk said Gunnar Ildhuso of Seattle has been charged with a violation of fishing regulations.

Wowchuk said Ildhuso's vessel, the Mar-Gun, of Seattle registry, was spotted by the fisheries boat, Tanu, on patrol about 27 miles south of Estevan Point.

He said the dragliner had its nets out in an area the fisheries department had closed to both Canadian and American fishing.

A spokesman for the Mar-Gun's five-man crew said they were unaware the area was closed and had only been fishing two days when stopped.

He said they had about 40,000 pounds of fish in the hold which has a capacity of 360,000 pounds.

$3,000 Fire Damage

An overheated plywood drying machine caused two fires and about $3,000 damage Thursday night at B.C. Forest Products Gorge Road mill.

Deputy fire chief Mike Belton said accumulated dust and waste material caught fire in the machine's roof duct but the blaze was put out by the mill's fire crew.

The fire was out when city firemen arrived shortly after 9:08, but sparks blew to an adjoining presto-log mill and ignited waste on the upper exterior of the building. Firemen firemen tackled that outbreak with an aerial truck.

Some Salty Words Lead to a Chippy Incident

When the chips are down, salesmen will do almost anything in the crunch to ensure their products get prominence in stores, Judge William Ostler heard Thursday.

Ostler, shaking his head in disbelief, said while there is almost nothing in life that isn't contentious, added: "But I never dreamed there would be so much drama over a bag of potato chips.".

The judge's comments came as he convicted a 29-year-old man of assault causing bodily harm.

Saanich police charged Muralt after an incident Nov. 9 at Lee's Food Market, 3297 Douglas.

Sadler testified that the incident occurred at the store when he was making a delivery of potato chips and other products. He was collecting money when he noticed Muralt kneeling at his rack, located right next to Sadler's.

A crisp verbal exchange then took place.

"Keep your nuts off MY rack," Sadler replied.

"Same to you," Sadler said.

Sadler said Muralt then grabbed him by the neck and punched him. After the initial blows, three of them to his right eye, Sadler curled up into a ball and Muralt continued to pummel him on the side of the head and shoulders.

Muralt, called to the stand by defence lawyer David Shaw, told the court he noticed Sadler was putting his Frito Lay chips in the bottom of his (Muralt's) rack prior to the exchange of profanity and scuffle.

"I only used enough force as was necessary," he stated.

In his summation, Shaw said Sadler was putting stock in Muralt's rack. He said it was part of the gamesmanship involved in the business but that Sadler was "waving a flag in front of the opposition." Shaw contended that Sadler committed an assault by trespassing. He said Muralt would go bankrupt if he didn't protect his property. In this instance, Shaw concluded, "the opposition went too far in their gamesmanship."

Ostler asked when gamesmanship and violence became bedfellows and rejected applications by Shaw for absolute or conditional discharges.

"These matters must be resolved in a civilized manner," Ostler said, handing Muralt a suspended sentence and six months probation. In addition, he ordered Muralt to pay for the repair of Sadler's watch, damaged during the fight, within three weeks.

TOWN TALK

CBC viewers are still shaking their heads over what could only be described as a "spirited defence" of Captain Cook's morals and purity by none other than Tourism Minister Grace McCarthy.

There stood Grace, all red hair and indignation, under the Cook statue on Government in full public view, telling television viewers that contrary to claims by New Westminster NDP MLA Dennis Cocke, Cook certainly had not suffered from what in the old days, was referred to delicately as a "social disease".

Grace, her fury fuelled undoubtedly by fear that people might boycott the Cook celebrations if credence was given to the suggestion that the mariner might have been less than simon-pure, really went to town.

Most viewers, however, must be wondering if it was all really necessary.

One eye-witness to the whole thing said with considerable understatement that the whole thing was "bizzare", to say the least.

A woman in Central Saanich will be without her car for the next two weeks — and heaven help her husband when he returns home.

Central Saanich police said the woman called on Tuesday to ask if it was okay for her to drive her car without the new decals until her husband comes home. She said he's away for two weeks and is sure he bought the new ones but must have hidden them somewhere because she can't find them.

"Sorry Ma'am, no way," the officer replied.

It would be hard to find a group of individuals more dedicated to corporate masochism than Saanich aldermen.

Almost every Monday and Tuesday night they're assembled in committee or council sessions with daunting agendas that keep them plugging away until 11 p.m. or later, long after any self-respecting citizen should be abed.

But occasionally even stout hearts quail.

Last Tuesday, when one such meeting had already been under way for nearly three and half hours, Mayor Mel Couvelier suggested the planning committee adjourn the tail-end agenda items to a Wednesday night meeting, which would have meant three night meetings in a row.

Some aldermen paled at the thought, and Ald. David Paterson groaned, somewhat pathetically: "We were looking forward to a night off." Couvelier took pity on them and the meeting was adjourned indefinitely.

The provincial government can't take all the credit for a new $1 million scanner that Health Minister Bob McClelland has promised for Royal Jubilee Hospital.

Hospital administrator Dr. Archie Pickles says the purchase of the sophisticated instrument involves a donor, in this case the Royal Jubilee Hospital's women's auxiliary which has pledged $125,000.

Pickles says the auxiliary has donated more than $200,000 to the hospital over the past two years from money raised through its gift stores in Royal Jubilee and Memorial Pavilion, its downtown thrift store, wagon sales of magazines to patients, and the annual bazaar.

It did seem a little strange that Conservative leader Vic Stephens this week became the first candidate in the Oak Bay byelection to address the Victoria Labor Council.

Daryl Anderson, a council delegate from the Canadian Union of Public Employees, found it not only strange but downright aggravating.

"What has the Conservative party ever done for labor in this province," he raged at one point.

He thundered that the council's political action committee was "bloody well wrong and should be censured" for its decision to invite only Stephens and the NDP candidate Bennett Camp, who will address the delegates at the next meeting March 15.

But Camp may not have a solo performance like Stephens, as the delegates, after much wrangling, agreed to invite all the other candidates to the next meeting as well.

"On with the show this is it . . ." — Bugs Bunny

Victoria city council will be videotaped by Cable Ten cameras later this month, probably on the 14th and 15th or shortly thereafter.

The taping sessions will take place at council committee meetings and will provide both Cable Ten and council with an opportunity to see how the aldermen perform on camera.

The tapes will be studied by both parties before any decision is made over the possibility of Cable Ten taping all committee meetings for a regular city hall show.

Sooke residents may get more than raindrops falling on their heads if they get their sanitary sewers installed.

Capital Regional District executive director Dennis Young suggested this week that instead of releasing effluent into the ocean it might be possible to use planes and spray nearby forests with collected sewage.

"Think of the effects of a couple of runs by water bombers," he said, as the public works committee discussed alternatives to ocean outfalls.

Sooke's Charlie Perkins had his own solution.

"I was told last night about a microwave system. That's a system for the disposal of effluent in which it just disappears up the pipe," he countered.

On the Buses Victoria-Style

An elderly couple got on the Richardson bus at the start of Monday rush hour at the main stop in front of Woolworth's on Douglas Street. No seats were free, and in a loud voice the lady began haranguing the young people who were sitting down.

"Young people are so inconsiderate these days," she said. And more, in a similar vein. A young girl got up and offered her place.

She hadn't noticed them, she said, because she had been engrossed in her book.

"Would you like a seat?" she asked politely.

Came the crusty reply: "No!"

And they got off the bus two stops farther on at Humboldt Street, leaving several passengers wondering if she preferred standing with sore feet and a sharp tongue to sitting in silence.

today's markets

Toronto

TORONTO (CP) — A surge in oil issues sent the Toronto stock market moderately higher.

A trading halt was issued about 11 a.m. in shares of Combined Metal Mines Ltd. at the company's request pending an announcement. In earlier trading, it gained six cents to 21 cents a share on the sale of 58,000 shares.

Among industrials, Allarco Developments climbed ⅞ to $20, Home Oil A ¾ to $38¾, Westcoast Petroleum ¾ to $11⅜, Bow Valley Industries ½ to $22⅞ and Dome Petroleum ½ to $57⅜.

Canada Packers C fell ⅜ to $19⅞, Reichhold Ltd. ¼ to $9½, Resource Service Group five cents to $1.95, Agra Industries A ⅛ to $5½ and Abitibi Paper ⅛ to $11⅜.

Denison Mines rose ½ to $59¾, Gibraltar 10 cents to $3.50 and Falconbridge Copper five cents to $2.90.

Montreal

MONTREAL (CP) — Prices were generally higher in moderate afternoon trading on the Montreal Stock Exchange.

Volume at 2:30 p.m. EST was 272,100 shares, compared with 294,200 shares traded up to the same time Thursday.

Toronto Dominion Bank climbed ⅜ to $17⅝, The Investors Group A ¼ to $9¼, Royal Bank ⅜ to $28⅛, Bank of Montreal ⅛ to $18⅝ and Bell Canada ⅛ to $55. Inco A dipped ⅛ to $15¼, Alcan ⅛ to $25½ and Moore Corp. ¼ to $33¼.

New York

NEW YORK (AP) — Stock prices were mixed after news of another wide U.S. trade deficit blunted an early advance.

NYSE volume totaled 13.71 million shares as of mid-afternoon.

For the second straight day the dollar generally posted gains in foreign exchange. But brokers said traders still seemed doubtful that the U.S. currency was ready to stage any significant recovery.

Today the stock market and the dollar were faced with the news of another large U.S. trade deficit. The commerce department reported at the opening that the nation's imports exceeded exports by $2.38 billion in January.

United Nuclear climbed 2¾ to $36⅜. A New Mexico judge ruled in favor of the company in an action it brought against General Atomic Co. involving uranium pricing.

Getty Oil, which proposed a 4-for-1 stock split and raised its dividend, jumped 8½ to $162.

London

LONDON (CP) — Prices rose fractionally today near the close of moderate trading on the London stock market following the fall in the public sector borrowing requirement. The Financial Times index was up 1.4 to 434.8 an hour before the close. Leading industrials gained fractionally, while gold stocks slipped from earlier high levels. Canadian issues declined.

CATTLE

CALGARY (CP) — Receipts to a 11 a.m. at the Calgary public stockyards totalled 875 head of mostly feeder cattle and stock calves with a light run of slaughter cows.

There were no slaughter steers or heifers on offer.

Good feeder steers over 800 pounds 45-51.50; 700-800 pounds 46-52.50. Good feeder heifers over 700 pounds 42-46; 500-600 pounds 42-47. Feeder cows 29-37.50. Good stock steer calves 500-600 pounds

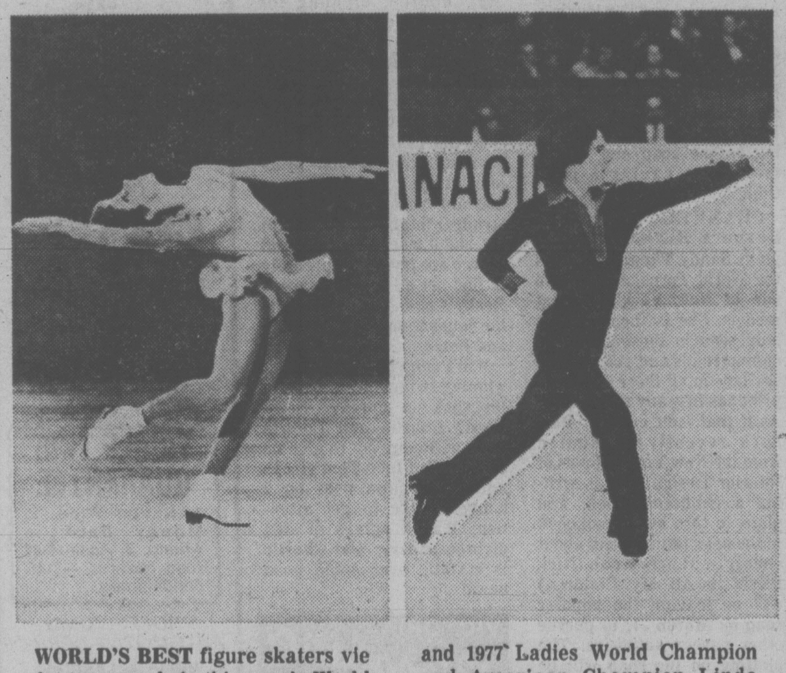
TOPS IN FIGURES



WORLD'S BEST figure skaters vie for top awards in this year's World Figure Skating Championships in Ottawa. Channel 8 provides live coverage of the competition Wednesday at 8:30 p.m., Thursday at 6 p.m. and Friday at 6:30 p.m., with hosts Johnny Esaw, Debbie Wilkes Darroch and Otto Jelinek. Among those competing will be Canadian Junior Men's Champion Vern Taylor, in the Men's Singles, and 1977 Ladies World Champion and American Champion Linda Fratianne. The television coverage looks at the pairs' free-skating final, the men's free final and the women's free final, on successive nights. The three events are the major highpoints of the competition and it is here that the skaters strive for originality in specially-programmed numbers designed around their music selections.

Lear Stepping Out Of Weekly Television

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Norman Lear, the man who brought Archie Bunker, Maude Findlay, Mary Hartman and other outrageous characters to the home screen, is saying good-bye to weekly television — for a while, at least.

He is taking an extended leave from weekly television that might be permanent. He said: "I just have a real need to flex other creative muscles."

Lear said he will devote his time to writing and directing motion pictures, studying programming for cable TV or so-called over-the-air pay TV, and working on a public affairs program idea he has for commercial TV. His last film was Cold Turkey in 1968, starring Dick Van Dyke.

Lear, a bald, sad-faced man of 55, wears his familiar pork pie hat on the sound stages like a crown. But he was the king of situation comedy, and such shows as All in the Family, Maude, Sanford and Son, Good Times and Mary Hartman, Mary Hartman broke barriers and made television history.

In the seven years since All in the Family broke TV taboos by dealing with bigotry in January, 1971, on CBS, he has been responsible for 16 situation comedies totalling 1,400 episodes either on the networks or in station syndication.

He said he would continue to work as a consultant for his two production companies, Tandem Communications Inc. and T.A.T. Communications. At least six comedies already on the air or awaiting premiere would continue without him. They include All in the Family and Maude, if they are renewed, Good Times The Jeffersons, One Day at a Time, and the syndicated program America 2-Night.

Lear said he is not leaving because he is tired of the grind of weekly television. "That's a negative," he said, "and I'm not a negative guy. I'm not tired of the grind. It's just that there are other creative muscles that are atrophying and I want to use them again."

He said he had ideas for two feature films he will write and direct.

His business partner, Jerry Perenchio, runs National Subscription TV, an over-the-air pay TV system that began serving areas of Los Angeles last June.

How long will he be absent from the creative wells of weekly television programs? He said, "It's got to be a couple, three years, and it could be permanent."

Ted Has a Series

By JAY SHARBUTT

LOS ANGELES, Calif. (AP) — Of the Mary Tyler Moore Show gang, Ed Asner has a newspaper series, Gavin McLeod runs Love Boat, Betty White's Hollywood series folded and Miss Moore has a new series afoot.

Which leaves Ted Knight unaccounted for, the guy who played silver-toned, vain, dense Ted Baxter, anchorman of that Minneapolis TV station. The Mary Tyler Moore show ended last year with everyone fired but him.

Well, Knight now has his own CBS comedy series coming up, possibly in mid-April, he says. But he won't play anchorman Baxter. He'll run a Manhattan escort service, the escorts being lovely ladies.

Had it not been for his now-former agent, he says, he might have stayed on as Baxter at the Minneapolis station, in a spin-off series from Miss Moore's series of seven seasons.

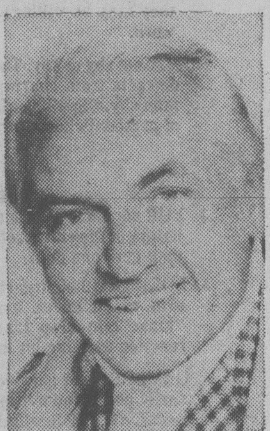
Her production company, he said, "wanted me to do that. In fact, they offered me a handsome sum of retaining money."

He sighed a big sigh. "Unbeknownst to me, my agent had made a deal behind the door and I got upset when I heard about it. That's when I severed my relationship with the agent."

The deal and agent both gone, Knight left the Mary Tyler Moore Show "though we're still good friends" — to form his own production company, which is making his new series, The Ted Knight Show.

It's just as well things worked out the way they did, he added: "I felt it was time for me to be pushed out of the nest and strike off in new directions, and that's what happened."

Knight was the last one cast for the MTM show. "I took the script home over the weekend, got a suntan, bought a blazer with insignia, grey flannel trousers, duck shoes, the whole thing. I nailed down the scene, then said, 'Who is this guy?'



KNIGHT

"I settled on someone who was a composite of four, five guys I've worked with. My on-air charcter was one guy" — an ex-anchorman here — "whose name I fear to mention for fear of litigation."

Knight said his character in the new show faintly resembles that of Ted Baxter, "but he's a little more bright, more sophisticated."

CLUES ACROSS

4. LIFE not wife. The clue is broadly phrased and applies to many a young LIFE including many a young wife.

6. GRATEFUL not graceful. In terms of human fault, it's hardly wrong not to be graceful, as one should be GRATEFUL.

8. REPORT not retort. To disparage is to refer to unflatteringly (as in a REPORT) rather than to be rude directly (retort).

9. MOTHS not myths. The idea of "intent study" rests more aptly on MOTHS. A wide knowledge of myths can arise simply from interested reading, etc. The abbreviation "maths" is not favored.

12. FARM not warm. "As the outcome," one has a definite result or reward (e.g., one's own FARM). Getting warm is merely incidental to working.

14. CAMP not lamp. Since ancient lamps survive in museums, etc., CAMP is more fitting to the idea of imagining what it might have been like.

16. LEAD not head. The essence of the clue is "To be in the forefront" (i.e., LEAD) whether in the manner instanced or not. To head is to be at the top, rather.

21. DERISION not decision. It is the official's behavior or manner (e.g., DERISION) that could seem "overbearing." A decision, in itself, can only be favorable or unfavorable.

23. CRONES not drones. It isn't reasonable to expect CRONES, old women, to do much work (even though they may be willing). Drones, as such, simply avoid work.

24. SLY not shy or spy. The clue implies that being "this" detracts from charm; in this way, SLY is more apt than shy. "Spy" has little connection with the theme of personal charm, or lack of it.

CLUES DOWN

3. FUR not cur. FUR, in a general sense, suits the broad nature of the clue's reference to "quadrupeds" better than cur (one dog).

5. FOREARM not firearm. The bullet striking his firearm would knock it out of his hand, rather than "make him drop his gun" (as he would do as a reaction to being hit in the FOREARM).

6. GAMBLER not gambles. Rash gambles do no necessarily persist on a "time and time again" basis, as a rash GAMBLER will do, characteristically.

10. CARE not dare. As suggested, a person who is very agile, on the other hand, would perhaps CARE to cross. However, he would do so only if he felt reasonably safe; i.e., it's not really a question of daring.

17. FEAR not hear. When people hear such scare-mongering stories, that is actual rumor; it's not the case that rumor may well be "to blame."

20. LADY not lazy. There is nothing special about being lazy as a driver that is apt to attract criticism. A LADY driver is probably conscious of some degree of critical prejudice in this way.

22. NOT not now. "Inevitably" is said of an unwelcome fact, so NOT is more apt than now.

SOAP OPERA SCENE

Don't Fence Her In

By STEVEN H. SCHEUER

NEW YORK — En Garde: Actress at Work! Marilyn McIntyre, who plays the clinically cool and compassionate psychologist Carolyn Hanley in Search for Tomorrow, is all bubbly enthusiasm in real life. When we talked, she had just come from a lesson in stage fencing and had a small cut on her hand to prove that they mean business in those classes.

"Stage fencing is so different from regular fencing," the lovely actress said. "You actually have to choreograph your movements precisely and work without a mask or gloves. I also take rapier and dagger lessons."

Asked if it was rare for actresses to take fencing lessons, Marilyn admitted there weren't many parts for women in which they would be called upon to defend themselves with a rapier or sabre. However, she heard of an old melodrama about lady pirates in which the climactic movements involve a duel between two women.

Marilyn isn't one of those actresses who knew they wanted to act since they were little, dressing up in their mother's clothes. In fact, Marilyn wasn't bitten by the acting bug until she was in college (Guilford College in Greensboro, N.C.).

"I was interested in doing some backstage work," said Marilyn, "and I showed up when producers were casting for Ibsen's The Wild Duck. I somehow got involved and read for the part of Hedwig. To make a long story short, I got the part and that started it."

Marilyn plunged herself into drama studies and worked in many plays, both on stage and backstage. She went to the North Carolina School of the Arts and also studied at the Rose Buford College of Speech and Drama in Kent, England, before returning to the United States to study acting at Penn State University.

McINTYRE

Armed with all that training experience, including numerous appearances in such prestigious theatres as the Arena Stage in Washington, D.C., and the Utah Shakespeare Festival, Marilyn came to New York to seek work on the stage.

She read a casting notice in a show business publication calling for a young lady to play a governess but there was one stipulation . . . the notice described the governess as extremely well built. Undaunted, Marilyn helped nature along with some padding and went off to the audition. When she arrived at the theatre, there were many girls waiting their turn, some of them wearing the briefest bikinis. Marilyn won the part but, alas, the play lasted only one performance.

RUCKER

Search for Tomorrow came next. Marilyn was signed for the role of Carolyn Hanley, a part that was supposed to last only 10 weeks. That was in May of last year. The audience response was so good, however, that the writers decided to bring Carolyn back after the plot had her leaving.

"Acting in a soap requires a diffferent style," said Marilyn. "It's as stylized in its own way as Shakespearean acting is. I have learned a great deal appearing on the soap and what's more, I'm having a good time."

CHANNEL CHATTER: Barbara Rucker not only plays Sandy Thompson in As the World Turns, she is also one of New York's busiest models. She is the gorgeous lady seen in those hotel TV commercials and you can see her face in all those cosmetic print ads in many magazines. As if that isn't enough, Barbara recently graduated from the New York Schools of Interior Design, and is writing a children's book, and plans to turn out a cookbook in the near future. Talk about energy . . . Larry Keith (Nick Davis in All My Children) will be leaving the popular soap on March 21, to pursue other career activities. The plotting on the soap will be reflected by Nick's offer on an out-of-town job . . . Two other soap stars also moonlighting with modeling jobs are Love of Life's Elain Grove (Wendy) and Ann Spangler McCarthy (Bambi) . . . How about this for irony? Kate Mulgrew left the role of Mary Ryan in Ryan's Hope to broaden her acting scope. She went out of town recently to open in a Connecticut production of Othello, playing the role of Desdemona. Mary Carney, who replaced Kate in the role of Mary Ryan, simply hopped over to play — you guessed it — Desdemona in an Off-Broadway production of Othello.

PLOT PORTENTS. Faith floors the Ryan clan with news about Tom in Ryan's Hope. Delia is still suffering from her hysterical blindness, when no one is around, and she's treading on thin ice. It won't be long before someone catches on to her game.

Rebuffed by Larry Atwood, Jeri could be the one person to throw a monkey wrench in the Atwood plans on Days of Our Lives. Laura keeps her cool, but those frosty relations with Bill continue. Meanwhile, Kate keeps fending Bill off.

On Edge of Night, Kevin broods about his "sexual problems" while Logan and Raven are having no trouble in that department. Miles asks Denise for a divorce so he can spend more time with Nicole and Winter, his pair of ladies on the side.

Kay Chancellor's schemes to hold the younger Derek keep the plot and the hisses going on The Young and The Restless. Once again, dreamer Jill proves to be no match for devious Kay. Sensitive Leslie appears to be surviving the innuendoes from sister Lorie's novel, but Lorie is catching flak, and her marriage with Lance appears in jeopardy.

Dan is involved with a triangular love affair in All My Children, dividing his time between young and sweet Devon and older and more experienced Brooke. Meanwhile, Christina receives some shocking news about Dr. David Thornton.

On One Life to Live, Brad is also suffering sexual problems at home, so he ventures out into the night to see if a stranger might stimulate him . . . and it works. Edwina and Marco are trying desperately to find out all they can about Becky's past, and Doria puts the squeeze on Brad, Melinda and Peter.

Will Penny be patient about winning swinger Tom back in the sack on Forever Fernwood? Charlie and Loretta work on Penny not to give up on Tom, but then Tom strays again. Grandpa goes on a hunger strike to get attention; Wanda agrees to sign divorce papers; and Charlie is ecstatic over some good news!

Spotlight on Movies

Ice Station Zebra, on 8 at 12:30 p.m. Rock Hudson stars in this 1968 adventure drama about a nuclear submarine's harrowing voyage to the North Pole. With Ernest Borgnine, Patrick McGoohan and James Brown. (1968) It concludes Tuesday at this time.

The Smugglers, on 11 at 1 p.m. Shirley Booth and Carol Lynley get swept into smuggling while touring Europe. (1968)

Dear Heart, on 5 at 3 p.m. A love story at a convention. Glenn Ford is a salesman, Geraldine Page is a lonely spinster. With Angela Lansbury and Michael Anderson Jr. (1964)

The Seven Ups, on 4 at 9 p.m. Made in 1973 and starring Roy Scheider as a member of an action-filled undercover police squad.

DAVID HUGHES managed to survive his latest filmmaking endeavor, but at times it was touch and go. Hughes, a zoologist, prepared The Living Sands of Namib, seen tonight as part of the National Geographic series on Channel 9 at 8, and spent nearly a year in the fierce desert. One time he was bit by a giant cobra and temporarily lost his vision. For weeks at a time he had to endure temperatures that ranged above 100 degrees F., and battle the ever-present sand that got into everything — food, cameras and clothes. But he persisted to the end and captured amazing footage of a variety of desert creatures, many of which are found only in this southwestern Africa desert.

Sybil, on 5 at 9 p.m. Based on an actual case, and made for TV in 1976, the drama involves a woman plagued with multiple personalities. She appears to be shy, but is swept up in irrational acts and then can't remember what happened. Starring Sally Field in the title role, with Joanne Woodward, Brad Davis and Martine Bartlett. Conclusion Tuesday at 9 p.m.

Mahogany, on 8 at 9 p.m. The tale of a high-fashion model portrayed by Diane Ross, and how she made it to the top. With Billy Dee Williams, Anthony Perkins and Jean-Pierre Aumont. (1975)

Borsalino, on 6 at 12:10 a.m. Jean-Paul Belmondo and Alain Delon are small-time hoods in Marseilles in the 1930s. Their rise is chronicled in this French-made, 1970 drama.

McQ, on 8 at 12:10 a.m. John Wayne is beyond the law, in this 1974 police drama patterned after the Dirty Harry series. Wayne plays a Seattle lieutenant who quits the force to hunt down the killer of one of his buddies. (1974)

The Quiller Memorandum, on 7 at 1:35 a.m. A 1966 spy drama starring George Segal as a U.S. secret agent detailed to track down a neo-Nazi faction in Berlin. With Alec Guiness.

The Fly, on 8 at 2:25 a.m. A scientist experiments with mutation, and to his horror finds that he has become part housefly. (1958)

Branded, on 6 at 2:40 a.m. Alan Ladd stars in this 1950 western about a young man posing as another to inherit a fortune. (1950)

Today's Highlights

Miss Teen Canada Pageant, on 8 at 7:30 p.m. Twenty-one entrants, quickly pared down to four semi-finalists, are featured in this 90-minute production from Toronto. Hosts are 1974's Miss Canada, Blair Lancaster, and singer Cal Dodd.

Body Human, on 7 at 8 p.m. A documentary on the body's circulatory system, with some examples of what can go wrong and how doctors can correct problems. The film includes interior views of the aorta, the lung and a womb containing a 40-day-old embryo. Four actual surgery cases are also presented.

National Geographic, on 9 at 8 p.m. Animals manage to survive in the hot, 1,300-mile-long Namib desert in southwestern Africa, much of which is known as Namibia. Some animals drink moisture from their own bodies, others import it. Despite the instense heat, the area thrives with life, as the film-makers show.

Superspecial, on 2 and 6 at 9 p.m. Toller Cranston stars in The Ice Show, with skating routines set to music. Others joining the Olympic figure skating medalist are David Porter and Barbara Berezowski, Elizabeth Freeman, Mark and Janet Hominuke, Don Fraser and Candy Jones, Jim Millins and Colleen O'Connor and Wendy Burge.

Meeting of Minds, on 9 at 9:30 p.m. Steve Allen created this show, and it returns with another season to continue the imagined dialogue among a number of historical figures. Tonight Plato, played by David Hooks, meets Florence Nightingale (Jayne Meadows), Martin Luther (Leon Askin) and Voltaire (John Hoyt).

Man Alive, on 2 and 6 at 10:30 p.m. Bruno Bettleheim, the noted child psychologist, talks about the role of fairy tales and why he believes children find them important in their development — good is rewarded and evil punished.

Who Will Win?

Tonight at 9, Cable Ten provides viewers with a chance to study the candidates, and to question them by phone on any issues they care to raise.

All parties have now nominated a candidate to complete the term of retired Consevative MLA Dr. Scott Wallace: Vic Stephens, who is also head of the Conservative party in B.C., Graham Ross-Smith, for the Liberal party, Bennett Camp, for the New Democratic Party, and Frank Carson, for the Socred party.

Today's Highlights

Winners, on 7 and 12 at 3 p.m. Children's special. A pensioner, short of funds, refuses help even though her apartment is freezing because she can't pay the gas bill. A young boy decides to help her out. Starring Ernie Hudson and Janet MacLachlan.

World Figure Skating Championships, on 8 at 6 p.m. The men's free finals contest live from Ottawa. Brian Pockar represents Canada.

Gene Kelly: An American in Pasadena, on 2 and 6 at 8 p.m. A salute to the famed movie dancer and director, who starred in a variety of musicals before turning to directing. Taped in Pasadena, Calif., the program includes appearances by Lucille Ball, Cyd Charisse, Gloria de Haven, Betty Garrett, Kathryn Grayson, Janet Leigh, Liza Minelli and Frank Sinatra.

Julie Andrews, on 7 at 8 p.m., and on 8 at 9 p.m. One Step into Spring is the name of this relaxed variety show, and guests include the Muppets, Alan King, Leslie Uggams, and Leo Sayer.

Song by Song by Ira Gershwin, on 9 at 8:05 p.m. Julia McKenzie, Millicent Martin and David Kernan present a tribute to the lyrics of Ira Gershwin.

Canadian Express on 2 at 9 p.m. Terry Jacks is the host — and sings some of his own songs — and also introduces singers Denis McCann, Craig Wood, Charlotte Cormier and Beth and David.

Spotlight on Movies

Things in Their Season, on 8 at 12:30 p.m. Patricia Neal stars in this 1974 made-for-TV drama about life on a family dairy farm, and how it changes when a member of the family is sick with leukemia. With Ed Flanders.

Secret of the Incas, on 11 at 1 p.m. Charlton Heston and Robert Young star in this 1954 adventure set in Peru's Andes Mountains. Most of the location shooting was done at the city of Machu Picchu, fabled centre of the Incan culture, but the plot is a contemporary one of intrigue.

The Hunchback of Notre Dame, on 5 at 3 p.m. Anthony Quinn gets to emote in this version of Victor Hugo's classic, and Gina Lollobrigida gets to pout as the Gypsy girl loved by the hunchbacked cathedral bell-ringer. (1956)

Commandos, on 7 at 11:30 p.m. Lee Van Cleef and Jack Kelly take the star roles in this Second World War adventure about a mission behind enemy lines in South Africa. The movie was made by the one-time enemies — the Germans and Italians in 1968.

WUSA, on 6 at 12:10 a.m. Paul Newman mixed up in a right-wing radio station in New Orleans. With Joanne Woodward, Anthony Perkins and Laurence Harvey.

The Terminal Man, on 8 at 12:10 a.m. Michael Crichton's novel brought to the screen about an electronic implant that is supposed to control violence. George Segal and Joan Hackett. (1970)

Anatomy of a Murder, on 7 at 1:30 a.m. Otto Preminger can often be heavy-handed in his productions, but in this one he keeps a rein on it. James Stewart plays a small-town lawyer, Lee Remick a woman who claims she was raped by the man murdered by her husband. (1959)

Lock Up Your Daughters, on 6 at 2:25 a.m. It's 18th century London and sailors are on a leave, with the expected result in this English comedy. Christopher Plummer and Suzanne York are given good support by a variety of character actors.

Halls of Anger, on 8 at 2:25 a.m. High school racial tension, with a black school the focus of attention. (1970)

X-Rated Actress A Gong Show Hit

By JAY SHARBUTT

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — There is a bastion of talent on television called The Gong Show. The host, Chuck Barris, always is introduced by lovely ladies. One is Carol Connors. She is no ordinary introducer.

She was the nurse in Deep Throat, the noted film that was extremely X-rated as it showed grunting and groaning ladies and gentlemen doing that which causes a rating of X.

Connors, 23, said she is from a U.S. Army family, was born in New Jersey and raised in Fort Worth, Tex., and Fort Dix, N.J. She was asked how she got into a film such as Deep Throat.

She said it began when she was 18, vacationing in Miami, Fla. A photographer saw her on the beach and told he could get her work as a model. And he did, she said.

Then, she said, "one day he called and said, 'I have some friends down from New York who are putting together a movie and what do you think?' And I said, 'Wow, me in the movies.' "

Did he explain the nature of the epic?

"I just wanted to be in the movies, I didn't even know what kind of movie it was. As a matter of fact, I didn't even know they had those types of movies, I was so naive. . .

"I guess the hardest thing for me to do was to take off my clothes in front of people I didn't know. But once I got past that, the rest was easy. And the rest is history."

What is it like making an X-rated movie?

"Well, it's just like making any other kind of film, only the action is sex," she said with a shy smile. "That's the only difference. It's hard work, it's acting and what can I say?"

She said she is still an adult film thespian, and just finished The All-New Erotic Adventures of Candy and Sweet Savage, cast in the latter as a Southern madam name of Lily Lovetree.

She was asked if she considers herself notorious. She thought about it a minute, then flashed a saucy grin.

"Sure."

Today's Highlights

World Figure Skating Championships, on 8 at 6:30 p.m. Live from Ottawa, tonight the women compete in the free finals. Heather Kemkaran represents Canada.

On Trial, on 11 at 8 p.m. A pilot program for a proposed series on courtroom drama. The plot involves a schoolboy charged with manslaughter after being accused of striking his teacher. Starring Tim Roche and Peggy McCay.

Tommy Hunter Country, on 2 and 6 at 9 p.m. Tommy is joined by Tom T. Hall. Also appearing are Donna and Leroy, Maurice Bolyer, Al Cherny and the OK Chorale.

Incredible Hulk, on 7 at 9 p.m. Bill Bixby stars as Dr. David Banner who keeps turning into a slavering monster. In the first of the series, the doctor makes friends with a boxer looking for victory in the ring.

That's Hollywood, on 8 at 9:30 p.m. A look back at some of the great performers and their top scenes — Orson Welles, Errol Flynn, Katharine Hepburn and Henry Fonda.

Husbands, Wives and Lovers, on 7 at 10 p.m. Debut of this series about five couples with differing backgrounds and their escapades. In the first program the couple considered the most stable among the 10 friends announce they are separating.

A Genteel, Classical Look

Every classic line and impressive detail of this two-storey home suggests the luxury and aristocracy of a genteel English mansion. The stone surround and the heavy plank door of the deeply-recessed front entrance emphasizes the tone of history and permanence established by the brick veneer, stucco and board, and shingled roof of the exterior.

Inside the entrance foyer, the traditional begins to merge with the modern and the practical, blending the formal and the natural into an impressive and unique whole. You move left to the library or go right to the formal living room.

Although traditional in general character, this home is definitely right up-to-date in modern conveniences. The kitchen, breakfast nook and enormous family room with raised hearth fireplace is one vast open area, which provides for a smooth and easy traffic flow. The kitchen itself is a homemaker's dream, featuring an L-shaped countertop, eye-level oven and a central work island with grill top. The nook is sufficiently large to allow for any style or dining decor and furnishing.

Conveniences abound. Two downstairs vanity baths, conveniently-located utility and laundry room, scads of storage space, and a formal dining room and sliding glass doors connecting to a rear patio off the family room.

The upstairs is equally as grand. Five bedrooms, all with charming diamond-paned windows and ample closets. The master bedroom has a full walk-in closet behind a pocket door, as well as a regular closet with louvered bi-fold doors. A three-piece ensuite bath with shower adjoins a large vanity area facing the walk-in closet.

Naturally, this home has such standard amenities as a full basement and a double garage with adequate space for a home workshop, garden tools, etc.

Choosing the furnishings and the wallcoverings for this stately home will be a labor of love.

Plans for design No. 65-3247 may be obtained at a cost of $70 for the first set and $9 for each additional set, plus $4.00 for postage and handling. B.C. residents please include 7 per cent sales tax.

Send for the current edition of Select Home Designs, Series #34, featuring imaginative decorating and home improvement ideas, plus 350 quality home plans of every type. Available for $2.25 ($1.75 plus 50 cents postage and handling). To order these items please send cheque or money order payable to the Home of the Week. Address to: Home of the Week, c/o Victoria Press, 382 W. Broadway, Vancouver, B.C. V5Y 1R2.

TV MAILBAG

By THOM MEAD

HOLLYWOOD — The TV Mailbag:

Q. A friend told me the gal who plays Trish Clayton on Days of Our Lives is leaving the daytime soaper. Is it true? And if so, will her role continue or will she get killed off, as happens in so many other daytime programs? — P. W.

A. It is true Patty Weaver, a very talented actress-singer, will leave Days of Our Lives. She says she wants to devote full time to a film and singing career.

As for how she exits the soaper, only the story writers know for sure.

Q. Can I have some background on Valerie Bertinelli of One Day at a Time? — R. J.

A. Valerie Bertinelli, who plays Barbara Cooper on One Day at a Time, was born on April 23, 1960, in Wilmington, Del. She, her mother, her older brother and two younger brothers moved to the West Coast in 1971, when her father, a General Motors executive, was transferred to the Van Nuys, Calif., plant.

About that time, Valerie developed a yen to be an actress and enrolled at the Tami Lynn Academy of Artists in Los Angeles to get some dramatic training. Her interest increased so she kept at it and accumulated professional credits, including a television appearance on Apple's Way, commercials and United Way public service announcements. Her experience brought her to attention of the producers of the weekly comedy series One Day, where she passed a screen test and landed her first big continuing role on television.

Valerie was an honor student at Granada Hills High School, where she graduated. Her hobbies run to sports, skiing, swimming and tennis. She lives with her family in Northridge, just north of Los Angeles.

Q. Did Robert Blake play in The Little Rascals? — D. P.

A. No. At age 5, Blake played in Our Gang and was in the movie series for five years. He subsequently played the role of Little Beaver in the Red Ryder movies.

Q. Could you please tell me where I can write to Erick Estrada who plays "Ponch" on the NBC series CHiPs? — L. T.

A. I would suggest you write to him in care of MGM Television, 10202 W. Washington Blvd., Culver City, Calif.

Questions of general interest will be answered in the column. Volume of mail prohibits personal replies. Inquiries should be sent to Thom Mead, TV Mailbag, c/o Prevue, Box 300, Victoria, B.C., V8W 2N4.

Pat Barclay

For a year, when our children were small, we lived next door to what was known around the neighborhood as "the Salvation Army house." Ostensibly an ordinary suburban home, it was owned by the Army and occupied by a succession of officers and families during their postings in the city. The year we lived next door to it, the "Salvation Army house" contained a family of seven, and what a family it was.

The wife, who was perhaps 10 years older than myself, was irrepressibly generous. That was the year when the Salvation Army made donations to us — everything from outgrown and still serviceable baby clothes to an enormous frozen pike. And I'll never forget the day when the five children washed the family car and half the small fry in the neighborhood lined up on the sidewalk to goggle.

That Army family had something, and after reading R. G. Moyles' history of the Salvation Army, The Blood and Fire of Canada, it is not difficult to see what it was. Commitment to the things one professes to believe in is a rare commodity today. Fanaticism is plentiful enough. So, of course, is apathy. But good old-fashioned, socially gauche and un-cool commitment is a rare bird indeed. Maybe that's why it seems so valuable.

Up to a point, that is. You have to be careful, in Canada, to stay respectable at all times. R. G. Moyles' history of the Salvation Army in this country reminded me of the way China and Russia are said to have eventually defeated any and all attackers — by sheer weight of size and the process of absorption. Faced with what I have earlier described as "the fierce Canadian passion for respectability," what did the invading Army eventually do? Settle for respectability on the mainland and retreat to Newfoundland, that's what.

The Army landed in Canada in 1882. Two years later it could boast of "a great army of 73 Corps, with 35 outposts, divided into five divisions, under the command of 142 officers." With bands and banners and such high-jinks as headstands and cartwheels performed by the likes of "Happy Bill" Cooper, a reformed alcoholic and wife-beater, the Army was easily the best show in town. So enthusiastic were their followers that attempts by some town councils to have them branded a public nuisance soon fizzled out.

Its only real defeat, in those early days, was in Quebec: "The Salvation Army . . . (became) caught between the crossfire of two enemy strongholds . . . Catholicism of the Quebecois and . . . evangelical Protestantism of English Ontario." ("Convert the Roman Catholics and show them the light," urged the Presbyterians.) Sensibly, the Army chose instead to retreat, from all but the English quarter of Montreal.

It fared better in B.C and the Klondike. In Skagway, even the infamous Soapy Smith was claimed as a convert, although he was unfortunately "shot and killed by a member of the vigilante committee" three days later. In darkest Montreal, the Army established a toe-hold at Joe Beef's Canteen, a hotel for transients near the waterfront which had once been a notorious restaurant decorated with human skeletons, parrots, bears and monkeys.

But it was to Newfoundland that the Army really came home: "Its noisy meetings, its emotionally-based religious experiences, its participation through testimony, were what many Newfoundlanders, long deprived of religious ritualism, were waiting to receive." By 1920 the Salvationist population of the island equalled that of the whole of Canada east of Manitoba.

R. G. Moyles (who is a Salvationist himself, as well as a native Newfoundlander and Associate Chairman of the English Department at the University of Alberta) divides his history into three parts. Until 1892, the Army's story is consistently expansionist. But in 1892 the combination of economic depression and internal strife between what was essentially the British hierarchy and the Canadian ranks effected a movement towards consolidation. After 1900 the Salvation Army became increasingly devoted to social and rehabilitative programs, and the old evangelical fervor began to subside into "middle-class respectability." ("The predictability of Salvation Army worship (is) only infrequently thwarted by an imaginative corps officer," laments Moyles.)

As the historian of a subject dear to his heart, Moyles makes a conscious effort to be objective, analytical and thorough. His book abounds in human drama and lively eye-witness reports, for with Carlyle he sees history as "the essence of innumerable biographies." Photographs, seven appendices, footnotes, a bibliography and an index round out what is, most obviously, a genuine labor of love.

Tales of the Eskimo

By JUDITH TERRY

MELZACK
. . . adaptations

Peter Pitseolak was a remarkable man, as Dorothy Eber makes clear in her introduction to Peter Pitseolak's Escape From Death. His life spanned a period of enormous change for the Eskimo and, aware of all that was being lost, he sought to record what he could, so that "my grandchildren will know what went on while I was alive."

This is an account of a near-disaster after a walrus hunt in company with his son Ashevak. Pitseolak drew the pictures himself and the narrative has been adapted from the accounts he left of the incident. With its small, brilliant, striking pictures, the book opens a window upon Inuit life.

In his third collection of Eskimo stories, Why the Man in the Moon is Happy, Ronald Melzack takes us away from the present and into the mythical past. The stories frequently call up echoes of other mythologies: the sun and moon as brother and sister for instance, although here unlike the Greek the sun is sister, the moon brother. Most interesting, because it demonstrates the similarity of all attempts to explain evil, is the story of Raven the creator, who shapes clay into his own likeness only to find that his mirror image is a destroyer which, although defeated, returns again to ruin his work.

Melzack's telling is not particularly evocative or dramatic but certainly a good means of introducing children to Inuit stories, since he has adapted and interpreted them directly from the oldest sources into a clear, gentle and straightforward form.

The Struggle For Serengeti

By BRISTOL FOSTER

These two books on East Africa complement one another in providing a useful introduction to the peoples, politics and other wildlife.

The Last Place on Earth is the best book of its kind I have read on East Africa. It is the factual account of one of the finest national parks in the world — the Serengeti in Tanzania — how it came to be a park, its agonies and successes since independence, and its shaky future in a protein and land hungry nation.

The story begins with the personality of Dr. Bernard Grzimek (pronounced "jimek" by his friends and "gimmick" by his detractors) who with his son made the first aerial census of the park. Grzimek began a research institute in the Serengeti which became one of the largest in any park in the world.

The book develops into a chronicle of clashing personalities and philosophies: scientist vs. warden, warden vs. poacher, politician vs. funding agency. The loser in all these clashes is the spectacular, unique, Serengeti ecosystem.

While the book does make interesting reading, it loses out as a potentially useful book by a lack of both index and references. The latter would be useful, particularly for some of the more controversial statements.

The book's errors are few and mostly small. However, situations are frequently overdramatized, particularly the dangers of driving at night.

In contrast to the previous book, the sparse text in Faces is written like a tourist brochure. The purple, passionate phrases such as "nerves tingling with the memory of nature's richest canvas, her greatest drama, her most harmonious symphony" diverts the reader quickly to the photographs.

The photographs are generally good, and a few such as the hunting cheetah are outstanding. Others are equally bad. The color register of the bateleur eagle is faulty, producing a strange green bird.

The book is logically divided into five sections: the coast, game country, lakes, mountains and desert country.

Both photographs and text tend to be non-controversial: nothing is shown and little mentioned of game poaching, the single most important interface between people and game in Kenya at the moment. While the bland text is quite accurate and informative, it does not measure up to other coffee-table books on wildlife and peoples in East Africa.

"Are You Paying Too Much Tax?" by Wayne Beach and Lyle R. Hepburn (revised edition). Co-authored by partners in a Toronto law firm, this book was first published in January, 1977, and was received very favorably. It explains how your can plan your financial affairs and take advantage of your rights under Canadian tax law so as to minimize your tax burden. This new edition has been revised to incorporate changes in tax law and tax rates. Especially important are changes in the dividend tax credit and in RRSP rules. It's essential reading for every Canadian taxpayer.

"The Delaney Report on RRSPs" by Tom Delaney. The Registered Retirement Savings Plan is by far the most popular and attractive long term savings scheme available, and quite often the investor has a difficult time in choosing the right plan for himself. This book, authored by a financial consultant, provides an explanation of RRSPs, the ground rules, different kinds, types of annuities and advice on investing on RRSPs. Statistical tables on the actual performance of RRSP plans make this book invaluable to the investor as well as to institutions (banks, trust companies, etc.) in the RRSP business.

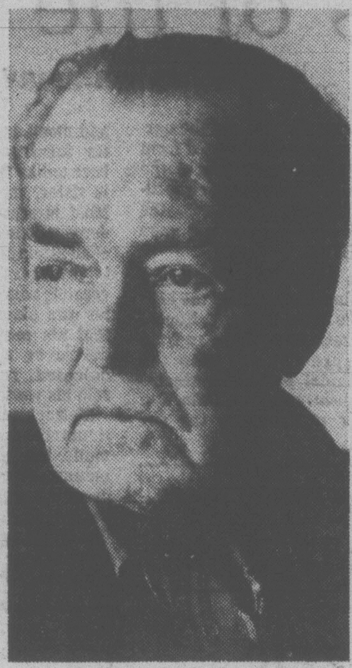
Howard O'Hagan and Living Wilderness

By GEORGE WOODCOCK



O'HAGAN . . . mountain love affair

There can have been few Canadian writers so sparing in their production, so uneager to rush into print, and so late in gaining recognition, as Howard O'Hagan. Partly, I suspect, it is because he has lived a life of great movement and varied occupation and has never settled down in any literary centre.

He was born in Lethbridge in 1902, 76 years ago, and in his boyhood the visible ridges of the Rockies called him, so that his life and even more his writing became dominated by the mountain ranges on either side of the Great Divide.

He went east at the age of 19 to read law, and at McGill he studied under Stephen Leacock and associated with A.J.M. Smith and F.R. Scott at the time when they were editing the McGill Daily. Unlike Frank Scott, O'Hagan did not take to law; he graduated, but practised little and quickly abandoned his profession to become — like so many of the people he wrote about in his novels and stories — a guide and packer in the northern Rockies, working out of Jasper.

He was always a restless man, wandering to Australia and Argentina, to Sicily and California, to New York and England but always, after spells of life and work abroad, returning to the Rockies. Recently he has settled in Victoria; he still lives within sight of the mountains.

O'Hagan began publishing in the 1930s, and his stories appeared in a variety of magazines from the popular ones, like Esquire and Maclean's, to the highbrow university journals like the New Mexico Quarterly and Prairie Schooner.

Violent, Doomed

He made whatever early name he had, however, with Tay John, half-novel and half-myth, published in 1939, a highly imaginative story of life in the Rockies as the area was being opened up by the railways and the old frontier life of the Indians and trappers was being swept away by the phenomenon we rather mistakenly describe as "progress".

Tay John, the yellow-haired Indian, violent and doomed, is a personification of the wilderness fighting without avai against its invaders. But the wilderness itself is also potently there, a presence if not in the true sense a character, and O'Hagan in this novel is perhaps the first writer in Canada to understand the great interior mountains with sufficient insight to draw out their nature, the brooding spirit of the landscape, in the same way as it is present in Indian legend. In this sense he was very much like his counterpart on Vancouver Island, Roderick Haig-Brown, one of the first writers to render into evocative prose the landscape of the coast mountains and the saltwater channels and the offshore islands of British Columbia.

The first spurt of interest in Tay John did not last, and the book was not reprinted until 1960; only in 1974 did it become available in paperback in the New Canadian Library. So little has it been recognized by the academic pundits that one looks in vain for a reference to it in the Literary History of Canada; only in 1974 did the poet, Michael Ondaatje, write the first serious critical study on Howard O'Hagan, which I published in Canadian Literature.

It is hard to tell how much the imperceptiveness of the critics and how much his own relative unproductivity accounted for the fact that only in the past three or four years, when he is well into his seventies, has O'Hagan received belatedly the attention he deserves. After Tay John, he published only two books in almost 40 years. One was a group of essays on men who had shared his experience of forests and mountains of Canada, entitled Wilderness Men, which appeared in 1958. The other was the collection of short stories, The Woman Who Got On at Jasper Station and Other Stories, which appeared in 1960 and which is now reissued by the Vancouver publishing house, Talonbooks.

I do not know how much O'Hagan wrote, in those years of neglect, that failed to achieve publication, but one item of this kind is certainly the second book by him which Talonbooks has issued, the novel entitled The School-Marm Tree, now published for the first time.

The School-Marm Tree was written, according to P.K. Page's perceptive introduction, about 20 years ago, based on a short story that had appeared in Story. No explanation is given for its long wait for publication, and I must say that I find this something of a mystery, since it is a better book than many Canadian novels that have gone into print and sold well during that period. But I am glad that in the end it is being first published by a Vancouver house, since it is entirely western in its knowledge of life in the mountains and its poetic sense of the mountain ambience.

Buried Deeper

A school-marm tree is a conifer whose tip has been broken off and which has grown a double crown so that it looks like a gigantic tuning fork. For O'Hagan such distorted trees were fascinating symbols and he used them recurrently in his fiction. It is on a school-marm tree that Father O'Rorty dies in Tay John, having tied himself to it in a self-martyring imitation of the crucifixion. A school-marm tree plays a part in the obsessions of the bushed trapper who kills his partner in the story, "Trees are Lonely Company", in The Woman Who Got on at Jasper Station. And in The School-Marm Tree such a divided fir presides over the awakening of Selva Williams.

The School-Marm Tree, set in a small town called Yellowhead, which is really Jasper 50 years ago, is at least on the surface a more realistic book than Tay John. Selva Williams, the heroine, is born with none of the supernatural incidents that attended Tay John's birth, nor does the book offer any of the Paul Bunyanish exploits that occur in the earlier novel. The elements of myth, in other words, are buried deeper, but they are certainly there.

As the novel begins, Selva is maid to a middle-class family in Yellowhead, going out with a packer named Slim Conway. There is an Empire Day dance, where Selva meets a cultured young Englishman named Peter Wrogg who is impressed by her beauty. He induces her to go walking with him, but Slim finds them at the school-marm tree, and there is a fight in which Wrogg is badly injured. However, he departs for Vancouver, and the fame of the incident loses Selva her maid's job but gets her another as hostess in a mountain lodge. There, far in the mountains, she begins to find herself, to realize — in the lonely forests — the empathy towards the mountain world that is suggested by her name — Selva, Spanish for forest.

People pass in and out of the lodge, including a famous mountaineer, Mr. Branchflower, who is unsuccessful when he makes up to Selva but provides his own target of attainment by climbing the local peak (Mount Erebus) and setting on it the cairn of the first-comer. There is a brief passage of sexual passion between Selva and another packer, Clay Molloy, who (we note with interest) has studied law at McGill. Peter Wrogg returns, but is fatally injured trying to climb in the heights Branchflower has conquered. After his death Selva finally consents to marry Clay Molloy, who will take her farther than ever away, into the remote mountains north of the Skeena.

Too Much Lyricism

The School-Marm Tree is by no means a flawless work. O'Hagan is so dominated by the physical presence of the mountains that at times he overdoes the lyrical description. The vignettes of life in a mountain railway depot town are vividly drawn, and the minor characters are sharply sketched and true to type. But the main characters, unfortunately, also tend to be types: Slim with his callously dashing cowboy way; Clay with his strong silent passion; Peter Wrogg with his lovable mother-dominated weakness. They all play their appropriate roles in the symbolic drama of Selva's realization of her true self and her real demands of life, but one wishes they has been a little more individualized, a little more sharpened into personalities in their own rights.

As for Selva, I was unconvinced by her radical transition from a rather simple-minded servant girl into the self-possessed Titian-haired hostess of th mountain lodge; one understands externally the influence of Peter Wrogg's brief conversations, but the process is not internally realized as a believable character change.

Perhaps I can sum up my feeling of disappointment with The School-Marm Tree by saying that it is really too naturalistic for a symbolic fantasy novel, yet it verges too implausibly near to fantasy for a naturalisitic novel. And this is why, despite its general competence, its attractive evocations of the mountain setting and the ways of mountain people, one puts it down feeling that it might have been better; that it does not repeat the almost unflawed achievement of Tay John.

One welcomes again the stories that make up The Woman Who Got on at Jasper Station, many of which are tales of violent confrontaions, of murders by men driven mad by loneliness, of deaths by cold in the winter wilderness. Most of them have an extraordinary economy and cohesion; the landscape and the human predicament are seen to be identical and so the tragedy and the setting seem entirely appropriate to each other. The situations are too extreme, usually, for character to be part of the episode. Man and nature face each other in elemental terms, and at their best these stories are as stark as anything Camus or Sartre wrote to demonstrate the existential reality of man's doomed condition.

No-sweat Economics

By GEORGE GIBSON

Another: It's a wow.

For a mere $15 one can now buy a book that clears up much muddy thinking and calms your nerves, two conditions that are often the result of reading or hearing current economic and business news.

A little light seems to click on as you turn each page.

For instance, you are likely in the dark about what an 89-cent Canadian dollar reallymeans. Merely turn to Page 105. You'll probably still be worried but at least you'll know what you should be worried about.

Page 197 is the starting page of how to read an annual report for profit — if not for fun.

And do you know (or care to) what is GNP? Or GNE? GDP? They all click in, starting on Page 71.

Do you share the common view that productivity is what those lazy louts are not contributing as this country goes to Hell in a handbasket? The chapter starting on Page 233 is for your enlightenment.

Pages and pages of clear thought and, what's more, clear writing. That's what this book represents. It's worthy of the attention of anyone interested in this country's wellbeing.

E. D. WARD-HARRIS

We have been strangely comforted of late by assurances that aggression is part of our heritage and there is nothing we can do about it. Deplore it if you will but, runs the argument, as it is genetic, accept it and make the best of it.

Konrad Lorenz, in On Aggression, was chiefly responsible for this line of thinking, abetted by his co-founder of the science of ethology, Niko Tinbergen. Zoologist Desmond Morris added fuel to the fire in The Naked Ape, and playwright Robert Ardrey, expanding on the theories of anatomist Raymond Dart, spread the gospel of innate aggression far and wide.

We laymen, who found the aggression argument reassuring, cannot be blamed for failure to recognize the arrogance of pronouncing an Absolute Truth based on incomplete information. After all, counter-arguments by reputable members of many scientific disciplines are difficult to come by. One gleans a little from this book and a little from that book, the whole adding up to a convincing rebuttal, but for the average layman the process is time-consuming and costly.

★ ★ ★

What has long been needed is a single popular but authoritative work on the whole subject, a concise and jargon-free work that is essentially a synthesis of the findings in all scientific disciplines relating to prehistory. Such a work is now available.

The title is Origins. Chief author is the famous young anthropologist, Richard Leakey, whose excavations in northern Kenya had added to the legacy of knowledge gathered by his parents, Louis and Mary Leakey, at Olduvai Gorge. His associate in this literary venture was biologist Roger Lewin, science editor of the prestigious magazine New Scientist.

Richard Leakey's fame was enhanced by his recent discovery at Lake Turkana of a more than two-million-year old skull, the oldest complete skull of early man yet found. Earlier discoveries of skulls of Australopithecus africanus and Australopithecus boisei, both dated as two-million-years old, suggest to Leakey that at least three and perhaps more species of primitive hominids existed simultaneously in the same geographic region.

It has always been accepted that a species of ape — Ramapithecus — descended from the trees some 13 million years ago, remained on the ground and learned to walk more or less upright, and eventually evolved into us, Homo sapiens sapiens. Leakey's discovery means that about seven million years ago Rampithecus evolved into at least three different species, but that only one survived. Darwin's theory of natural selection therefore applies equally to man.

Both Australopithecus Africanus and Australopithecus boisei petered out about three million years ago, presumably because they were too specialized to cope with violent climatic changes, but the other chap, Homo habilis, adapted — to become, one million years ago, Homo erectus and, about 100,000 years ago, Homo sapiens.

Why "our" line survived while others vanished is the central question of the current exciting study of human evolution, and half of ths book is concerned with that question.

In presenting their thesis Leakey and Lewin meet the Lorenz, Ardrey and Morris schools head-on and proceed to demolish the theory that human conflict has always existed because aggression is deeply rooted in our genes.

Leakey and Lewin say such a view has little to do with scientific facts, and they list the facts to show that the key to the transformation of an ape-like creature into a human being was the ability to share in a complex social context and that this quality of co-operation demonstrated by early man's lengthy history of peaceful hunting and gathering — and not unbridled human aggression — is the basic feature of humanity.

Then what did produce aggression? A synthesis of the findings by experts in all related fields, from anthropologists and comparative anatomists to field observers like Jane Goodall, leads Leakey and Lewin to blame farming. "The invention of agriculture ten thousand years ago," they state, "was, without exaggeration, the most significant event in the history of mankind."

So there we have it. When the peaceful nomad settled in an area where food was abundant, to fish, grow crops and domesticate animals, he had for the first time something to protect and something to plunder. Small groups coalesced to form villages, then towns. Possessions grew, as did the population: during the first 8,000 years of agriculture the number of people on the planet rocketed 30 times, from 10 million to 300 million (it's now four billion and will double by the year 2000).

Agriculture was the villain of the piece. Possessions produced rivalry, rivalry produced power-hungry leaders, leaders organized armies, and armies are aggressive. By 200 years ago hunters and gatherers had dwindled to perhaps ten per cent of the total population — and we had Napoleon!

And all this in a mere 10,000 years, a small fraction of the even tinier fraction of time that Homo sapiens sapiens has occupied the planet in the planet's four and a half billion years of existence.

People become experts in their own field because the depth of their focused knowledge does much of the thinking for them. To pontificate outside their own field is risky, as Konrad Lorenz discovered when in On Aggression he turned his attention from greylag geese to man, and made a fool of himself.

In their final chapter, Leakey and Lewin also depart from their strictly scientific thesis to deliver a lecture, but I think the Establishment will pardon them because in discussing man's future in the light of his past they are only drawing logical conclusions, and their logic is good because it is based on sound perceptions.

In essence, they point out that in many ways we are a biological accident and there is no law that declares the human species to be immortal. Stressing that every individual on this earth is a member of the same species, they plead for an acceptance of the oneness of the human race and the need to co-operate in brotherhood to rescue humanity from itself.

The call for a global effort to return to the sanity of a world inhabited by peaceful hunter-gatherers is wishful thinking, but it is the wishful thinking of men who have peered back through the fossil record, through layer upon layer of long-extinct species, and fully recognize our mortality as a species.

"To have arrived on this earth as the product of a biological accident, only to depart through human arrogance, would be the ultimate irony," comment the authors in their final paragraph. Change "would be" to "was" and you have the appropriate, and I suppose inevitable, epitaph for mankind.

Origins is not written in the sophisticated style of the Ardrey books; neither do the authors attempt to copy the poetic prose of Peter Matthiesen, as displayed in his The Tree Where Man Was Born. Instead, they have produced a straightforward, unemotional and unsensational book, profusely illustrated, based on documented findings. This is science with a human face, presented dispassionately by men who obviously care passionately about mankind.

Origins could turn out to be the book of the year, and I recommend it heartily and without qualifications.

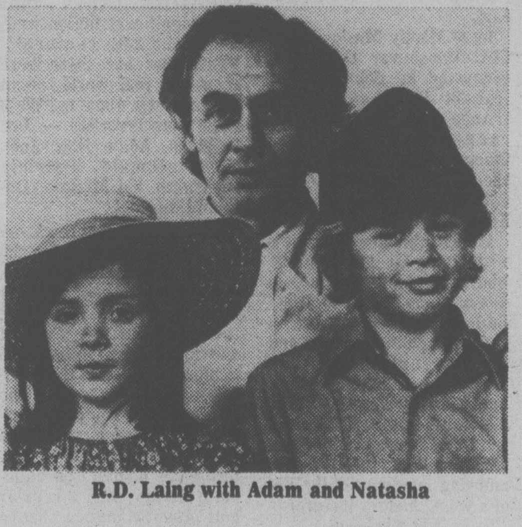
Wise Words Of Childhood

By JULIAN REID

How many among us can truly recall the special aura of our own childhood? There are a few who can, to be sure; but for most of us, the pre-occupations and the passions of our formative years are as alien as the lifestyle of some inhuman dweller on a distant planet. And all too frequently that veil of forgetfulness subtly estranges us from our own children, in ways to which we are blinded by our accustomed air of grown-up superiority.

In all truth, children are in many ways an alien species, living in a separate reality only loosely coextensive with ours. They have their own peculiar ways of perceiving and responding to the world, and of thinking and talking about the things they experience. Too often we dismiss their communications contemptuously as "mere childish nonsense," thereby saving ourselves the trouble of paying attention. No wonder youngsters feel unappreciated and alienated from their elders, when so pathetically few are willing to take them seriously!

One adult who is willing to meet with children on their own terms is R. D. Laing, the prominent British psychiatrist. Over seven years between March, 1970 and March, 1977, he took time to jot down in his notebook an unsystematic sampling of the ongoing dialogue between his own two children, Adam (born in 1967) and Natasha (born in 1970), and members of the family or other acquaintances.



R.D. Laing with Adam and Natasha

Conversations with Adam and Natasha reprints some 150 of those brief interchanges. They add up to a truly delightful book, as spontaneous and as freshly charming as the unassuming naturalness of Adam and Natasha themselves. It certainly makes for a welcome change from the usual staples of things-children-say literature: drearily erudite psycholinguistic treatises and smugly condescending put-downs with smirking titles like Kids Say the Darnedest Things!

Here is no exploitatively commercialistic pornograhy of innocence, no blandly sanitized Walt-Disney-Studios caricature of childhood. Instead, two very real children gaze out at us from the dust-jacket, with their father standing behind, holding them in a loosely paternal embrace. The children are truly beautiful, both of them, with faces that might once have inspired a Raphael or a Fra Angelico to ecstasies of paint.

In contrast, Laing's own adult countenance is more Rembrandtesque — world-soiled and profoundly furrowed, dogged with a deep-seated compassion. Plainly, the two children could hardly ask for a prouder father; and yet the juxtaposition seems almost painfully poignant. It is a telling conjunction of young innocence with aging experience, testifying simultaneously to the riches of a childhood paradise not yet lost and to the age-old hope of eventual redemption into a more sophisticated paradise regained.

On opening the book, those familiar with Laing's earlier works will be struck even more forcefully by the contrast. For these Conversations with Adam and Natasha spring from a chapter in the history of the individual spirit before the crippling tyranny of The Politics of Experience has taken sway, before the suffering adolescent becomes inextricably entangled in the network of double-binds and mutually-strangulating duologues so painstakingly traced out on the pages of Knots and Do You Love Me?

Here too, admittedly, we meet with pain and frustration, suffering and stifled outrage. But they remain a comparatively insignificant element in the mix, never escalating into that neurotically compulsive gamesmanship which sets the tone for so much of adult life. It is like the difference between nightmare and daydream, where shadows all keep to their places. And just as the atmosphere of Laing's earlier volumes tends to be ingrown and oppressive, so here it is luminous and bright with hope.

Yet the real worth of this little treasure chest stems, paradoxically, from the fact that its contents are in fact entirely commonplace. For there is nothing truly exceptional about these Conversations with Adam and Natasha. The miracle of their freshness is in truth only the common bloom on children's voices everywhere — if only we would bring ourselves to really listen to them, as R. D. Laing has done.
